The lacuna in 178, supplied by 240 is now confirmed by 203 and all the א readings of the text are vouched for, including the final +ειναι of א in xxii. 20. Note the list, and consult our edition of Oecumenius (Univ. of Mich. Press, 1928).

GROUP 81-204. (Related to family 1).

Apoc. 204. [xv]. = Venice, Gr. 494. Not catalogued for the Apoc. originally by Scrivener, nor by Gregory under his Evan. 598. It is Soden's $A\nu^{31}$. Apoc. 204.

This copy is an interesting exhibition of a MS. written entirely by tachygraphy or shorthand throughout, but it is remarkably well done and quite carefully copied. Collated from photographs in 1921.

It develops at once that this is a full sister to 81 (at Munich), both derived from a common original and not copied the one from the other. They are a special line of the famous 1 family.

A key to the fuller family is to be found at xvii. 3/4, where an addition obtains (ex xvii. 18), but followed by special scholia, and the addition always has την before βασιλειαν which does not occur at xvii. 18 in these or other MSS.

The addition is: η γυνη ην ιδες εστιν η πολις η μεγαλη, η εχουσα την βασιλειαν επι των βασιλεων της γης. This is also found in 81 of course, and in P.

There is no inscription proper. There is an enclosed heading with ἀνδρεου ἀρχιεπισκοπου κ.τ.λ. The text and commentary run straight on, not broken in any way, but the text is usually indicated by long daggers; the commentary by short daggers. It is bi-columnar. The text begins top of col. 2, p. 248 recto, fifth line.

Anyone following me over the ground must learn the shorthand for himself. There are two peculiarities. Capital delta is often made Δ and small eta is nearly always written ς, not to be confounded with iota, which is found straight with diaeresis. (The nearest approach to this is in 245, a MS. at Elasson).

There can be no mistake about the relationship with 81. Here is the agreement peculiar to 81-204:

Apoc. 205 was reserved for Soumela 41. Trapezunt. [Greg. 1806. Sod. α 1472], but I understand from Dr. Bolides of Athens that during the late war the MS. (with those at Serres and Drama) were removed by the Bulgarians, and it has doubtless been sold, and will turn up somewhere.

GROUP 176-206 (of great importance).

Apoc. 206. Apoc. 206. Athos, Vatopedi 637 (latest number). Not in Gregory or von Soden. (I do not know the previous number at Athos).

[This No. 206 was reserved for Athos, Vat. old 17 or 27 (Greg. 1773 ?), but it cannot be found or identified at present].

Vatopedi 637 is a bi-columnar codex of the XII/XIII[th] century, with inscription of:

αποκαλυψις του αγιου και πανευφημου αποστολου, ιωαννου του θεολογου which is the nearest to those in our Apoc. 122 and 128.

Photographs (taken in 1925 by Messrs. Lake and Swain) by the courtesy of the University of Michigan.

No iota post. or subscript occurs anywhere; yet ν εφελκ. is absent. There are absolutely no numerals throughout except once for the number of the beast. ῥανδω and ἑνδομος are written thus consistently. Elsewhere all words with beta have β.

This is a very proper MS., nicely written. An easy scribe to follow. We had hardly expected at this late date to run into anything quite so startling. Here are the rare, and the major new Greek readings (and their support when the Versions concur). It 'gives one furiously to think.' Only a few occur early. [This was written before 176 appeared upon the scene. They are sisters, and 176 agrees with all the following, except where missing iv. 1–vii. 9].

i. 1. +του κυ̅ ημων post αποκαλυψις 12 178-240 (but here our MS. is re-written). ibid. +κς̅ post αυτω 108.

Nothing after this. A stereotyped ending.

Now see 176 collated after this, which was either copied from 206 or an elder MS. from which 206 derives.

These remarkable readings fall every one from a clear sky. There is no warning of what is coming, either by previous variants, changes in the text or marginal additions or corrections. On the contrary, both before and after these startling readings the text flows on unconcernedly, and many whole verses are without a single letter's variation from the Κοινή or Textus Receptus.† Therefore: One of two things is to be deduced. Either these unusual variants are overflows and refluxes from the Versions, or they belong to an integral part of the ancient Greek text underlying some of the Versions. If they are a part of the original Greek text underlying sah ‡ and *syr*S, then we cannot divorce them from their Κοινή surroundings, and the Κοινή proves to be more ancient as a foundation than expected, many of the changes due no doubt to early and persistent small revisions with a view to betterment, and which we may have mistaken and thought to antedate instead of to postdate many accepted Κοινή readings. the Κοινή.

But if they are a mere reflux of the Versions they may have been added at any date, and therefore be of such uncertain periods as to shut off any argument as to an early date for the Κοινή synchronous with sah and *syr*S.

The matter, therefore, of this XIIth or XIIIth century text becomes of paramount importance, and students are requested to give to it their particular attention. By that I do not mean to study it by the results of my collation. This would be a cold and inadequate proceeding; but I suggest a study of the original document from the photographs, which will be found in the care of the Library of the University of Michigan, for a study of the original will alone bear me out fully as to the quiet and honourable work of the actual scribe, whose source or sources may never now be available to us. Importance of this document.

The man was indubitably copying a document (probably ancient, and bi-columnar like the present MS.) with the utmost care and circumspection. He was not referring to other works in the library or scriptorium. There are no traces of real hesitation on his part. And an examination of the context of the unusual variants must be undertaken in order to assess the matter at its true value.

Thus, when you are confronted in 176-206 with the variation ὕδατα for υδωρ (xii. 15) and realize that this is the only Greek MS. out of 250 to read thus, you are to examine as closely as possible. First you find that Walton's translator correctly renders aquas for *syr*Σ. Then you find Gwynn rendering υδωρ for *syr*S, and note Horner's silence in his notes on sah. This means that the Syriac word, though marked with the plural points, is used for both υδωρ and υδατα throughout the N.T. Then you examine the Sahidic and Bohairic. Here you find matters indeterminate. Bohairic uses ⲛ̄, and a indefinite article 'as a river of water,' ⲙ̄ⲫⲣⲏϯ ⲛ̄ⲟⲩⲓⲁⲣⲟ ⲙ̄ⲙⲱⲟⲩ, one boh MS., however, saying ⲛ̄ⲓⲁⲣⲟ without the indefinite article, which might be taken for plural or not. Sah says ⲛ̄ⲟⲩⲙⲟⲟⲩ. ὕδωρ and ὕδατα.

† For instance, the text contains in quick succession και εκ του χαραγματος αυτου at xv. 2, σε κ̅ε̅ at xv. 4, ζωσα at xvi. 3, all omitted by the great majority.

‡ See xii. 16 βοηθει pro εβοηθησεν 176-206 alone of all Greeks, but ⲂⲞⲎⲐⲈⲒ in SAH (and boh lacks the clause !).

Beyond this all is singular in lat and arm, but aeth says: aquam multum, as usual conveying to us a signal of what this is all about.

Aethiopic. Aeth is a perfect marvel, if properly examined, in the verses involving cruces. That Version generally gives a clue. Thus in xv. 6 it leaves out both λινον and λιθον.

Scales. Now the examination of the A readings is full of illumination, see xvi. 16, ποταμον for τοπον, and paves the way to an examination of the omission of ℵA and boh alone in xviii. 22 of πασης τεχνης, for our 206 does not support there. It is to such an end that all our labour is undertaken. We have now constructed proper scales wherein to weigh ℵ and A.

Underlying texts. What appears more or less evident is some overlying influence or reflex action of Versions, including sah syr aeth and latin, but also the vestiges of an underlying text involving them all in the early stages of transmission. To differentiate between the two must be the task of the future critic in the full light of the new material now supplied. We have often discussed what constitutes underlying and overlying influences. At last we can present to the critics a specimen Greek MS., which, while perhaps involving both processes, clearly gives us real readings underlying the Sahidic and therefore a selection of the most ancient texts in existence.

Apoc. 207. Apoc. 207. Athos, Vatop. new No. 966, olim 763 (olim 129). [Greg. 1597. Sod. δ 308]. [XII/XIII]. Apoc. on pp. 459/484.

Supposed to be dated 1290. Looks earlier. No date at end of Apocalypse.

No subscription after Apoc. proper. No Inscription. Neat and clear MS. in very small writing, with a few much later notes in the margin. Only one marginal annotation by the original scribe (at xiii. 18 opposite the No. of the beast).

A few cases of itacism. Very few cases of ν εφελκ., but quite a few of the reverse.

Beta is so often made in the form of upsilon that we do not and cannot emphasize ευδομος, ρανδω etc., as in some other MSS., while at xix. 6 ευασιλευσε is distinctly meant to be a υ in both places in the word, and agrees with 156.

The scribe is a little weak on the genders and numbers of the possessive case.

The MS. has most of the readings of the 25 group, including +πορφυρουν at xix. 13, but occasionally differs, and quite often joins another grouping in the smaller matters.

xii. 4 γεννήσῃ. The outstanding novelty among Greek codices is at xii. 4, where we read γεννηση for τεκη (although no change is made from ετεκε in verse 13). Here in xii. 4 practically all Greeks are agreed as to τεκη, only 40 (τεξει 210) and 200 giving τεξη, and while γεννηση is a pure synonym, it seems difficult to understand how it crept in here, or crept out, since it is not a reading of the 25 group.

Yet other readings outside the group intrude, as at:

i. 11. σαρδην (with 164-166 200).
vii. 4. τῶν αριθμῶν (with 7 al.), and again viii. 16 (with some and 200).
9. και λαων και φυλων (with 36 178 al.).
14. σοι οιδας (with C 12 167).
ix. 17. επ αυτους (super eos gig latt).
20. και οὐ pro ουτε pr. (with 149 200. Cf. aeth).
x. 8. —και ante λεγουσα (with 28 113 copt).
xii. 14. οπου εκτρεφηται Alone.
xiii. 2. ὃν pro ὃ (So 7 33 103 112 113).

xv. 4. φοβηθῆσαι pro φοβηθη σε (So 154).
xvii. 9. επ αυτω pro επ αυτων (with fam 21).
xviii. 13. We retain των σωματων against the 25 family.
xx. 14. We retain ο θανατος ο δευτερος εστιν + η λιμνη του πυρος, which clauses the family omits.
xxi. 11. και λιθω pro ως λιθω (So 166).
23. ἢ pro ουδε (with 13 149 150[sup]).

Besides these passages:

viii. 11. επι pro εκ with A alone.
xi. 8. πνευματικῆ Alone (the σ falling away before Σοδομα).
xv. 6. παρα pro περι Alone. (So syr). The scribe hesitated and then deliberately made it παρα against the family traditions for περι.
xvii. 4. αυτου pro αυτης very deliberately, thus αὐτοῦ.
17. αυτω pro αυτων sec. with A alone. (*Cf. syr*S aeth).
xviii. 23. φωνῆ pro φως Common error shared by 44 and 67.
xx. 12. βιβλιον ηνοιξεν with 16 and 102 against ηνοιξαν of the family.

Of monstra there is one at xxii. 6, viz. πονηρων for προφητων, which is an impossibility, and very curious for this scribe, who is quite accurate. The only clue to the ρ is in codices 108 187 and 210, where, instead of the real reading of των πνευματων των for των αγιων, they abbreviate a variation to των πρων των. Perhaps our scribe meant to expand πατρων.

In xvi. 6 we have a unique variant so far of αυτων for αυτοις: καὶ αἷμα αὐτῶν ἔδωκας πιεῖν instead of αἷμα αὐτοῖς. Only two other codd. vary, and they have αὐτῆς.

Another violent change of number and meaning is injected into xvii. 16 by changing καὶ τὰς σάρκας αὐτῆς φάγονται to αὐτῶν.

In the next verse yet another case occurs, where (with A, however, this time) we are to read:

καὶ δοῦναι τὴν βασιλείαν αὐτῷ τῷ θηρίῳ instead of αυτων τω θηριω, making it to give the kingdom to that beast himself and not 'their kingdom.' Boh[A] also conspires to read the same by leaving out αυτων, as does our fam 21 and 155*com.*

Once more at xviii. 3 we have a change of gender from μετ' αυτης to μετ' αυτου alone, and yet again at xix. 2 fin. αὐτοῦ for αὐτῆς, where the recension 67-120 agrees, for no very good reason.

At xix. 10 the scribe runs ιησου τω θεω προσκυνησον together expressly, as do 108 120 207, like Cypr.: 'Jesum Dominum adora,' while *syr*S carefully differentiates by adding μαλλον after προσκυνησον.

We notice at ii. 22 in the margin, as in some other MSS., opposite κλινην (but by the later hand) 'ασθενιαν,' which is the exact substitution used in its text by the Sahidic (ϵⲩϣⲱⲛϵ).

GROUP 1-208, larger group 1-152-179-208 of the great family 1.

Apoc. 208. Apoc. 208. Athos, Vat. 300 (now 333). [Greg. 2186. Sod. Aν[23]]. Gregory only got it from Soden.

This large codex would appear to be now numbered 333. Apoc. 208, 209, 210 are all at Vatopedi, but are of quite different types, as will be seen.

This one is bi-columnar, which Soden does not mention.

Photos by Swain, 1926. Looks early XII, or even XI, although it looks like a paper codex, but Dr. Lake assures me it is on vellum. The date seemingly can be checked by a marginal comment along the margin of p. 145 verso by a second hand in very large script, which seems certainly as old as the XII[th] century.

Written in an educated hand. An absolutely faithful copy of the old document underlying Erasmus' famous Apoc. 1. This is indeed a discovery! Who would have thought that we should have to wait for over 200 numbers to find this prize. I had believed that with families 46, 62, and 119 we had all that was necessary for control, but this codex 208, of most respectable age, takes us closer to 1 and into the very heart of the problem, for it substantiates what have generally been considered errors of the Reuchlin codex. We go so far indeed as to justify Erasmus and his compositors as against the collations of Tregelles and Delitzsch! For at xv. 1 I find a note in my ledger of εν αυτοις pro εν αυταις by Er. omn. Ald., but without codex 1. Now 208 gives us this αυτοις written in full—(although it is absurd, for it refers to the πληγὰς ἑπτὰ τὰς ἐσχάτας)—while codex 1 abbreviates. Treg. and Del.—who were very dilettante collators at that time—read what is doubtless αὐτ̃ for αυταις, but αὐταῖς would be αὐτ̃. Del. in fact admits this, for (p. 40, Heft 1) he says: "ἐν αυτοῖς so Ausg. 1–5 (Erasmi) Der cod. hat αυτ und darüber das einem nach links gekehrten Sigma gleichende Abkürzungszeichen, ohne zweifel αὐταῖς zu lesen." Apoc. 208 proves him wrong.

The codex is almost complete, lacking only xiii. 18–xiv. 7 fin., xv. 5–xvi. 11 inclusive, and xvii. 4-9 inclusive. This is doubtless due to the very careless binder, for when rebound, other sections were badly misplaced. Thus vi. 1 to ix. 21 occurs out of place (pp. 151/5) and xiv. 8 to xv. 5 and xvi. 12 to xvii. 3 on pp. 165/8.

Our new witness will take high rank among the 1 group, as it is one of our oldest and clearest witnesses for the printed text of Erasmus. The commentary seems to be the same (see, for proof, xxi. 24), which is as much Arethas as Andreas, a composite, foreshortened in the earlier chapters, but running more fully later on.

At ch. x. 2, 8, 9 we agree with the Patmos document, our 179, for βιβλαρειδιον, but at x. 10 we have βιβλαριον agreeing with A 200 in ver. 9. (There are several touches of 200 elsewhere).

There is no inscription to the text proper (as in nearly all these Andr. com. MSS.) and no subscription, although the second col. on the last page is blank and could have served for a lengthy subscription.

We start off with close adherence to fam 62, including the injection several times of φησιν into the text. The origin of Erasmus' πλουσιος δε ει at ii. 9 is confirmed by the mixture of text and com. at this place, where αλλα πλουσιος ει of all is missing and πλουσιος δε ει occurs in the middle of the com. At ii. 20 we omit ολιγα and οτι εας, reading with 1 and f. 62 αλλ' εχω κατα σου, την γυναικα κ.τ.λ. the group having solved a textual difficulty, which Erasmus introduced afresh and coined εας. At iii. 5 we are alone with 152-179* omitting ὁ νικων. But at iii. 3 this ceases, to give place to the most clear adherence to the 1 type. The following is my proof. Here you will find 1 and 208 alone (as against even fam 46 and fam 62):

i. 9. —τῃ καλουμενῃ 1-208 (and 187).

xxii. 15. και πορνοι (—οἱ) 1-208 (al. pc. Hipp.).

As regards the famous ending, xxii. 16 to 21, retranslated by Erasmus because the last page of Apoc. 1 was missing, we are now fixed by 208 beyond peradventure.

We read:

xxii. 16. +ὁ χριστος ὡς θεος after δᾱδ as text (ex com.).
ibid. +ὁ αὐτος after πρωινος (as fam 62).
17. λαβειν υδωρ (for λαμβανετω το υδωρ of Erasmus and λαβετω υδωρ of nearly all) with fam 62 113 152-179 arm a.
18. μαρτυρω εγω (—γαρ)
ibid. +τω ante ακουοντι

† Compare vi. 11 πληρώσω, very deliberately written, by 208 alone instead of πληρωσονται, πληρωσωσι or πληρωθωσιν of all others.

There are few new readings. The occasional variations in spelling are quite rare. Note, however, εγεναμην twice at i. 9, 10, first with 12 36 152, then with 12 152-179.

Individual errors seem to be confined to the following:

ii. 18. —ως φλογα πυρος και οι ποδες αυτου

The places where we really oppose Apoc. 1 are almost non-existent. I notice towards the end:

xxi. 20. εννατος against εvατος of 1.
27. κοινον pro κοινουν where 1 has κοινῶν.
xxii. 8. ο βλεπων ϗ ακουων ταυτα where 1 has ο βλεπων ταυτα ϗ ακουων.

At xv. 3 ᾠδην is given a tiny iota subscr. I think by first hand. (In photographs one is never sure).

At xviii. 12 a second hand has made about the only change in the whole book. Merely the matter of an accent! The scribe wrote ἀργυροῦ, and this second hand would have it ἀργύρου.

Apoc. 209. Athos, reserved for Vatopedi 562?

Cannot identify. Mark it Latet. It may have been renumbered and be among my other Vatopedi collated MSS.

GROUP 40-210. Supertype of B.

Apoc. 210. Athos, Vatop. 656 (olim 22) now 852. [Greg. 1719. Sod. α 302]. Apoc. 210.

Greg. says "dated 1287 (ϛψϟε), written by Alexius Anagnostes, 22.7 × 17.2. Vellum, 212 leaves, 1 col. This col. 16.8 × 12.5. 25 lines, but 30 in Apoc. Capitals red."

But it is a later hand which dates the subscription, although this may well be the date of the MS. itself. Photos by Swain, 1926.

This is a non-commentary MS., without inscription, and for the first two chapters impossible to identify with any group. From ch. iii. onwards, however, we get a pleasant surprise, and identify it absolutely with Apoc. 40, a very extraordinary MS., B type, but supertype, with Syriac leanings and some retranslation.

Both 40 and 210 undoubtedly derive from the same archetype, which was either an uncial or a very early x[th] cent. cursive like 200. (With 200 itself they have quite some sympathy in readings and in forms). We are not seeking support for the singularities of 40-210 so much as for a clue as to which scribe was transcribing the more faithfully. And I think we get good results. Towards the end Apoc. 40 becomes careless, and most of its solecisms are not supported by 210.

210 itself is careful, but indulges in forms like λυγχνιας, αναβενοντα, καταβενοντα, ποδηρι, τιχος, βλασφημειαν, ευχαριστειαν, ορναιον, ποιμενειν, not found in 40, and which may yet have belonged to the original. Its breathings are unorthodox, and it insists on accenting τοῦτου thus, but all this may be due to the infirmities of the parent MS., which have been removed by 40, for in 40 we have a clear case of editing at xxi. 19. Here we have a large omission from αυτης ιασπις in ver. 18 to πολεως in ver. 19 (not shared by 210), so that in verse 19 we get in Apoc. 40 κεκοσμημενη to agree with ενδομησις, whereas 210 writes the conventional κεκοσμημενοι to agree with θεμελιοι, as it does not omit the clause which cancels θεμελιοι.

They are absolutely alone together as follows:

iii. 2. πεπληρωμενα τα εργα order of *syr*S.
7. τω δε αγγελω της εν φιλαδελφια
iv. 8. —και ante ο ερχομενος with sah.

ix. 7. ως προσωπον ανθρωπων with boh and *syr*S.
11. —ονομα sec. with boh sah arm.
14. λεγων pro λεγουσα
x. 1. ωσει pro ως
9. —αυτω with arm 4 (and 63 but contra fam).

xviii. 2. —παντος pr.
xx. 3. απεσφραγισεν pro εσφραγισεν
4. —και ante δια τον λογον
xxi. 20. βιρυλλος to which add the combination 40-210 plus 200 at:

vi. 6. —τεσσαρων with *syr*S.
8. —ονομα αυτω with arm.
xii. 4. τεξει pro τεκη 210, and τεξη 40 200.
xviii. 21. +η̊ ante πολις and to which add further such characteristic things as:

iii. 19. —εαν 40-210 and 59-121 240 Verss.
21. —μετ εμου 40-210 and 10 18 146 arm 4. Moyses ep.
iv. 8. —ανα 40-210 and 53 206 arm a. 2.

ix. 8 fin. —ησαν 40-210 and 21-73, 164-166 *h aeth syr*S.
11. εχων pro εχει 40-210 and 30-98 222 h, and αυτω εστιν 149-186 syr.
xii. 9. +και ante εβληθη sec. 40-210 and 176-206 gig h aeth arm 4. *syr*S.
xiv. 3. οι ηγορασμενοι επι της γης (pro απο της γης) 40-210 and 240.
14. καθημενος ομοιος ανθρωπος (—υιω) 40-210 B* 122.
xxi. 19. —τιμιω 40-210, and 21-73-103-112 (erroribus) 150ˢᵘᵖ.
20. χρυσοπαστος 40-210 and 50 92 112 122 233.
5. εις τον αιωνα του αιωνος 40-210 and 12 and boh (sah aeth).

The most striking novelties are few and as follows:

ix. 11. αμβααδνων or αββααδνων Actually written αυβααδω̆ν thus. (I cannot tell whether the second letter is meant for μ or an old cursive u for β).
xi. 11. ακουοντας pro θεωρουντας (Om. arm 1).
xii. 6. α̣σ̄χ̂ for the ᾱ̣χ̄ of 40, and ᾱ̣σ̄ξ′ of most.
14. σατανα pro οφεως

xviii. 9. βλεπεται pro βλεπωσι
xix. 16. βασιλεὺ pro βασιλευς
xx. 6. μετρος pro μερος
xxi. 13. Nine gates, omitting και απο δυσμων πυλ. τρεις.
18. ευδομησις pro ενδομησις
19. χακιδων without λ or ρ. (but vii. 7 ισσαρχαρ).
xxii. 6. των πατερων των προφητων with 104 108 187.

And we oppose 40 further in the following important places (leaving out the first two chapters, where another exemplar may have been used by 210):

iii. 16. εκμεσαι
vii. 1. πνεει (40 = πνευση).
xiv. 7. [προσκυνησατε] but 40 προσκυνησαντα xvii. 11. οὗτος pro αὐτος but 40 τοῦτο (τοῦτος 149*).
xix. 7. [αγαλλιωμεθα] against αγαλλιασωμεθα of 40.
xxii. 15. [ϗ οι φαρμακοι ϗ οι πορνοι] against the reverse order in 40, and also in all three places (vii. 3, xiii. 16, xx. 4), where 40 writes the dative τω μετωπω for the genitive or accusative of others.

The lower half of the last page is left blank and partially filled by a series of incomprehensible flourishes and hieroglyphics by a later hand. However, on the following page, also by a careless and later hand, is written:

πληρωθη το παρον βιβλιον των αγιων ϗ πανευφημων αποστολων αι πραξεις και επιστολαι και παντα τα εν
........εμου αλεξιου αναξιου αναγνωστου(?).....
επι ετους ϛψϟέ λˢ ιέ: μηνι μαιω κη̄ ημερα Γ ωρα, or: the third hour of the 28th day of May, 1287.

GROUP 153-211. Larger Group 26-41-42-53-107-153-211-222.

Apoc. 211. Apoc. 211. Athos, Vatopedi new No. 862, formerly 669 (olim 35). [Greg. 1728. Sod. α 301]. XIV. Greg.: XII (erroneously). 21½ × 15.8. Paper, 370 leaves, 1 col., 19.8 × 11.9. 30 lines. Wormeaten, especially at top, where paper has been pasted over, obliterating some of the readings. We quote there the probable readings from its sister MS. 153.

Photographs secured in 1925 by courtesy of Michigan through Lake and Swain.

A very rough MS. almost entirely in shorthand, as some others, but useless one would think for devotional reading.

Date. Gregory misdates it. It seems much later, XIV/XV, but is by an agreeable scribe to follow, who is quite accurate, and as a rule we know exactly what he is copying. But who would have thought that it could be almost the twin-sister of our 153, a very neat round-hand MS. of the XI[th] cent. (Dionys. 27, Athos), yet it is. No two MSS. could well look less alike.

It is a somewhat curious type of the B recension, sub-type 26-41-42-53-107, yet 153-211 maintain a certain individuality in places, down to their few omissions from homoioteleuton, showing quite evidently that these omissions already existed in the common parent-manuscript, and, allowance made for that, 211 is very accurate indeed.

The common source is indicated by these variants from the mass in which both 153-211 agree:

iv. 11. βαλεῖν pro λαβειν
xii. 15. ελαβεν pro εβαλεν [yet xii. 16 εβαλεν].
xvii. 1. —εἷς
xix. 4. και οι πρεσβυτεροι επεσαν συντεροι οι κδ´.
xxii. 1. —του θεου.

Elsewhere they are found sometimes together with a small minority. These places will be found in the Collations.

Our MS. 211 indulges in the following without the countenance of its sister 153:

Once more at ii. 10. λαβειν pro βαλειν (with 100 and 201).
iii. 8. το εργον pro τον λογον (No other. τα εργα only by 61-95-126-219 and 159).
Change of order: 17. και τυφλος και πτωχος (Alone so far with Tyc 1. and Beatus).
vii. 12. —και η τιμη (149-186).
x. 1. +και ante περιβεβλ. (28, non fam).
xvi. 5. —του αγγελου (Alone so far).

This last is rather noteworthy, as it seems deliberate, for it precedes but by two verses the place where the text says 'I heard (from) the altar, saying'—(for ἄλλου ἐκ of textus receptus does not inhere in the MSS.)—and why should the scribe not think the real text here is not: 'And I heard (from) the waters, saying'?

xvii. 4. ποτηριον (—χρυσουν) (29 233 Auct. prom.).
6. των μαρτῠρῐῶν (A 84 155. Obs. Tert[scorp]).
xviii. 10. ἡ ὀχῠρά (fam 21 sah).
18. τη πολει τη πολει (—τη μεγαλη) (Alone). —τη μεγαλη 47.
xix. 17. ὀρνέτοῖς pro ορνεοις τοις (Alone).
xx. 14. ενβληθησαν pro εβληθησαν (Alone).
xxi. 2. νυμφιν vid. comp. (104 113).
12 fin. ἰλη̃μ pro ιηλ (Alone).
20. ὑάκῠνθος (200).
xxii. 15. οἱ κῦνες (166 194[A] 208 215 219). [οἱ κύνες 153].

N.B.—The faithful copying of the full group is to be seen at viii. 10 where all 41-42-53-107-153-211 write του τριτον in this one place for το τριτον and no others but 203. (του vid. 26).

Now see 222.

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUP 10 etc.

Apoc. 212. Athos, Vatopedi 711 (olim 77). [Greg. new 1551. Sod. α 1376]. XIII/XIV with light chain commentary. Apoc. 212.

Inscr.: αποκαλυψις του αγιου ιωαννου του αποστολου και ευαγγελιστου θεολογου (with 10 96 110 150 157 160 161).

There is no subscription.

Another of the Complutensian family, but differing slightly from the Laura type (to follow).

Carefully and accurately written, with few exceptions.

No ν εφελκ. but also no iota sub. or post. throughout, not even with αδης or αδουσιν. One case of hiatus πενθουσι [επ αυτη]. A few idiosyncracies of spelling, some with 154 of the family, and κρυσταλος and cases invariably with one λ. Numerals generally for ιβ̄ and κδ̄ but not for δεκα nor τεσσαρα.

We meet with ὅθεν ii. 5; —αυτω ii. 7 (but not ii. 17); εχοντι pro εχον το iv. 7; +ο ante καπνος prim. ix. 2; —τα ante αργυρα ix. 20; xvi. 6 ποιειν pro πιειν; xvi. 13 —εκ του στοματος του δρακοντος και; xvi. 19 —το ante ποτηριον; xvii. 2 —των αγιων και εκ του αιματος; xviii. 6 διπλασατε; xviii. 10 ουαι ter; xviii. 14 απωλοντο.

Also these two alternative readings:

vi. 16. πέσεται xiv. 13. ἀναπαύσονται sic. At ix. 5 there is no alternative reading to πλήξῃ.

The novelties are about as follows:

iii. 9. προσκϋνήσϊν
iv. 11. εἰσύ· thus deliberately for εἰσί.
vii. 5. φιλῆς sec. pro φυλης
17. ὁ δηγεῖσει sic
ix. 15. ημερα pro ημεραν (with 32).
xvii. 16. μισησου pro μισησουσι
xxi. 21. ἀνα εἰς sic.

Quite alone with 154:

xi. 18. —και διαφθειραι τους διαφθειροντας την γην xiii. 1. κερατα δεκα· κεφαλας επτα sic (—και sec.).
xvii. 8. μεταβολης pro καταβολης 14. πολεμισουσι
xix. 15. —την ante ληνον ibid. του οινου του θυμου της οργης του θυμου (sic) του θεου xxii. 6. —αυτου prim.
8. —ηκουσα και

but 212 does not share the other numerous variations of 154, which must therefore be considered a critical codex of this type.

Apoc. 213. Stauroniketa 25, Athos. [Greg. 2259. Sod. Αν[12]]. Apoc. 213.

Only contains xiii. 14–xiv. 15 on five pages, and have been unable to secure photos of this fragment, the monastery being at considerable distance from the more accessible ones.

GROUP 97-122-214. (Eclectic B type).

Apoc. 214. Apoc. 214. Athos, Kutlumesi 356. [Greg. 1704. Not in Soden]. [xv].

Whole N.T.? on paper, said to be dated 1541/1543, but this is probably a subscription or rather an inscription posterior to the MS. itself, chronicling a severe local earthquake. Photos of the Apoc. (due to the diligence and courtesy of Professor Lake in 1926) do not show it. Lambros states it from the end of the book (after οι μακαρισμοι των οκτω ηχων) as follows:

> ετου ,ζπῶ εν μηνι απριλλιω ιβ' ημερα σαββατω ωρα ς' της ημερας της εβδομαδι της διακενισμου εγενετο σισμος μεγας ωστε και τα οικητηρια εσχισθησαν και εσαλευθησαν εκ θεμελιων

,ζπ = 7080, less 5509 would equate A.D. 1571, and not 1541.

Lambros' account of the contents of the book (his No. 3429) is very unreliable, and he does not mention the Apoc., but 'Apostolos.'

However, it is with the text that we are concerned, and that is a most valuable check on a small family, whose exceptional readings so far have not been fixed with precision. The group now becomes:

with a large measure of 38, where the latter is aberrant from the Patmos group 178-203-240.

97 is Scrivener's codex j, and 122 is the MS. in Prince Chigi's library at Rome (with double com̄. of Andr. and Oec.). Both these codices are now, therefore, in the West, and it is interesting to find the third member, although a late MS., still at Athos. The earlier codices from which so many existing Athos MSS. have derived have undoubtedly perished and been turned into jampot covers or what not (see under No. 215).

There is no occurrence of iota sub. or post., but some iotas and a few upsilons have a single dot—two opposite marks of age and extreme youth. We shall be safe to date it about 1500. I think it is certainly 75 years older than the date in the inscription.

It is much nearer 97 than 122, the latter being carelessly transcribed and having some revision. It now confirms nearly all the vagaries of 97 and has a handful more, few of which, however, probably are genuine survivals of the common parent. As a whole it favours the B and cursive recension. This can be seen from the adhesion to the larger cursive groups, and specifically at xx. 9, where we add και την πολιν των αγιων (after την παρεμβολην των αγιων and before και την πολιν την ηγαπημενην) with B 97-122 164-166 194^A only.

It is clear that our family MSS. were revised, and none too early, at a time when 38 was divorced from much of the 178 traditions, but there remain certain elements which may be quite ancient. At any rate, some of the changes are rather startling.

Two pages are wanting, or at any rate missing from my photos, containing v. 6 med. to vi. 13 fin.

I begin by recording what appears to be unique in 214:

> ix. 19 αἱ γαρ αἱ οὐραι, x. 3 εκραξα vid., x. 8 εἴπαγε (vult ἄπαγε) pro ὕπαγε, xiii. 3 —και sec. ante ἡ πληγη, xiii. 4 —ος εδωκεν (inter paginas), xvi. 9 +το ante καυμα μεγα, xviii. 10 —η πολις sec., xviii. 19 —και πενθουντες λεγοντες, xix. 4 λεγοντος, xx. 7 ταυτα pro τα, xx. 8 ωσει η αμμος, which, with five errors of omission at iii. 3, iii. 20, viii. 11 (almost equiv. of 122), xiv. 17...and xxii. 12, may well all be fortuitous.

Much more interesting are the unique agreements with 97 alone (confirming Scrivener's accurate collation) at:

ii. 24. ἐγὼ pro λέγω

iii. 1. τα εργα σου (and 113 gig)

xi. 5. απο pro εκ

xi. 16. επι του θρονου pro επι τους θρονους
xiv. 14. ανθρωπω pro υιω ανθρωπου
xv. 2. νελλινην bis
xviii. 4. και εκ των πληγων (—αυτης) ινα μη λαβητε
xx. 12. ϗ βιβλιον ηνοιξαν· ϗ αλλο βιβλιον ανεωχθη (97 and 214 alone in the midst of bewildering variations ; see collations).
xxi. 20. χρυσοπασσος.

Scrivener enters 97 twice here, but undoubtedly 97 is for χρυσοπασσος. At xxi. 13 the unusual order of ϗ απο νοτου.. ϗ απο βορρα.. ϗ απο δυσμων is not recorded by Scr. for 97, he gives 98 for it, and as this agrees with 30 it is probably correct. The whole group is 30-98 113 122-214.

Still more interesting are the double agreements with 97-122 as follows :

i. 14. +και το ενδυμα αυτου (inter εριον et λευκον) [ex Dan. vii. 9].
15. —ως εν καμινω πεπυρωμενοι
20. και των επτα αστερων λυχνιων (pro και τας επτα αστερας τας χρυσας). 97-122 however omit αστερων. *Syr*S omits τας χρυσας with them all.
ibid. αγγελοι εισι των επτα εκκλησιων
ii. 17. Transponunt και δωσω αυτω (—φαγειν απο) του μαννα του κεκρυμμενου in loc. fin. post λαμβανων,—an utterly unusual arrangement. See below again at xiv. 4.
iii. 12. Omit και εξω ου μη εξελθη ετι ϗ γραψω επ αυτον το ονομα του θεου μου ϗ το ονομα της πολεως.
viii. 5. —φωναι και
ix. 15. ελυσαν pro ελυθησαν So also (aeth sah) alone of Versions.
x. 11. επι πολλοις· pro επι λαοις,
xii. 11. —δια sec. (also 67-120).
xiii. 4 fin. αὐτό pro μετ' αυτου (So aeth).
xiv. 4. Transponunt claus. οι μετα γυναικων . . . παρθενοι γαρ εισιν in loc. post υπαγη.
xviii. 23. —εν σοι sec.
xx. 3. τελεσθηναι pro τελεσθη (So also 59).
xxi. 19. λυχνιτης pro χαλκηδων (these three quite alone).
xxii. 6. γνωρισαι σοι pro δειξαι τοις δουλοις αυτου (υποδειξαι σοι 149-186).

We add the following list where 38 joins 97-122 and 214, and you get a fair idea of the recension :

i. 18. —των αιωνων
viii. 12. και μη φανη η ημερα ϗ η νυξ ομοιως
ix. 1. επι της γης pro εις την γην (So also 113 syr copt).
x. 11. προφητευσαι παλιν
xi. 12. εθεωρουν pro εθεωρησαν (*syr*S). xiii. 10. θλιψις pro πιστις
xiv. 3. —ενωπιον του θρονου και
6. τοις καθημενοις (and 176-206)
xvi. 13. ως βατραχους (and 18 etc.).
xvii. 5. —ονομα (and *syr*S arm 2. Cass.).
xviii. 3. πεποκασι
11. κλαυσουσιν επ αυτη ϗ πενθησουσιν
xxi. 23. +αὔτη post πολις.

Notice also the following:

i. 6. —και το κρατος with 97-122 and only 102 164 [non 166] *boh*ᴳ.
ii. 1. —επτα sec. with 97-122 and only 16 38 69 102 121 122 180 *syr*S.
14. —εκει with 97-122 and only fam 62, 200 boh.
iii. 18. χρυσιον (—παρ εμου) with 97-122 and only 31 fam 34.
ix. 18. απεκτανθη with 97-122 and only 18 and few.
xi. 6. την γην οσακις εαν θελωσιν εν παση πληγη with 97 and 14-92.
xiii. 12. ποιειν pro ποιει pr. with 97 and only 59 81 106 126.
16. της δεξιας αυτων with 97 and only 38 130 (220).
xv. 6. λινουν with 97 and only B 14 18 etc.
xxi. 21. πυλῶν pro πυλώνων with 97 and only 38 61 63 121 217.

Nearly all the above relate to leading questions in the text, and we are happy to have found this third member of the small group.

GROUP 95-127-215.

Apoc. 215. Apoc. 215. Athos, Iberorum 56, now (anno 1925) No. 728. [Greg. 1006. Soden α 1174]. Photographed by Univ. Mich. (Dr. Lake and Mr. Swain, 1925). Contains the four Evangelia and Apoc. [XI] possibly X.

This is one of the daintiest MSS. in the collection, as fresh and neat as when the scribe finished it, and turns out to belong to the 'jam-pot' family. It may be remembered how Curzon describes (in his 'Monasteries of the Levant,' p. 350) the acquisition at Caracalla of what is now our Apoc. 95, after the Hegoumenos thought he wanted the leaves for sealing jam-pots. Well, this beautiful MS. 215 is a sister of 95 and of 127. At least 95 runs with us after ch. xi., and 127 is sisterly throughout. Further, 95 is lacking after xx. 11, but 215 runs to the end.

The group 95-127-215 (often joined by 32 36 56 111 or 146 or 159 or 178) is peculiarly interesting, because it is a kind of composite of ℵ and of A in ancient readings, while it goes out of the way to recall other hoary old readings, besides some of more doubtful date and origin.

It is quite opposed to the B grouping, and thus favours the Textus Receptus in a great measure, where the older uncials are grouped in support.

This threefold group of 95-127-215—all MSS. of the eleventh century—are in no way directly related to each other, and are independent copies or 'studies' of a good old exemplar.

To descend to particulars as to the MS. in hand, No. 215. Whereas in 127 (at Lesbos) there is no use made of iota post., and ιδον is constant, we have in 215 a very free use of iota post., but ειδον consistently throughout. Iota post., as with 95, is often inserted by 215 in ζωιων, but only twice with ἀδης and never with ὠδης. Occasional absence of breathings indicates very early XIᵗʰ century, taking us back perhaps nearly to the Xᵗʰ, as with 200. Breathings are both square and round. κρῖμα generally so, only once κρίμα.

The ink is very brown, as the faintness of the photographs shows us, and our MS. takes us with it 900 years to a point where they were copying uncials and still joining almost every word together. This beautifully written MS. is therefore more trying to the eyes than the very rough No. 211 which we had just put down. Diæresis is made with two small strokes ῠ instead of with dots.

The collation will show the grouping in exceptional readings as at xviii. 16 μαργαρίτη, xxi. 6 γεγονασιν, including often 146.

A few new ones remain, so far unaccountable. These are as follows:

iii. 1. —και init. (with sah boh[duobus] and Prim.).
9. γνώσωσιν pro γνῶσιν (Al. aliq. γνωσονται).
18. χρυσιον απ' εμου (with 113 only).
iv. 10. αὐτῶι pro αυτων
v. 6. —και οφθαλμους επτα (with 130 143 al. pauc.).
11. —και χιλιαδες χιλιαδων (with 130 146).
N.B. vi. 3. την σφραγιδα την ετεραν (pro δευτεραν)
vii. 9. —ενωπιον του αρνιου (So 122 only).
14. απο θλιψεως (Cf. A).
16. +ετι post ο ηλιος (with ℵ 56).
viii. 5. —φωναι και (but so 97-122).
N.B. ix. 17. θωρακας πυρινους-υακινθινους (—και) Compare xix. 14 λευκο-βυσσινον where 95-127 agree, also xvii. 4 κοκκινον-κεχρυσωμενον where 95-127 agree.
xi. 11. εισηλθεν αυτοις εκ του θεου New. Cf. sah. Cf. C 119. (εισηλθεν εν αυτοις, —εκ του θεου 127).
xii. 5. —παντα (with boh arab).
8. ισχυσαν and αυτω (Not 127 = ισχυσαν and αυτων).
11. αυτου pro αυτων sec. Alone.
15. —εκ του στοματος αυτου (So 113 arm 1).
xiii. 2. —στομα sec. (So 38-178-203-240 59 f. 114 130 189 syr aeth arm).
N.B. 12. παντα pro πασαν Alone.
fin. —αυτου (with P 14-92 22* 113 124 200).
16. —και τους πλουσιους usque ad δουλους New.
N.B. xiv. 5. ἀμώμητοι γαρ εισι (So fam 7).
xv. 2. εστωτες New ut vid.
4. προσκυνησουσι σε κε̅ pro προσκυνησουσιν ενωπιον σου, but in margin by a somewhat later hand γρ ενοπιον σου κε̅. About the only marginal note throughout.
xvi. 13. —ακαθαρτα (So 49 f. 61 146-155*com.*).
14. —της ημερας εκεινης της μεγαλης Alone.
21. απο pro εκ
xvii. 1. —της μεγαλης So, however, 146*com.* and *syr*S.
xviii. 6. ὃ pro ᾧ (with 7 200 and a few).
13. κιναμων* vid.
xix. 11. +και ante καλουμενος
19. συναγμενα
20. —οι δυο (only 75 arm aeth gig. Trsp. in fine f. 61).
xx. 5. τα χιλια ετι (for ετη).
6. επι τουτον So Hipp. and sah.
8. ὡς ὁ ἄμμος So 98 only teste Scr. Does he mean 95? [non 127].
N.B. xxi. 12. ἅτινα pro ἃ (So only 176-206).
13. —και απο νοτου (So 31 108 161* 167). A mere error.
24. φερωσι (So 113).
25. κλεισθήσωσιν Alone.
{ xxii. 6. οὗτοι ὁ λόγοι sic
{ 15. ὁ: φαρμακοὶ sic
17. —και ο ακουων ειπατω ελθε (with 35[non fam] 90 139 142 164-166 200 aeth arm Tyc., but probably an error of homoioteleuton).

A corrector—(and but few have tried their hand)—has completely erased αυτην in the phrase "ιδου δεδωκα ενωπιον σου θυραν ανεωγμενην, ἣν ουδεις δυναται κλεισαι αυτην" as if the last word were redundant, but nowhere else has anyone ventured to remove the other redundancies in relative clauses, with which the Apocalypse abounds.

In xviii. 3 στρηνους is indeterminate. It may have stood στηνους. A corrector has been at work and would read στρηνους or θρηνους. The latter would be new.

At xix. 11 we read κρϊνεῖ against 127.

Of course we have practically all the 127 readings (see that MS.) except that επι for ετι in xx. 3 turns out to be a mistake on the part of 127.

We hold 'the King of the Ages' in xv. 3, and λιθου for ξυλου in xviii. 12; μετωπον pro ιματιον at xix. 16; the curious αχρι επι at vi. 8, the unusual position of ολη after εγενετο tert. in vi. 12 instead of after σεληνη, both these things indicating fidelity to a common archetype; —υιων before ιηλ in vii. 4; +λογον post μαρτυσι μου at xi. 3; κατα του ονοματος xvi. 9; +ακαθαρτων xvi. 14; +τοπον post ερημον xvii. 3; +αυτων xvii. 17; —κυριος xviii. 8; επεβαλλον xviii. 19; +ο κυριος xix. 2. So 159, +κυριος 95-127 172-217; +αινειτε xix. 5; ερραντισμενον xix. 13 with Hippolytus; +ειδον and +του θηριου xix. 4; επι ορος xxi. 10; —ην xxi. 21; εξουσι xxii. 5. So also 143 146 200 A and sah; —τουτου xxii. 9; and οἴκω for ναῷ at iii. 12 with the Bohairic alone, which comes suddenly out of a clear sky, as heretofore the traditional text had flowed smoothly, and this was the first intimation of the archetype of 127 (for 95 only comes in at ch. xi.). But at xxi. 12 we substitute του ιηλ for των υιων ιηλ against 127, which reads υιων ιηλ.

At xxii. 14 we read οι πλυνυντες τας στολας αυτων. The υ, very small, seems definite, as we detect two tiny dots of diæresis above it in another ink.

At xvi. 3 we have ζωης for ζωσα with CA 95-127, 111 and aeth, while 200 reads ζωων, and so many omit.

At xvi. 3 again, the curious +των: 'απεθανε των εν τη θαλασση' has the support of 36 and 159 as well as of 95-127 and *syr*Σ, (+τα CAE 111 aliq.).

Sections. As this MS. is the key-MS. to this remarkable and important group 95-127-215, is itself of very respectable age, and traces back we do not know how far, it may be of sufficient interest to record the sections into which the original text must have been divided. The scribe is his own rubricator and indicates new sections by a somewhat larger letter in the margin. Of course these are not numbered. He has also missed some and then indicates the miss by a line ⁓ in the margin. They amount in all, including these places, to 42 (not counting of course section one) =43 (compared to the usual larger κεφαλαια numbering 72), but I think the copying scribe must have missed some. Here is the list:

No. 2 is at i. 10 (not i. 9), next ii. 8, 12, 18, 24, iii. 1, 7, 14, iv. 1, 2?, v. 1 (none at v. 5), vi. 1 (none at vi. 3), vi. 5 (none at vi. 7). After this nothing to viii. 1, 8, 10, 12, ix. 1, 13 (mark), x. 8, xi. 7 (mark), 15 (mark), xii. 3, 12 (middle of verse), 17, xiii. 11 (mark), xiv. 1, 8, 13, 14, 17, xv. 1 (none at xvi. 1), xvi. 12, xvii. 1, 8 (mark), 11 (mark), xviii. 1, 21, xix. 1, 11 (mark), (none at xx. 1), xx. 11, xxi. 1, and none thereafter.

Apoc. 216. Athos, Iberorum 382. [Greg. 2254. Sod. Αν[604]]. [XVI]. Apoc. 216.

Lambros, p. 112, 2[d] col., refers to it (in a huge volume of Miscellanies, pp. 468-526), as if it might be only Andreas' commentary without the text. Soden says 'nicht schematisirt.' Gregory only took it out of Soden. However, this is all settled by finding it is a sixteenth century duplicate of our 169 in the same monastery. It is either a copy of 169 or of the older parent; almost impossible to say which. Very respectably copied for so late a date, and ν εφελκ. faithfully reproduced wherever the scribe found it before him.

The text, as we know, is basically of the 1 family, but particularly of E 17, 67-120, 172-217 and 95-127-215, with touches of 56. Like 169 it shows traces of short στιχοι and must be quite old. All the peculiarities of 169 are present, even to ωσει σακκος in vi. 12.

The following are the exceptions:

ειδα for οιδα twice with 218, ακουετω and ακοσατω, ευχαριστειαν, and:

iv. 9.	—και οταν δωσουσι	mere errors.
v. 2.	—και ειδον αγγελον
8.	—και φιαλας	An error, although Jul. Firm. supports with 'aureas citharas' tantum.
vii. 9.	μετα δε ταυτα
ibid.	εκ παντου εθνου
17.	ζωσαν pro ζωσας
xii. 4.	ἕστησεν pro ἕστηκεν
5.	—και ετεκεν υιον
ibid.	ραβδω σιδηρουν.

I neglect some other small things, such as a preference for εδωθη over εδοθη, and only record them in case another document should appear from which the scribe copied and not from 169 direct.

Sometimes the marginal readings of 169 appear in the text as at:

ii. 17 +νικωσαν και τη δοξη λαμπραν before ψηφον λευκην, and at xv. 3 ο βασιλευς των αιωνων boldly appears in the text, which is only in the margin of 169, and at xviii. 17 the scribe prefers the και πας ο επι ποντον πλεων of 169's margin to his text of: ο επι των πλοιων πλεων.

We oppose 169 at xxii. 3 with λατρευουσιν for λατρευσουσιν, and add αμην at xxii. 5 fin. We neglect the graphic ελεγον of 169's text at xxii. 17 for the conventional λεγουσιν.

GROUP 51-90-172=217-246.

Apoc. 217. Athos, Iberorum 137 (hodie; olim 589). [Greg. 2258. Sod. α 1770]. [XVI] Bi-columnar, imitating an older form.

This is a mere copy of our Apoc. 172, and may be neglected except in so far as it indicates the decadence of scholarly care and accuracy after a certain date. The scribe of 172 is exceedingly accurate, and fortunately for us, because his text proves to be of considerable importance as to the origin and history of the B recension.

Although I have proved beyond peradventure that 217 is a mere copy—and intended to be a servile copy—of 172 (see 172-217 throughout the collations), the later scribe cannot always copy correctly. I have picked up just about 100 minor cases of inaccuracy, and a few other major ones, as at:

i. 2/3 the addition of ατινα εισι και α χρη γενεσθαι μετα ταυτα, which does not belong in this recension at all.
xiv. 8 init. +και ειδον, an unknown addition.
18. εκ του πυρος, an unknown variant.
xvi. 3. Insertion of ζωσα, doubtless from memory.
20. Omission of ορη, not omitted by any of our codices.
21. Omission of both αὔτη and αὐτῆς: 'ἡ πληγη σφοδρα.'
xxi. 21. πυλῶν for πυλώνων, from misreading a ligature πϋλῶν although the accent should have warned him.

But what shall we say of ἀθάνατος for the ὁ θανατος of all, as well as of the parent copy here at vi. 8?

I was asked recently if I had any cursives which agreed especially with the uncial MSS. C and A. And I said 'No.' There are groups that go with one or the other (the general combination is with CAB) but no special affinity. Yet I find here the great MS. A writes ὁ ἀθάνατος και ὁ ᾅδης, and its only support will now be this poor little monk's mal-copy of 172. For we shall have to quote A 217, and few will know or bother to know that the support is valueless.

In another case the copyist deliberately changes πεπωκασι, at xviii. 3, of our careful MS. 172, to πεπτωκασι, and this is quite deliberate, for a tall τ was inserted after the word was written.

But enough of this. I need not list the differences, because the matter of a copy seems perfectly certain.

Reference is asked to our account of 172, the group being 51-90-172-217-246 as to ch. i–xi, and (more or less) E 56-95-127-172-178-217 and 169 after ch. xi. 17. Also see 169 in the same monastery of a date of XII/XIII with marginal alternatives by a contemporary hand.

Our scribe insists on writing εν μεσω ουρανηματι throughout, but against his exemplar of 172.

GROUP 61-95-126-127-215-218-219. Special type of B family with a sub-relation to Oecumenius text after ch. xiv.

Apoc. 218. Athos, Iberorum formerly 698, now (anno 1925) No. 1069. [Greg. 2256. Sod. α 1577]. [xv]. Apoc. 218.

Photos by courtesy of the University of Michigan. Late MS. in bad condition.

As to its illegibility. Gregory only took it from Soden, and Soden says: 'Nicht schematisirt. Papier. Verdorben, verstümmelt und unleserlich.' We will see. The latter is not true. It is perfectly legible for the greater part. I have read every word and traced much that is not visible to the eye; only one very bad part occurs at xx. 4/6, where the scribe makes blunder after blunder and tries to rectify out of order and the page is in sad condition.

I would gladly have left it alone, as after going through the earlier chapters it seemed to be a worthless and rough kind of document, full of utterly unscholarly spelling and imposition of breathings. After ii. 11 right in the text we have ζητει επι των επιλειπων ε̄ εκκλησιων εις το τελος της αποκαλυψεως, and then immediately follows iv. 1 which runs complete to xx. 12, where unfortunately the MS. breaks off hopelessly damaged, by water or otherwise, and the remaining leaves are evidently missing, so that we never get the messages to the five churches of Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia and Laodicea, which were consigned to the end of the book. There is only one other lacuna of a page covering xviii. 2-13.

However we plodded on through all the mess and muss of strange spelling and phonetic blunders and loss of text from homoioteleuton, and happily so, for the MS. not only swells and controls the now famous little group headed by 61 (and which is now 61-95-126-127-215-218-219, at any rate in part), but provides certain novelties, which are not without interest.

Calabria. The man does not go so far astray with his accents, and his many ligatures are correct and consistent, but his itacisms and his breathings are terrible. He writes λεγωντες throughout and τεσαρος always with one sigma. I have now, however, come to this important conclusion —(which could never have been reached from a partial examination)—that he was a Calabrian, with Latin pronunciation and a leaning to the Greek forms and spellings of some of the Græco-Latin group 7-16-45-69 etc., but that he was copying an uncial without breathings or accents, and full of itacisms. Unlettered as was our scribe, he had undertaken a task beyond his faculties, so he could not separate his words properly, and his eye was perpetually misdirected to the place where it should have returned. ν εφελκ. is constant throughout, which surely points to direct copy of an uncial by this xv$^{\text{th}}$ cent. scribe, and absolutely no use is made of iota sub. or post. while even IX$^{\text{th}}$ or X$^{\text{th}}$ cent. cursives indulge freely in iota postscript. Neglecting, however, losses of text and a few monstra, we have here quite a valuable check on the 61 group, as represented particularly by 61-126 without some of the other members. Therefore, if I am right, we go in this MS. to the uncial source of the 61 recension, since 61-126 are free from ν εφελκ. It is a B-type, but a kind of super-type, which at some time before or after the B recension started, found a censor and a critic who introduced the special elements, from other documents, which stamp it as a thing of some value. Besides, after ch. xiv. we are a good deal with the Oecumenian text of 146.

We must allow one finesse to the curiously-minded perpetrator of this MS., for he writes πορευεται instead of εκπορευεται at xix. 15, finding the εκ redundant after εκ του στοματος, and this against the family.

Thus, again we find at xvi. 21 βιαῖα for μεγαλη, corresponding alone to Primasius' ingens. But this is not by any means all. In this same verse are two more readings peculiar to the small 61 group, viz. the reversed order of καταβαινει ως ταλαντιαια and εκ της χαλαζης της πληγης.

Then take these other strange readings:

In the very first verse we omit ὁ θεος with Dion. Alex. and we often run across such MSS. as 113 130 later, which sympathy the other members of the group do not exhibit.

That our man was a Latin I think I can prove from xvi. 14, where he writes alone among Greeks: 'του παντοκρατορος θεου'—(instead of του θεου του παντοκρατορος)—which is exactly the 'Omnipotentis Dei' of vg and Prim.

Again take iv. 1 θυραν ανεωγμενην (instead of the Greek nominative). So Oxyr[1080] 69 and 143. Observe the ostium apertum of the Latins.

Also at xvii. 5 επι τω μετωπω with only 146. Cf. latt 'in fronte.'

And once more at ii. 5 προτερα for πρωτα with 121 only = priora of the Latins. These things of course can only be apprehended here and there.

It is a little hard to know how he got καλουσιν for βαλλουσι in iv. 10, yet, if I remember right, ℵ is guilty of this (at ii. 22) writing καλω for βαλλω, which remains alone to this day.

At xiv. 4 ακολουθησαντες for ακολουθουντες of 61-126 108 and syr is duly maintained by 218, showing care in general copying.

At v. 7 ελαβεν for ειληφεν seems new, but most likely belonged to the original.

At vi. 8 we have λευκος for χλωρος (showing a fidelity of copying) with 95-126, and there 61 has re-written the word.

At vi. 12 we are treated to a startling novelty. The group splits as to ὁλη with σεληνη, 95 places it before σεληνη, 61-126 after σεληνη, while 127-215 alone place it after εγενετο tert., and our MS. 218 leaves it out! But it goes further than this, and gives the whole clause thus:

"και ο ηλιος ως σακος τριχινος εγενετο μεγας · και η σεληνη εἰς αιμα μετετραφη."

This, digested in the collation, shows as follows:

"—εγενετο μελας, σακος, +εγενετο μεγας (not μελας) post τριχινος, [ἡ σεληνη absque ὁλη], —εγενετο post σεληνη, εἰς αἱμα pro ὡς αἱμα, and fin. +μετετραφη."

Nothing of this kind appears elsewhere. The family is unacquainted with it. Aeth says: "et luna quidem sicut sanguis facta est in totalitate sua," which is perhaps the nearest to 218. For 'εγενετο ως αιμα' 164 (a half-sister-text), substitutes 'σκοτος εγενετο και αιματωδης,' while 166, the full-sister to 164, omits ως αιμα, and the scholia are silent. This αιματωδης is the equivalent of sanguinea of three Latin Fathers and occurs in the Commentaries.

Another curious place is at viii. 7, where, after μεμιγμενον our MS. omits αιματι και εβληθη εις την γην and substitutes ἐνέπεσεν. Thus:

"και εγενετο χαλαζα και πυρ μεμιγμενων (sic) ἐνεπεσεν."

We have to go to arm and aeth to find anything approaching this.

At ix. 5 we omit altogether 'οταν παιση ανθρωπον,' avoiding the famous difficulty of selection of the right verb, and thus take another leaf out of aeth's book, elsewhere so often shirking well-known textual difficulties. Beyond all this observe the following:

i. 14. +το προσωπον αυτου inter εριον et λευκον

viii. 1. την ευδομην σφραγιδα New order, with only sah and aeth.

12. —αυτων sah only (—το τριτον αυτων boh).

xi. 11. προς αυτους Appears to be new.

18. —κριθηναι Appears to be new.

xii. 4. —ινα οταν τεκη (and καταφαγειν at end) New with sah[1]/[4].

6. προς την ερημον Appears new. (Victorin: 'ad illum locum').

9 fin. —εβληθησαν No Greeks (Tisch. and Horner err as to 49), but with sah[1]/[4] again, and Tyc 2. Vict. Hier[Esai].

11. και αυτον ενικησαν pro και αυτοι ενικησαν αυτον (—αυτον 122 220* *syr*S).

xii. 15. ποταμου pro ως ποταμον xiii. 7. ενικησεν pro νικησαι So Prim. [sed vincere Auct. prom.].
18. Omit altogether the number of the beast. Quite a novelty (with 109*txt* 201*txt*). Note also —οταν παιση ανθρωπον at ix. 5 by 218[non fam].
xiv. 14. καθημενον υιον (—ομοιος) So 130 and aeth Tyc 2. only.
xv. 6. —περι τα στηθη Alone. (But aeth, equally alone, transfers to end of verse).
xvi. 8. εἰς (vid. [waterstain]) τον ηλιον Instead of επι· of all Greeks, Coptic, Syriac, and Armenian. The Latins divide. Most have super solem, but vg ps-Ambr. and aeth in solem, and gig in sole.
18. —τηλικουτος σεισμος ουτω μεγας Only 189 of Greeks but boh omn. ps-Ambr. and Prim.
xvii. 4. —πυρφυρα και κοκκινω και κεχρ. Reading: 'γυνη περιβεβλημενη χρυσιον.' New χρυσιον (and again xviii. 16), and λιθον τιμιον and μαργαριτας.
13. —εαυτων So only arm 2. a. and ps-Ambr.
14. —και οι μετ αυτου
xviii. 13. ιππου So only 72 and copt. (ιππον ℵ[a] 111 152 222* ?).
14. —και τα λαμπρα So 149 only and sah and arm 2.
17. —μια ωρα Alone.
20. The order: ευφραινου ουνε επ' αυτην No other Greeks. Only Tyc 2. copt (arm ουρανοι).
xix. 4. —και τα τεσσαρα ζωα Alone.
7. The strange order: ορα μη και λεγει μοι. No others. Only 159 omits και λεγει μοι and aeth omits ορα μη.
15. πορευεται pro εκπορευεται avoiding the double εκ.
18. —και σαρκας παντων with sah, but also —ελευθερων και δουλων vid.
xx. 4. —και επι την χειρα αυτων (So only 12).
6. και βασιλευσουσιν μετ' αυτου +του χριστου Alone. (113 substitutes του χ̄ῡ for μετ' αυτου).

Of semi-monstra, besides καλουσιν above, observe:

ix. 21. κριματων pro κλεμματων (*Sah syr*S and Prim. omit the phrase).
xi. 16. επι τους θρονους pro επι τα προσωπα

The forms το θελημαν (iv. 11), ϗ παν κτιμαν (v. 13), αεραν (xvi. 17), εικοναν (xiii. 14) with the unusual nu are worthy of record. σφραγιδαν only thrice vi. 3, 5, 7.

The family readings are well defined. Our first clear view is at:

iv. 5. καιομεναι πυρος So 61-95-126 164-166 218 Hier. (with 219 to follow).

Next: 10. —ενωπιον του θρονου (sec. loco) 61-95-126 164-166 218 and 219.

9. —και ειχον θωρακας ως θωρακας σιδηρους All the family and ps-Ambr. (but not the collateral 164*-166).

x. 11. λαου pro λαοις fam 61 and 74 166 Prim. [non 164].

A peculiar arrangement is found at:

xi. 6/7 where, by the omission of παση πληγη, και οταν τελεσωσι we read: την γην · οσακις εαν θελησωσιν την μαρτυριαν αυτων (—παση πληγη) with 61-95-126 74 (103-112) 218-219 arm 2. (Obs. +τον δρομον αυτων και by Hipp.).

18. εθνων pro νεκρων All the family and f. 38 74 124* 200.

xii. 6. παρα pro απο 218 with 164-166 only. This shows a common source back of the whole family, changed by 61-95-126 (and 219 to follow), but the recension changes at this point as regards 95.

14. —εκει 61-126-218-219 copt h harl.

xiv. 2. —φωνην pr. 61-126-218-219 (which now becomes the strict family).

18. οιος ου γεγονεν 61-126-218-219 and 188.

xvii. 3. ανηνεγκαν (sic) μαι pro απ̄ηνεγκε με 218, while ανηνεγκε με is read by 61-126-219.

4. Order: ποτηριον εν τη χειρι αυτης χρυσουν So 61-126-218-219 and 146-155.

11. εσται pro εστι pr. So 61-126-218-219 and 59. There are three εστι in the verse. We only change one, exactly with the family.

12. Order: μετα του θηριου λαμβανουσιν So fam 61 and fam 21 only (without 146).

15. Order: λαοι και γλωσσαι +εισιν (=*syr*S) και εθνοι και οχλοι So 61-126-218-219.

xviii. 22. Order: ετι εν σοι pr. So 61-126-218-219 and 146-155.

ibid. —και φωνη μυλου usque ad fin. vers. and so 61-126-218-219 and a number of others.

23. +φωνη ante νυμφιας (vel νυμφις) 218. So C 19 and 126 200 218-219 (om. claus. 61 errore).

xix. 13. +πορφυρουν post ιματιον So fam 25 and 61-126-218-219, both families entire.

20. την εικονα So ℵ fam 38 fam 61, 111 and 146-155 191 and 220 latt.

ibid. Order: οι δυο transferred to end of verse. Only 61-126-218-219. (Om. 75 215 gig arm aeth).

In one case, at any rate, the recension (at iii. 8) goes back to Origen, and that in the very important verse: 'Behold I set before thee (give) a door wide-open.' Here most MSS. read ιδου δεδωκα ενωπιον σου θυρα(ν) ανεωμενη(ν), but Origen with 61-95-126-219 (only 218 has a hiatus) read: ιδου δεδωκα θυραν ενωπιον σου ανεωγμενην. It would be curious if this little key proved to be correct and our 61 recension proved to be Origenistic. Origen.

A large measure of agreement with the Oec. MSS. 146-155, apart from the strict 61-126 family, deserves serious attention when considering the age of our parent text. Please note this in the collations.

It is difficult to know whence the source of the collateral agreement of 164 and 166. These trace to a somewhat similar recension, in agreement with us for about twenty per cent.

The affinity with 215 precludes any idea of a late tradition in many of the passages involved, and a reference to the Collations will give the best picture.

At xviii. 5 —αυτης of our family seems to be alone with Hippolytus.

GROUP 61-95-126-127-215-218-219.

Apoc. 219. Athos, Kutlumesi 82. [Greg. 371 old, 1859 new. Sod. α 402]. XIII. Apoc. 219.
Also contains the Acts.

The first page is missing in the photographs (supplied through the courtesy of Harvard College and taken by a local monk). We lack inscription and i. 1-5. The photos begin (f°. 122) with the last word of verse 5 αυτου... Perhaps the first page is really wanting.

It develops at once as another member of the 61-95-126-218 family, with which 159 and 164-166 have so much to do in exceptional readings, up to ch. xii. with 95, and with which *syr*S is often affiliated in these places.

No iota post. or subscript. Only three cases of ν εφελκ. throughout, each time: ειπεν μοι. Numerals nearly always in full.

The handwriting is rough and somewhat crude, but the scribe does not make many blunders and is quite true to type. Thus we find all the family readings, as can be seen from this selection:

More rarely is there deviation to another type, as at:

iii. 15. —οφελον ψυχρος εις η ζεστος with A 1-208 47 100 f. 114.
iv. 9. +και προσκυνησωσι ante τω ζωντι Not the family, except 95, which with 93 159 and 164-166 add και προσκυνησουσι.
vi. 17. σωθηναι pro σταθηναι with all fam 4 and 40-210, but not others of 61 family.
vii. 5. —εκ φυλης ρουβην ιβ χιλ. with 12 91 164 and 218 only.
x. 6. +ο ante χρονος with only 16 and 228 fortuitously.
xviii. 24. ευρεθησαν with all fam 7 14-92 176-206 sah, but not the rest of fam 61.
xxi. 12. —των υιων with 27 47 65 146*com.* 149 155*txt* (hiat 218) *syr*S, but not 61.

Of new things observe only:

vii. 8. —εκ φυλης βενιαμιν ιβ χιλ. εσφραγ. which is exceptionally careless.
viii. 9. ἐχοντὰς pro τα εχοντα ante ψυχας xviii. 23. ἀκουτισθῇ pro ακουσθη (Notice ακουστη of 218, however, in xviii. 22).
xxii. 19. —της αγιας But this is probably a family omission, 61-126-218 being all wanting here.

The above is a pretty good record, especially when an unusual type of text is being copied.

Antipas. There are a few scholia in the early chapters. In fact, curious room was left for them at first, but this was soon abandoned. A footnote to ii. 13 says: "ἀντίπας ὁ μάρτυς · ἱερευς ἦν καὶ ἐκώλυε τὰ ἀκάθαρτα πνεύματα ἐνεργ̂^ ἐν τοῖς ναοῖς εἰδώλων." After the middle of the vi[th] chapter the scholia cease, but at the foot of the page containing xiii. 18 a footnote intrudes and reads: "ἐστι δὲ ἡ ἑρμηνεία τοῦ ὀνόματος τοῦ θηρίου · εὐανθάσ · τοῦτο δε εἰρηκεν εἰρηναῖος ἐπίσκοπος λουγδόων γαλλίας."

Euanthas. Now εὐανθας (5+400+1+50+9+1+200) does equate 666, but Irenaeus' full remarks are not available.

The com. does not resume until the xxi[st] chapter.

As bearing on polyglot matters, notice a most peculiar place in this recension, where 61-126-218-219 (all without any hesitation) substitute the very unusual word βιαῖα for μεγάλη in xvi. 21 after χάλαζα. Boh alone omits μεγαλη. Arm and syr make no change, but Prim. substitutes ingens for the magna of the Latins. "Grando magna" here comes together, and there was room for Primasius' 'ingens' instead of magna.

See also xvii. 18 η πολις του θεου pro η πολις η μεγαλη. No others, but in boh ⲙ̄ⲃⲁⲕ ⲧⲉ. ⲑⲏ might have been misread for ⲙ̄ⲃⲁⲕⲓ του θεου.

It is impossible to date the 61-126-218-219 recension; much of it is conformed to the B type, but the peculiarities remaining are not all so young. We see the recension of Prim. intruding above (at xvi. 21), and in the xv[th] and xvi[th] chapters (after the 95 support is withdrawn) Oecumenius supports twice, see xv. 3 αδουσιν ωδην (—την) only 61-126-218-219 and 146-155; xvi. 13 —ακαθαρτα 61-126-218-219 and 146-155 besides 215; and Oec. supports here and there elsewhere, as at xi. 1 και μετρησαι 61-95-126-219, 111 and 146*txt* only (και μετρισε 218); xi. 18 εθνων pro νεκρων 61-95?-126-218-219 and f. 38 74 124* 146*txt* & com. 200; xiii. 5 βλασφημια 27 and 61-126-219, 146*txt* & com.; and a very peculiar order in xvii. 4 εχουσα ποτηριον εν τη χειρι αυτης χρυσουν 61-126-218-219 and 146-155, instead of εχουσα χρυσουν ποτηριον or ποτηριον χρυσουν κ.τ.λ.; xviii. 22 ετι εν σοι pr.; xix. 20 την εικονα, Date.
so that undoubtedly the work of this recension is in two separate halves.

19 has some special sympathy, and in such peculiar places that it is not by any means fortuitous.

The value of this MS. 219 consists in its being complete up to the end. Apoc. 61 ends at xxii. 8 ἰῶ' ὁ ἀκου... and 126 at xxii. 1 και εδειξε... and 218 at xx. 12 fin. with the previous verses nearly illegible.

Within these limits Apoc. 219 yields this additional information: That as a whole the B type or in other places the 'cursive' type (without B) is used. For instance, at xxii. 6 we omit δειξαι τοις δουλοις αυτου, but here 61 is still extant and bears us out.

At xxii. 9 we add της προφητειας after λογους with only 32 and 38[non 178] 176-206 191 220.

At xxii. 16 we read η ριζα δᾱδ και το γενος with the whole fam 25 only, and at xxii. 19 we omit της αγιας alone. But doubtless 61-126-218 would have confirmed, if extant.

Subscription after αμην and on the same line +Ἵλεως ἔσο τοῖς πᾶσι κε̄·

Then this: ·Ẋ· θῦ το δῶιον (vid.) καὶ πόνος Νικολαου ·Ẋ·

Then larger: + Οἱ ἀναγινώσκοντες εὔχεσθε ὑπὲρ τοῦ γρα-ψαντος μονα̃χ νικολ^α τοῦ Γαλησιώτου.

Whence this strange little recension of 61-126-218-219 (with 95 up to ch. xii.)?

In spots it takes us to high antiquity. In others it is absolutely alone.

The most striking substitution of all is βιαῖα for μεγαλη in xvi. 21. Primasius there substitutes ingens for magna as set forth above. See also xiv. 4 ακολουθησαντες for ακολουθουντες with (syr).

Apoc. 219 is very seldom independent in opposing 61-126, but at xviii. 3 it writes deliberately πεπωκασι against πεπτωκασι of 61-126 al. plur. (hiat 218). κρῖμα is always thus accented, and circumflex is favoured to such words as μῦρον, στῦλον, μῦλον. Twice the accusative follows μετα.

Collated before I had received photos of the previous MS. 218. See description ante. Unfortunately 218 is wanting in the latter chapters.

GROUP 191-220. Composite type (partly Complutensian).

Apoc. 220.

Apoc. 220. Athos, Laura A 91. [XIV]. [Greg. old —, new 1732. Sod. α 405].

This MS. is dated 6893, whether by the original scribe or someone else, which corresponds to A.D. 1385, and this concords with the approximate date of most of these Laura MSS. of the Apocalypse. Another (our Apoc. 192 = Laura A 99) also has a date, but as it is given somewhat fantastically and acrostically, I can only approximate it, but it would seem to be 1317 (6000+800+5×5=6825−5508=1317).

The present MS. is written in one column in very neat and handsome writing of the period, while 192 is written in double columns.

Iota postscript is absent—not even employed with ᾅδης and its cases—and iota subscript is quite rare, occurring in the whole book only at ii. 2 δύνῃ (so 191), and at xviii. 14/15 with ἐμπορεύσῃ in the extraneous addition at that place (not 191).

There are a few unique readings, and a few alternative readings both in the text and in the margin, all by the original scribe. Thus, he stops to write λύ over λουσαντι in the text at i. 5, and επι in the margin at i. 7 as an alternative to μετα. The latter is found in C and the Oec. text 146-155 only (txt. & com.). In ch. iii. occur four marginal readings, στήριξον for τηρησον of the text (ver. 2), οὕτως for οὗτος of the text (ver. 5), τοῦ ᾅδου for τοῦ δᾶδ (ver. 7) with fam 7 119*[non fam] 121 143 151 and a few, and ἥκωσι for ἥξουσι of the text (ver. 9), the latter being new. Nothing then until ix. 17, where an omission is supplied.

But at x. 3 where βρυχαται is used in the text (as only by fam 119) instead of μυκαται, we find marg. the entirely new variant of ὠρύεται. This proves what had been hinted at before that the 119 type was familiar to the scribe, but ὠρύεται comes probably from a lost commentary, which may be found at Athos (Irenaeus?), unless it comes from the phrase in Oecumenius' commentary, which runs "και ἔκραζε φωνῇ μεγάλῃ ὥσπερ λέων μυκᾶται· καὶ τὰ ἴσα λέουσι ὠρύσασθαι τὸν ἅγιον ἄγγελον, τῆς ὀργῆς ἐστὶ σύμβολον τῆς κατὰ τῶν ἀσεβῶν," but Oec. uses the usual ωσπερ λεων, whereas our MS. varies with ως λεων and may have been consulting another document. Compare xiii. 3 for unique agreement with 146.

At xii. 11 αυτον is added by first hand above the line (omitted by 111 *syr*S); same verse ονομα pro αιμα in text, but αιμα *marg. At xiv. 2 we have και φωνην ηκουσα ως κιθ. κιθ. in the text, and the variant in *marg of και ἡ φωνη ἣν ηκουσα, ως [κιθ. κιθ.]. At xiv. 9 we find ἐπὶ τοῦ (τὸ) μετώπου (ον) *sic. At xiv. 14 επι τῆς (ην) νεφελῆς (ην) the addition probably by first hand, and, same verse: καθήμενος (ον) ὅμοιος (ον) and ἔχων (οντα). At xvii. 16 thus: μισοῦσι (στη). At xix. 17 τον δειπνον txt, but mg. το δειπνον, and [του μεγαλου θεου] txt, but το μεγα του θεου marg. At xxii. 1 κρυσταλον (λ) elsewhere two lambdas except on one occasion.

From the addition at xv. 8 it would seem to be nearest to 28 of the 21 family.

The only long note is at foot of the page containing the famous number of the beast (xiii. 18), and runs as follows:

ὀνόματα (τὰ) ἔχοντα τὸν ἀριθμὸν τοῦ ὀνόματος τοῦ ἀντιχρίστ· κύριμὲν, λαμπέτης· τειτάν· λατεῖνος· βενέδικτος· προσηγορικὰ δὲ, ὀνικητής· ὁ ἐπίσαλος (i.e. unstable)· κακὸς ὁδηγός· ἀληθὴς-βλαβερός (ruining)· παλαι βάσκανος (malignantly bewitching)· ἀμνὸς ἄδικος·

Stepping-stone.

This MS. is a stepping-stone between several families and the textus receptus. Closest to fam 21, it has some considerable elements of the Compl. type, and of 119 of the 1 family, sometimes of 1 itself and of 7, of 16, of 18, of 38, of 40, of 47, of 59 etc. in others, and links up fam 1, fam 10-37 etc. with the Oecumenian recension. The greater agreement is with fam 21 and fam 146.

Inscription is: αποκαλυψιc του αγιου αποστολου και ευαγγελιστου ιωαννου του θεολογου and subscription: τελοc τησ αποκαλυψεωc του αγιου ιω̃′ του θεολογου, followed by: ✝ ετουσ ,ςω̃′ϟγ λ̃ς η̃ : μηνι Δεκε^ρ^ βω̃′, κ̄ :—

It seems desirable to show the above affiliations, because this neat MS. unites four or five lines of transmission, and that quite smoothly, apart from the textual and marginal variants dealt with earlier. The contact with ℵ, Hipp., and Oec. and *syr*S is interesting, besides the Coptic sympathy of the 21 group.

Apoc. 191 at Andros was collated after this MS., but proves to be a full sister, so that where 191 is mutilated (iv. 1–xvi. 15) we can establish the text quite confidently from 220.

Composite, favouring Complutensian Group.

Apoc. 221. Athos, Laura 125 or β 5. [Greg. new 1733. Sod. α 303]. XI. Apoc. 221.
Photographed 1925, Lake and Swain. (Un. Mich.).

Very beautiful writing, and an extraordinarily correct and educated scribe. Not an accent out of place or incorrect, and no misspellings and no monstra, and no omissions due to homoioteleuton.

A few pages are misbound. After 283 verso go to 285 recto, skipping 284 recto and verso, and continue to 290 verso, then return to 284 recto and verso, thence to 291 recto, and thenceforward all is straight again.

The MS. is a composite of fam 21 and of the Complutensian family. I have to rank it in the Compl. group, as it favours this throughout. It is as if we were reading the Alcala publication 850 years ago, instead of 400 years ago, for page after page.

The beauty of the MS. has not discouraged some impish monks from scrawling nonsense in the margin and filling the last page with their gross draughtsmanship.

There is no subscription.

One little thing is noticeable. The scribe always writes ραβδω with a beta. I have entered some later MSS. as ραυδω and ευδομος because they mean an upsilon. Others, not recorded, write the u form of beta here there and everywhere, so I do not record them.

ειδον is absolutely constant, no ν εφελκ., no iota sub. or post. We may rank this with 47 (although a different text) as a careful churchly standard of the XI[th] century by a fully competent scribe, and accept it for the greater part as the most faithful representative of the Compl. group after ch. iv. We began with the δι' αγγελου of the 21 family, but do not repeat their δι' αστερων at xii. 1, as from v. onwards we are almost entirely Complutensian.

One curious little touch remains to be recorded. At xviii. 19 this careful scribe writes αὑτῶν for αὐτῶν in the phrase και εβαλον χουν επι τας κεφαλας αὐτῶν. Only the uncial C records this emphasis with εαυτων. I have recorded no other document so far for this small variant. C at xviii. 19.

At vii. 11 the same rough breathing is imposed, which accords with εαυτων of MS. 37 there. This 37 is another and more eclectic member of the Compl. group, and it and 221 are the members who had free access to an exemplar of the 21 family type. Thus, at xiv. 8 ἧς is introduced as an afterthought after αὐτῆς and before πεπότικε, which is only added by the 21 group and not by any Versions (except possibly aeth). In fact the place was carefully considered, for 28, of the 21 group, substitutes ἧς for αὐτῆς instead of adding.

This careful scribe of 221 writes πόρνων thus (not πορνῶν) at xvii. 5.

Opposite xx. 6, the Gog and Magog verse, the first hand has written in neat semi-uncials in the margin:

> κϋθϊκα (forsan σκϋθϊκα) > ἔθΝΗ ὑπὲρ > βάρϊα · Ἠ τ > οὐΝΝϊκα΄ sic.

At xxi. 12 we abandon the Compl. group to write του ιηλ (for των υιων ιηλ) with fam 21 once more.

Our earliest dated ms.

B type, but very early type without all the alterations. See 153–211.

poc. 222. Apoc. 222. This number was reserved for Athos, Laura 138 or β 18 [Greg. new 1734. Sod. α 105], and 225 for Laura ϵ 179, but these numbers must be merged here, and 225 disappear, because ϵ 179—(photographs by Swain, courtesy of Prof. Lake, in 1926)—turns out to be this very important early dated MS. of Gregory, No. 1734, labelled by him Laura 138 or β 18, which so far I had been unable to locate. Doubtless the library numbers have been changed. So henceforth 222 will be Laura ϵ 179, [Greg. 1734, Sod. α 105]. [XI]. There can be no question but that Gregory's description (p. 1176, Textkritik) of β 18 fits ϵ 179 all the way through. Gregory gives the date ͵ςφκγʹ (=1015 A.D.) which my photos of the Apoc. do not yield, but it occurs elsewhere in the book. The Apoc. does not stand last, but is followed by Prologue to St. Paul's Epistles (photo of first page I have) and the date comes after Hebrews, and ͵sφκ͞γ is quite correct, by the original hand. He writes προς εβραιους εγραφη απο ιταλιας δια τιμοθεου · στιχων ψ͞Ν · ετους ͵sφκ͞γ · ινδ ι͞γ μηνι ιουνιω ῖ (?) ᾶ, either 10 day or day first.

Gregory is quite right in stating that a later hand (XVI[th]) supplies xxii. 8-21, and that there are a few scholia towards the beginning of Apoc. He does not state, however, that there is a long one at xxi. 1 in neat semi-uncials beginning εἰρηναίου τοῦ ε̄ λογόυ. This looked exciting, but I find that it is not new, and occurs in the fifth book against Heresies, cap. XXXVI, and is extant in Greek (Harvey, vol. II, p. 427) and agrees with that text as printed, except for minor details.

The exciting part as to the text of our MS., however, is that it is in agreement in their singularities with our 153 (Dionys. 27 of XI[th] cent.) and our 211 (Vatopedi 862 of XIV[th]).

Earliest B-type. This 222 is a very early type of the B recension (which recension covers some eighty of our documents), and although intended to be conformed to type, there are certain singular readings left untouched. The survivals, in other words, occurring far apart, are left as it were by accident, owing to an early copyist not having incorporated quite all the changes intended, and so we are inheritors thus of some precious primal stuff. Here is a touch covering a very early B type: xviii. 16 λεγουσιν pro λεγοντες B 23 26 107 only and now 222 with *syr*S and aeth. This is following close on xviii. 10 δια τοῦ φοβον for δια τον φοβον =222 and *syr*S only.†

xiii. 4 and the Sahidic. We have only a few new readings, not found already in 153-211, but one of them, but a little thing, I have been watching for during years. It occurs only in the foundation text of the Sahidic version. I refer to xiii. 4. Our printed text runs:

τίς ὅμοιος τῷ θηρίῳ, τίς δυναται πολεμῆσαι μετ᾽ αὐτοῦ;

Now very many MSS. here supply καὶ before the second τίς, including the uncials ℵCABEP, which are all extant here. Also the syriacs, aeth and Iren. Prim. gig and vg. The B group (eighty strong) change δυναται to δυνατος, but the more natural 'or' for και is only found in the sahidic. Now at long last comes our Greek witness 222 with this addition in the Greek: 'ἤ.'

The armenian supports ἤ, according to Coneybeare, but has the sentence in the form of a statement: "No one is like unto the beast or is able to war with him."

ἤ is not even found in 153 or 211, and may be a genuine survival.

But, before proceeding further, let us check Gregory's description.

† The incompleteness of revision stands out in the addresses to the angels of the seven churches. Thus at ii. 1 to Ephesus τῷ for τῆς is read by CA 130 and *syr*S, at ii. 8 to Smyrna τῷ is read by A 166 122, at ii. 12 to Pergamos τῷ is read by 143 222 *syr*S, at ii. 18 to Thyatira by A 166 *syr*S arm, at iii. 1 to Sardis by B and *syr*S, at iii. 7 to Philadelphia by arm 4. at iii. 14 to Laodicea only by arm 4.

'A pict. precedes the Apoc., size 16 × 13, 1 col., 28 lines, a few scholia at the beginning, and second hand finishes from xxii. 8 to 21.'

To this add: that psi is very square, epsilon very old, and there are but few numerals. Occasionally and rarely we find an iota postscript, and once (xxi. 14) with ᾅδης. (Younger MSS. which favour iota post. often withhold it from ᾅδης). The pen used was a heavy reed. The scholia are out of focus in my photos, but do not appear important, except the last from Irenaeus, to which I have already referred.

The scribe is a careful copyist, and consistently writes μετωπων, φιαλην, υαλινην, and only once υελινην before διαυγης.

The omissions due to homoioteleuta are therefore almost all due to the parent, and these are far from few.

The inscription in semi-uncials agrees alone with 153-211 and runs:

αποκαλυψις του αγιου ιωαννου (in full) του θεολογου ην ειδεν εν πατμω τη νησω.

I will indicate first the few new readings. As this is almost the last MS. to reach me, it is doubtful if any other support will be forthcoming.

ii. 15. και συ κρατοῦν pro και συ κρατοῦντας Always a difficult sentence. Observe 143 και συ ὁ κρατῶν. (36 omits και συ, holding κρατουντας; 113 and arm omit κρατουντας).

ii. 17. αυτον (pro αυτω vel pr. vel sec.) and γεγραμμενην, (omitting φαγειν απο του μαννα του κεκρυμμενου και δωσω αυτω, and και επι την ψηφον ονομα καινον) thus:

"τῶι νικῶντι δώσω αὐτὸν ψῆφον λευκὴν γεγραμμένην · ὁ οὐδεὶς οἶδεν εἰ μὴ ὁ λαμβάνων."

In ancient times this whole verse was much involved, for ℵ *syr*S omit αυτω φαγειν, ℵ 38 omit δωσω αυτω sec., 1 omits the final clause, 200 writes το ονομα without καινον, 59 omits καινον γεγραμμενον, 106 149 *syr*S omit λευκην και επι την ψηφον, and 53 109*gr.* and 146 (= Oec.) omit αυτω φαγειν απο του μαννα του κεκρ. και δωσω, almost with us. There are a number of other variations here, which will be found in the Collations. So the original was obscure. Even P goes so far (alone) as to change μαννα to ξυλου and *syr*S ψηφον prim. to φυλακην! And the recension 97-122-214 transfers the whole μαννα clause to the end of the verse! So there was excuse for 222 or his progenitor to make γεγραμμενην accord with ψηφον λευκην. As a matter of fact 146 (txt & com.) omits γεγραμμενον altogether. If not in accord with the original and with all the facts, at any rate our new witness is terse enough to satisfy the upholders of the 'shorter text' theory! Notice that 113 145 write αυτον for αυτω sec. Marginal readings crept into this verse, for we find 216*txt* incorporating +νικωσαν και η δοξη λαμπραν before ψηφον λευκην, which stands in the margin of 169 and of other MSS. Arm 1. also incorporates another long phrase. (See Collations).

iii. 1. ἦς pro εἶ 'Thou mayest be dead.' (Only 201 226 omit εἶ, joining the two verses 1/2 by writing νεκρος εγενου).

iv. 6. +και κυκλω του θρονου post θρονου pr. (but does not omit, but holds the same clause later in the verse).

v. 8. αι εισιν εκ των προσευχων των αγιων (pro αι εισιν αι προσευχαι των αγ.)

vii. 13. —τας but C supports alone.

viii. 10. —ως λαμπας None so far. But there were marginal marks or comments here in old times. Aeth substitutes πῦρ, and 130 h and Prim. omit the second και επεσεν, and 100 *syr*Σ omit μεγας.

ix. 7. [ιπποις] ητοιμασμενοι (ητοιμασμενα 141 Compl.).

x. 10. εφαγον pro κατεφαγον (Cf. Verss.).

xiii. 2. αὐτὸ pro αὐτῷ (i.e. αὐτὸ ὁ δρακων, making the dragon neuter. So 28).

4. +ἢ ante τις sec. (Already referred to above).

xiii. 8. ονομα pro τα ονοματα All others, which change, have το ονομα, but see NOMEN *Iren*int Tyc 2. Beat. (*syr*S omits outright as Auct. prom.).

xiv. 4. The generic γυναικος of 113 157 159 164-166 189 214* 227* 228 230 aeth boh sah would not appear to have been unknown to 222, as the ..ων of γυναικων is rewritten.

xvi. 15. +ὁ ante τηρων Remarkable to relate, no others do it.

xviii. 10. δια τοῦ φόβου pro δια τὸν φόβον [non ver. 15]. Not even 153-211 do this, but *syr*S in both places is translated ἐκ τοῦ φόβου.

14. —παντα Only aeth seems to juggle the clauses and hint at omission.

xx. 1. +ισχυραν post μεγαλην Apparently quite alone. (ισχυραν pro μεγ. arab).

xxi. 7. δωσω αυτον (pro δωσω αυτω or κληρονομησω of the rest). See supra as to δωσω with accusative at ii. 17.

8. μετρος pro μερος (as 210 does in xx. 6).

ibid. +του πυρος post λιμνη (retaining τη καιομενη πυρι και θειω, whereas 143 substitutes του πυρος for this clause. And compare Hipp. "και το μερος υμων εστιν εις την γεενναν του πυρος." The sympathy of 143 is exhibited elsewhere, and notably at ii. 15 under our first entry. 143 represents very ancient and independent traditions. Thus at

ii. 12 we write τω αγγελω τω (for της) εν περγαμω εκκλησιας, which is what 143 alone supports, except that he has περκαμω.

xxi. 13. απο ανατολων.. και απο δυσμων.. και απο νοτου.. και απο βορρα. This strange order of E. W. S. N. seems to be unsupported except by aeth(1/2).

21. —εκαστος txt, but supplied marg. by the first hand.

An unique omission at iii. 5 of ενωπιον του πατρος μου και may well be an error, and at xvii. 17 of την γνωμην αυτου και ποιησαι with 187 only.

At v. 8 —χρυσας is supported alone by 106 and aeth. vii. 1 —τους post κρατουντας. Only 84 supports [contra fam].

A few varieties of spelling complete the review. At iv. 4 we write εικοσητεσσαρας, and at iv. 10 εικοσητεσσαρες, vi. 12 τρυχινος (so 152 only), x. 2 ευονυμον (so only 36 113 201), xvi. 10 εσκωτομενη (so 109 153), xix. 14 βισσινον, xxi. 19 σαμπφειρος (so 32 67 pauc.).

At xviii. 22, that pons asinorum, we write και φωνη μυλου ου μη ακουσθη εν σοι ετι twice, both before and after the clause και πας τεχνιτης πασης τεχνης etc., but we leave out nothing.

For the rest, note the following, occurring here and there [otherwise the conformity to B type is nearly perfect]:

i. 5. —ημας sec. with א 36 111.

ii. 8. τω αγγ. τω εν σμυρνη εκκλησιας with 166.

iii. 14. πιστεως pro κτισεως with fam 25, 166, 207 and 153-211 arab.

16. εμαισαι with 45, 146*mg*, and εμαισε C 7 146*com.*

iv. 8. αγιος sexies with 38 40-210 and 122 only.

11. βαλειν pro λαβειν with 153-211 (evidently standing in the original).

v. 13. και το αρνιον with 67 218 226 233.

vii. 8. —εκ φυλης ιωσηφ... with 14 182 240 and 153-211 (again a mistake antedating the copyists).

9. εστωτα with 19 93 153-211.

ix. 7. ομοιαι with 129.

11. εχων pro εχει with 30-98 40-210 and h. (This must be quite ancient, cf. syr).

x. 5. την χειραν with 39 72 98* 156 all these fortuitously against their families.

xi. 11. υπο pro επι pr. with fam 1.
xii. 15. ελαβεν pro εβαλεν with A* ? 153-211 [non ver. 16].
xiv. 4/5 uno tenore. So 153.
13. Punctuation: αποθνησκοντες απαρτι λεγει· ναι το πνευμα So 14 19 153 etc.
xvi. 2. Order: του θηριου το χαραγμα with all fam 7 and only 153-211 233 (not Latin order).
xvii. 1. —εἷς with only 153-211 251 ? and arm α.
5. —ἡ (ante μητηρ των πορνων) with fam 114, 130 and 153-211.
12. εξουσιν pro εξουσιαν with ℵ 146-155.
xviii. 7. αὐτῇ pro ἑαυτην with fam 26 and 111.
18. —και εκραζον with 38-203 [non 178-240] Prim.
xix. 4. και οι πρεσβυτεροι επεσαν συντρομοι οι εικοσιτεσσαρες Cf. 153 233 only.
7/8 uno tenore as 120 137 153 203 218 242.
8. περιβαλληται So 8 14 23 etc.
9. +οι ante αληθινοι with A fam 4, 121[non 59] 149[non 186] *syr*S vid.
10. +και ante των εχοντων hesitatingly with fam 1.
14. καθαρον λευκον (—και) with 7-45-104-151 of the fam 7, 153-211 and 233 (cf. Prim. ps-Ambr.).
xx. 13. —και ὁ θανατος και ὁ αδης εδωκαν τους εν αυτοις νεκρους with 121 187 211 (arm 2. 4.).
xxi. 4. —ουτε πενθος. . . ουκ εσται ετι sec. 35-87-132-181 98 102 f. 119 140 149 187 190.
4/5 uno ten. absque και ver. 5 init. with f. 44 140 164-166 177 153-211 and *syr*S. xxii. 1. —του θεου with 153-211 only.
6. —δειξαι τοις δουλοις αυτου with some cursives incl. 40 130 140 and 153-211.

I think the above will show, that, apart from a few possible errors, most of these things lurked in the parent, are really old and had merely been overlooked in the standardizing revision to the B-type, and I consider this document of very great importance for the history of transmission. As it is dated 1015 there can be no question of later ambiguities, such as can be charged up against some of the more recent documents, however important their base.

We owe Dr. Lake and Mr. Swain a debt of gratitude for not resting until they had unearthed this document amid all the confusion of changed or changing library-marks in these Athos monasteries, where confusion is sometimes irresolvable owing to the pasting of the new numbers over the old ones.

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUP 10 etc.

Apoc. 223. { Apoc. 223 = Athos, Laura ε 157. [Greg. old —, new 1617. Sod. δ 407]. XIV.
Apoc. 224. { Apoc. 224 = Athos, Laura ε 177. [Greg. old —, new 1771 or 2195. Sod. α 508]. XIV.

These two MSS. are accurately copied from a common original and are practically identical. Their minute differences are insignificant. But 223 lacks some pages containing viii. 8-ix. 15 and xi. 1 to xiii. 1 fin., which are, however, present in 224.

These documents represent the ordinary Compl. type, and are quite different from our exceptional 220 and 221.

A feature of 224 is the employment of iota subscript, but almost exclusively with verbs, and this rather to excess; thus, besides ᾄδου, ᾄδης, σιδηρᾷ, ᾠδὴν, κιθαρῳδῶν, ᾧ, ᾧρα (vid. xviii. 19), (and once in error xiv. 15 ἡ ᾧρᾳ), we have δύνῃ (ii. 2), ᾄδουσιν (v. 9 and xiv. 3, xv. 3), ἐλεύκᾳναν (vii. 14), ἐπικρᾴνθησαν (viii. 11) and ἐπικρᾴνθη (x. 10), ᾖρε (x. 5), ἀνεῳγμένον (x. 8), εὐφρᾳνθήσονται (xi. 10), ἐξηρᾴνθη (xiv. 15), ᾖρεν (xviii. 21), but the record is limited to these occasional lapses.

Never with ζωος and cases, nor with many other words where it might be expected.

At xi. 19 (where 223 is wanting) 224 omits του θεου with *syr*S alone.

At xv. 3 (where 223 is extant) 224 adds και before δικαιαι without other Greek authority, nor is there any trace in the Versions except in the Coptics.

The sum and substance of the other differences is as follows:

In the sections where 224 is extant alone we find:

ix. 3. [ακριδες] txt. Marg. σκώληκες

5. { πλήξη / παίση } *sic

11. ἀβαδδών

xii. 4. τίκτειν the usual Compl. reading, besides xi. 19. —του θεου with *syr*S, already mentioned.

Otherwise there are no new readings common to both, apart from the errors of each individual copyist.

Apoc. 225. Athos, Laura 641 or ε 179. [Greg. new 1620? Sod. ε 628?]. See Apoc. 222.

Photos by Swain, 1926. An early MS. with pict. It does not correspond to any Apoc. in Gregory, but turns out to be in exact agreement with Gregory's Laura β 18, Gregory's No. 1734 (on p. 1176, Textkritik) dated 1015! I have long been looking for β 18 and could not find it.

We therefore leave 225 blank, and report this important document under No. 222.

GROUP 13-23-55 partim.

Apoc. 226. Apoc. 226. Athos, Laura Ω 16 (olim 671). [Greg. new 1626. Sod. δ 305]. [xv].

According to Gregory and Soden this is a MS. of the whole N.T., but the Apoc. was apparently never finished and breaks off at ix. 15. If the rest of the document compares in interest to the Apoc. it should certainly be collated.

The Inscription or Heading is only found elsewhere in 102:

ευαγγελιστου παρθενου θεολογου αποκαλυψις η σεβασμια πϧ (= πέλει).

I could not have interpreted this last ligature but for the help of 102, which itself indulges in rather a complicated abbreviation.

The first two verses form a kind of prologue. Then μακαριος begins with a large M, and verse 3 is given in ordinary script. In this verse 3 are two notable variations, viz.:

τῶν λόγων pro τους λογους which is new (του λογου ex em. 36* τον λογον ℵB 32 100 102 130 154 178 238 240 arm pl.).

οτι ο καιρος εγγυς (—γαρ) = 36 (clause omitted by 102 Vict.). Cf. h Prim.

After verse 3 the text follows in smaller script, crammed with tachygraphic symbols, in fact it is shorthand throughout, and deadly to the eyesight. But the eclectic readings are so remarkable that a detailed examination proves quite profitable, and we run into a number of new variants and others of a most composite and fluctuating character.

The opening variant with 36 prepared us for further agreement with that very remarkable MS., but it soon develops that further agreement is quite scattered.

For, proceeding to i. 4 we find:

i. 4. —ἃ as well as —εστιν which appears new.

5. —εκ των ante νεκρων which is a pure Latin reading (mortuorum) and new among the Greeks, followed by ο αγαπων (compendio) ημας και λουσας ημας with 102 (syr copt) only.

7. +του ουρανου post νεφελων with 59 146-155*txt & com. gig sah* (a combination of Oecumenius, Sahidic and old Latin).

8. —και ult. ante ερχομενος with 14 only.

10. —εν πνευματι with 143 alone.

16 init. —και with 130 and 218 sah boh exclusively. } ibid. —και secund. with sah only. } ibid. φαινων (compendio) with 111 and fam 119 only.

20. οι +δε [επτα αστερες] with h harl alone.

Within the same limits we have this new reading:

i. 16. —αυτου sec. post στοματος, besides the omission in the text at i. 20 of και αι επτα λυχνιαι ας ειδες επτα εκκλησιαι εισι (with 14-92*txt* 22* 35 77) which is thus supplied in the margin by another hand: και αι λυχνιαι αι επτα (—ας ειδες) with CABP etc., continuing εκκλησιαι εισι with 7 41 97 122.

But the scribe, with all this interesting text before him, is exceedingly careless as to omissions from homoioteleuta, and only one other is remedied in the margin. Possibly this diorthotes got discouraged when he found the state of things, and severely took the scribe to task before he had finished, causing him to abandon his attempt at ix. 15,—to our great loss.

Let us continue into the second chapter. Curious mixture awaits us:

ii. 1. +κυριος post λεγει with the well-known 34 family and 90 98.

9. αὐτοὺς pro ἑαυτοὺς 6 31 67 81-204 100 130.

ii. 10. λαβεῖν pro βαλεῖν 100 201 211.
ibid. μεχρι pro αχρι 22 38 113 159 178-203-240.
13. —ος fam 6 fam 34 164 aeth.
14. —εν ante τω CA 130 *syr*S.
16. σοι supra lin. 145 228 (om. 14-92 38 121).
21. και ουκ ηθελησε A 164 Prim. Tyc.
22. μοιχευσαντας 14-92 47 59-121 89 187 (217).
23 fin. αυτων pro υμων 122.
25. ἄχρῑσ οὖν ἀνοίξω 120.

Add the following novelties:

ii. 5. τα εργα τα πρωτα (seq. μετανοησον) pro και τα πρωτα εργα ποιησον None omit ποιησον, but *syr*S omits και μετανοησον.
14. ολιγα οτι εχεις εκει· κρατουντας [κ.τ.λ.] pro αλλ'εχω κατα σου ολιγα οτι εχεις εκει κρατουντας. Ergo —αλλ εχω κατα σου. Cf. 154.
ibid. εδιδαξε τω βαλα^λ? sic.
15. Order: και συ εχεις (Obs. —και συ 36).
20. —διδασκειν
24. ἰδοὺ pro οὐ (ἰδου +οὐ 23).

Here (ii. 24) occurs our first contact with the 23 recension, which becomes emphasized later.

We soon run into eclectic B readings, but this is due to partial and very imperfect revision at some time, leaving untouched an ancient strain.

Continuing thus by chapters (which seems the fairest way to exhibit this extraordinary blended vintage of Old readings, Version preferences, Retranslations, and Novelties—some doubtless lost and ancient, others doubtless errors or improvisations—) we note in chapter iii.: Extraordinary mixed text.

iii. 2. στηριζων with fam 16.
5. περιβάλλεται with C 21 69 *syr*S and Σ.
ibid. —εκ της βιβλου της ζωης και εξομολογησομαι το ονομα αυτου Homoiotel. with some cursives.
9. γνωσονται with 36 56 67-120 143 169-216 251 (*syr*S arm a. 3).
10 fin. εφ'ολην την γην pro επι της γης with 23 only.
14. —εκκλησιας with 13 fam 61 120 233 boh^F Ambr.
21. [ως] και εγω with 104.

Of novelties note:

iii. 1/2 uno tenore ἐγένου pro εἶ fin. et γίνου init. Cf. 231 et 201 ἐγήνου (—εἰ).
2. ἃ ἔμελλες ἀπολαβεῖν sic. Carelessness.
3. —μη pr. ante γρηγορησης ibid. —ως κλεπτης και ου μη γνως ποιαν ωραν ηξω επι σε. Cannot tell, but probably original was —επι σε prim.
7. [και τω αγγελω της εν] φιλαδελφια (—εκκλησιας). New with arm 4, but see 164 and Tert.
8. —και pr. post ανεωγ. So 146 sah boh.
9. ειναι εαυτους ιόυδαιους Cf. 143.
10. τους λογους (compendiis).
ibid. εις ολην την οικουμενην pro επι της οικουμενης ολης. Alone among Greeks but equivalent to gigas.
15/16. Another omission of whole clause ζεστος to ζεστος, reading: οιδα σου τα εργα· οτι ουτε ψυχρος ει, ουτε χλιαρος· μελλω σε εμεσαι...

iii. 17 init. διότι pro οτι. Observe Coptic begins with ϫⲉ. We shall meet with Coptic again later. Nothing to do with Latin here.

18 fin. βλεπη vid.

21. επι του θρονου pro εν τω θρονω sec. [αυτου fin.] So 113 arab copt.

In chapter iv. we start with somewhat of an eye-opener, where at iv. 3 we read του λιθου ιασπιδος και σαρδιου for λιθω ιασπιδι και σαρδινω, which is exactly as Gwynn translates *syr*S (although, being without Greek authority then, he hesitates in his footnotes notwithstanding that *syr*Σ has the similar prefix to indicate the genitive). Now this is also found in 62/3-72-136-184 of the 1 or Erasmian family and latt.

ibid. ἱερεὶς pro ἦρις So ℵA and fam 21 arm pl. aeth.

iv. 3/4 —ομοιος ορασει σμαραγδινω και κυκλοθεν του θρονου So ℵ* 166 187 201 218, and therefore possibly due to the scribe's forerunner and not to our 226 himself.

6. —και κυκλω του θρονου with 28 29 30 67 98 109 129, but also 130 143 200 245 boh arm 1. harl Tyc 2. Apr.

ibid. οπιθεν with 19, and νελλινη alone, κρυσταλλου pro κρυσταλλω as in 27.

8. ἔχοντα pro ειχον P 32 38-178-203-240 50 56 111 143 201, all respectable and important witnesses, so this is no improvisation.

ibid. —ο θεος So 143 only.

9. ευχαριστειαν with 28 32 119 200 aliq., the form preferred by 200.

And of unique things, note:

iv. 5. εκπορευσονται pro εκπορευονται The future, and uncalled for here. Yet compare copt. Many Latins use the imperfect.

10. Saltus θρονου . . θρονου.

In chapter v. we find this:

v. 3. —ουδε επι της γης So 63 109 *f.*114.

ibid. και υποκατω της γης for ουδε υποκατω τ.γ. with 57 164-166 Er. Ald. Col.

5. —ο ων with ℵ 14 28 32 111 127-215 146 159 *f.*178 200 *syr*S latt copt arm.

11. Instead of the addition before και χιλιαδες χιλιαδων we have the substitution of και ην αριθμος (—ὁ) αυτων μυριαδες μυριαδων instead of και χιλιαδες χιλιαδων, which is suppressed with 81 130 146 215, but all these have ὁ ἀριθμος.

12. αξιος pro αξιον with A *syr*S Er. 1. and Ald. Cf. latt Dignus.

ibid. +την ante σοφιαν with 23 f. 25 30-98 61 111 113 121 and copt, but the presence of 23 shows it is a genuine part of the copy.

13. —ο εστιν So 16-39-69-102 and 108.

ibid. +ανω post ουνω So 23 only.

ibid. —α εστι So ℵ f. 21 f. 38 47 111 149-186 159 251 *copt arm aeth syr*Σ gig Prim. Cass.

ibid. το αρνιον pro τω αρνιω 67 218 222 233.

14. —και τα τεσσαρα ζωα ελεγον txt. (suppl. mg.) [Habet αμην txt]. Thus 13/14 read: εις τους αιωνας αμην tantum. Cf. 19 *f.*61 82 89 95 113 190.

Of new readings, note that after ὁ ανοιγων in v. 5 for ανοιξαι, with B etc., we read λῦων και for λυσαι quite alone, where most omit λυσαι, yet retained by ℵ *syr*S and others. This clearly has to do with early retranslation, as in i. 5.

v. 6. New order: εσφραγισμενον εστηκως (—ὡς)

7. απο pro εκ } Taking this in connection with ver. 5 the application is obvious.

8. οταν pro οτε }

v. 12. —φωνη μεγαλη I find absolutely no other support except Cassiodorus (liberè?).
ibid. και τον πλουτον και την σοφιαν και ισχυν και δοξαν και τιμην και ευλογιαν No support for the order except by 157 partly.
13. —και τα εν αυτοις. New, but observe for the third time that 36 shares partly by omitting και τα.

As to ch. vi. we have this:

vi. 4. —αυτω post εδοθη with ℵ[a]A 31 146*com. Prim. Tyc* 2. Beat. gig.
ibid. σφαξωσιν +οι ανθρωποι with 23 alone. Cf. arab.

12. εγενετο μεγας (pro μεγας εγ.) A 31 72 100 170 arm 4. latt.
ibid. [εγενετο sec.] —μελας 104 113 only.
ibid. —ως ante αιμα 130 sah boh gig et arm 3. Vict. Beat.
13. επι pro εις ℵ 22 23-55 47 56 81 113 130 200 al., and by far the most outstanding, at:

14. +και βουνος post ορος [retaining και νησος following] with 23 alone. Remember that ℵ alone substitutes βουνος for νησος.
17 fin. υποστηναι pro σταθηναι So only 23.

So the recension holds here for consecutive verses.

Of new things (besides spelling σφραγιδαν vi. 5 with 33, vi. 7 with 39; χοινηκες with 104 156 at vi. 6, τριχηνος alone vi. 12, ολενθους alone vi. 13):

vi. 2. —και ινα νικηση with Tyc 2., which is very noteworthy when confronted with the next:
4. ιππος αλλος [πυρρος] (—αλλος 113 130 *syr*S copt arm 2. Tyc.).
6 fin. αδικησῖν (comp.) Vult αδικησεις vel αδικησις?
12. πεμπτην pro εκτην ibid. fin. των δενδρων pro παν δενδρον Cp. 111 επι δενδρων (—παν) and aeth and syr boh and arm alone for plural.

4. επι pro εκ

vii. 5/8. —εσφραγ. everywhere except the first in ver. 5. =164-166 200 Prim.
5. —χιλιαδες sec.
6. —χιλιαδες ter

8. —χιλιαδες ter
} This being evidently arbitrary.
9. γένους pro εθνους Cp. the Latin gentibus, and bearing on some polyglot influence, as evidenced elsewhere.
14. ουκ οιδα pro συ οιδας.

As regards ch. viii., we note first:

viii. 6. ἑαυτας with the remarkable 113 alone.
7. —και το τριτον των δενδρων κατεκαη with 75 90 109 113 146 al. sah gig aeth.
9. —των κτισματων των ibid. της θαλασσης pro εν τη θαλασση } with 102 (233) alone.
ibid. τὸ ἔχον τὰσ pro τα εχοντα [ψυχας] with 23 and 102 here combining the two chief lateral sources.

But we also get these novelties:

viii. 1. —εγενετο σιγη εν τω ουρανω. Possibly owing to great discord here between sah and boh.
ibid. ὡσεὶ μῦρίων (compendio) pro ως ημιωριον. This would fit in after boh's 'a noise happened.'
3. του θεου pro το χρυσουν! (sec. loco) Obs. —το χρυσουν *syr*S, illud gig, sed Prim. ad aram Dei auream.
10. τον τριτον ποταμον pro το τριτον των ποταμων
12. —αυτων So also 218 sah.
13. ουαι semel So 218 arm 1.

In ch. ix. we find thicker agreement with 23:

ix. 5. βασανισωσιν sic with 23 again and 104 170.
ibid. +αυτους ante μηνας with 23 102-104-151 170 copt arm^{aliq}.
ibid. δάκη pro παιση with 23-55txt*, the boh and sah word, and probably a transliteration thereof. This clinches the matter of Coptic influence on the original.
6. +αυτων post θανατον with 23-55.
ibid. —αυτον with 23 arm^{aliq} Tyc 1.
7. —ως prim. ante στεφανοι with 28 59 113 152* 178-203-240 only.
9. —ως θωρακας with some, but not 23, doubtless an omission not belonging to the real stem.
11. απολυων (pro απολλ.) with 16 40 56 59 90 98 113 120 151 156-188 172-217 *syr*S, while 14: εφρατη is a B reading with 16 19 26 59-121 107 113 233 only.

New readings are as follows:

ix. 4. Saltus γης..γης, omitting altogether και ερρεθη αυταις ινα μη αδικησωσι τον χορτον της γης.
6. —και επιθυμησουσιν usque ad fin. vers. (Cf. 81-204).
7. ωσπερ pro ομοια (Cf. aeth). This is indubitably due to the influence of another language, but how? and when? For neither 23 nor 102 is responsible.
8. ησαν ως λεοντος. Not only changed order with copt, but the singular λεοντος for λεοντων with only harl? arm^{pl}. (—ησαν 21 40-210 73 164-166 *h aeth syr*S).

ix. 11. +δε post εβραιστι. Only clue is ϫⲉ pro ⲡⲉ in this position by boh MSS[CZ].
12. Κουαὶ · pro ἡ οὐαι prim. (+και init. aeth only, +ιδου 130 sah arm).
ibid. ἕτεραι δυο pro ετι δυο } Surely a commentary reading. No MSS. or Versions. Cp.
ibid. —ουαι secund. } only Hier[Ezek]. vae alterum, and sah: αλλαι vel ετεραι ουαι δυο.
13. μιαν φωνην pro φωνην μιαν So 201 233, but cp. 14-92, and obs. —μιαν 38-203-240 [non 178]. —φωνην gig Prim. Tyc. —φωνην μιαν 130 arm 4. 'a voice' (ⲟⲩⲥⲙⲏ) sah boh.
ibid. του χρυσιου.

Note that at ix. 11 all that is left is . . . δῶν, of a probable ἀβδῶν, or βανδών (146), αβαδων (with 72 113 218), due to a water-stain. There were probably only 2 or 3 letters in the present washed out blank.

It is difficult to resume the matter in a word, and to separate errors of carelessness from the rest; yet, when we look at the +και βουνος post ορος (with 23 alone, a XIV[th] cent. MS. at Florence) at vi. 14, and consider that ℵ alone substitutes βουνος for νησος, we are approximating quite an ancient date for the extraordinary exemplar then available in the Laura monastery, and whence this MS. was derived. Thus, in the next chapter vii. 1 we substitute πνευση for πνεη with ℵ 23 and a few more, but this is instantly followed by επι των δενδρων (—παν) for the singular επι παν δενδρον. Aeth and syr boh arm seem here to favour the plural, and the critical 111 writes επι δενδρων (without των).

Then take vii. 9 γενους pro εθνους alone. Is this not a recollection of the Latin gentibus? And what about ὥσπερ for ομοια at ix. 7?

(The most sympathetic 23 also is akin to the Latin, and toys with recensions by giving us four conflations).

We seem to be turning in a vicious circle of the Versions.

Twice we omit των αιωνων, which might be interesting, but what of the speech to the angel at vii. 14? Instead of "My Lord, thou knowest" of all authorities, we are asked to read "My Lord, I know not" (οὐκ οἶδα for συ οιδας), but the following sentences remain unchanged. There seems to be no support for this anywhere. As to vii. 14.

Yet other readings involve some lack of clarity in the originals, as at viii. 3, where we substitute του θεου for το χρυσουν of the altar, while at that place gigas and arab have illud, and *syr*S omits το χρυσουν. Prim., however, gives aram, auream, and του θεου, thus: 'ad aram Dei auream.'

And above at viii. 1 we make nonsense of the silence in Heaven by omitting εγενετο σιγη εν τω ουνω, and writing ὡσεὶ μὑρίων for ως ημιωριον, and do not run, as we might, to such an improvisation as that of aeth: 'conticuit totum quod fuit in caelo et quod fuit in terra usque medietatem horae.' Yet, as sah and boh conflict greatly here, and boh actually says there was a noise instead of silence, ωσει μυριων would fit into and follow boh. The omission of 226 is like some of aeth's short-cuts in difficulties. See details ad loc. in vol. II.

At times it is quite true to type, as at ix. 5 with δάκη. At others it seems wilful, or is using sources now obliterated elsewhere by the hand of time, see iii. 1/2 ἐγένου. We cannot put them all summarily aside, however, in view of such things as the genitive at iv. 3 of του λιθου ιασπιδος so carefully recorded by *syr*S and Σ as well as latt.

Note in the very first chapter agreement now with 14, now with 143 (—εν πνευματι), now with 130 sah boh exclusively, now with 119, and finally with the fourth century Latin MS. h alone.

I bequeathe the above keys to the reader. He must apply them to the various locks as best he may.

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUP 10 etc.

Apoc. 227. Apoc. 227. Athos, Laura Ω 49. [Greg. new 1745. Sod. α 509]. [XIV/XV].

Very correctly copied. Compl. type. Slightly different from others. See ix. 19 ομοιοι for ομοιαι, xv. 1 —τας ante εσχατας, both with 10-49 only of the fam. (and 228 below).

A few scholia in the margins.

Inscr.: αποκαλυψις του αγιου ιω̅ του αποστολου και ευαγγελιστου θεολογου, but no subscription.

Iota subscript only with ᾅδης and cases, with ᾄδουσιν and ᾠδήν. Not otherwise, except once ᾖρε x. 5, and ἐπικράνθῃ x. 10. The usual alternative readings found in these Compl. family MSS. are also found here.

We write κρῖμα everywhere, but 228 hesitates twice with κρῖμα sic, and once (xviii. 20) κρίμα straight out.

See below as to 227/8/9/30.

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUP 10 etc.

Apoc. 228. Apoc. 228. Athos, Laura Ω 114. [Greg. new 1746. Sod. α 407]. [XIV].

This MS. is quite the counterpart of the above, another Compl. MS., but both 227 and 228 are copied from a common original, and the one is not copied from the other.

In this MS., however, there is no iota subscript to ἅδης, and only once to ᾄδουσιν, and nowhere else except to ᾧδε twice (iv. 1, xiii. 18) and apparently once to ἀγγέλῳ, bottom line of a page, and δύνῃ in ii. 2. Apoc. 228 writes ὧδε, whereas 227 prefers ὧδε.

This MS. is a little less carefully copied than 227, and an occasional new reading appears, as at x. 6 +ὁ ante χρονος. At xiv. 4, although the place is faint, γυναικος seems certain, and without correction, whereas in 227 γυναικος has been changed to γυναικων.

We agree with 227 as to ομοιοι ix. 19, —τας xv. 1, but we have no alternative of καθημενος ομοιος at xiv. 14 nor of πληξη over παιση at ix. 5 as has 227 and most Compl. MSS., nor at vii. 17 ποιμανεῖ, where 227 writes ποιμα^αι^νεῖ. At ix. 6 we write ζητησουσιν, but 227 229 have ζητουσιν with most Compl. MSS.

A large section of the text is misplaced, and from the abundant water-stains it must once have suffered shipwreck and been thoroughly wetted, and afterwards rebound without regard to the proper sequences. Thus the section xiv. 12/xxi. 9 follows vii. 12 init., and xxi. 10/25 follows xiv. 12. The MS. is not complete, breaking off at xxi. 25 fin.

The rubrication was never completed.

Inscription is unusual:

αποκαλυψις του αγιου αποστολου και ευαγγελιστου ιωαννου bringing ιωαννου last.

At ii. 4. Opposite την αγαπην we find in 228*mg.* τὴν εὐποίαν, in 227 τὴν ἀποιίαν (nothing in 230).

vi. 7. In margin of both MSS. χολῆς καὶ πικρίας σημεῖον Also 230.

ix. 3. Opposite ακριδες of the text 227 has mg. σκώληκες (illeg. 228). In 230 ψυχικὴ τύφλως σκώληκες.

19. In margin of 227 we read τελος των αμαρτιων In 228 nothing.

xi. 11. " " " " " " ἰσαρίθμους τοῖς ἔτεσι (om. τοις ετεσι 230) τῆς προφητείας αὐτῶν, but not in 228.

xii. 8. In margin of both MSS. 227/8: ἀπερρίφησαν (+δε 230) οἱ ἀντικείμενοι ὡς τὸ ἐθεώρουν τὸν σαταναν.

xv. 6. No alternative to λῖνον of the text of both MSS., although there is a note, nor in 230.

xvi. 16. Opposite ἁρμαγεδών in margin of 227 : Διακοπὴ · ἢ Διακοποπτομένη (illeg. 228). In 230 same, except Διακοπτομενη.

xxi. 6. In margin of 227 : οὐ γὰρ ἄξια τὰ παθήματα (illeg. 228). So also 230.

14. „ „ „ „ ῑβ ἢ ῑβ (nil 228 et 230).

19. „ „ „ „ ἐξ αὐτοῦ τὸ λαζοῦρ¨ (nil 228). Etiam 230 sed λαζούριν pleno.

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUP 10 etc.

Apoc. 229. Athos, Laura 200 or β 80. [Greg. new 1740. Sod. α 304]. [XIII]. Apoc. 229.
Photographed 1925 by Lake and Swain.

A neat XIII[th] century MS. in one column, the exact counterpart of the previous MSS. 227/8 and of the following one 230. All of the Complutensian family with a few marginal scholia by hands nearly contemporary, some of the shorter of which I have noted in the collation, as they are really marginal alternative readings for the most part.

I enter all these four together. This MS. in outward appearance is totally different from the others.

The inscriptions vary slightly. There are no subscriptions. This MS. indulges occasionally in iota subscript on special occasions like some of the others, and goes beyond them by adding it to κιθαρῳδων and επικρᾳνθη.

The differences between the four are absolutely negligible, but are indicated in the collations.

This MS. 229 lacks a couple of pages covering xx. 12 fin. to xxi. 9, where we begin again with the word γεμουσας, doubtless without the preceding τας, as in the others.

It is probably the most carefully copied of all the four.

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUP 10 etc.

Apoc. 230. Athos, Laura Ω 141. [Greg. new 1637. Sod. δ 605]. [XIV]. Apoc. 230.

Another Compl. MS., the exact counterpart of 227/228/229, but written in double columns in a smaller and neater hand, with no iota post.

Inscription is the same as that of 227.

It is correctly copied, with a few more marginal comments and fuller regular scholia. There are only two singular readings apart from 227/8, viz. at :

iii. 14. +ὁ ante αληθινος (with ℵC 2 100 136 149-206) doubtless an error (against the others).

xii. 12. —οι ante ουρανοι (against 227/8/9).

xiv. 10. +και post του θεου (with 90 only) doubtless an error.

and xviii. 10. εστωτες pro εστηκοτες (against 227/8/9).

A novelty appears at i. 9, where the τ in πατμω has been rewritten and apparently replaced by the digamma.

All the four codices agree to write ἀνα εἰς at xxi. 21 without breathing. 230 varies αββαδδων at ix. 11, where 227/8/9 had ἀββαδών, and 230 writes ἀββαΔΔ· with two deltas.

At ix. 19 we go apart and do not write ομοιοι, but retain ομοιαι.

At x. 6 we agree with 228 to add ὁ before χρονος (so 219), against 227/229 and the rest.

At xiv. 4 we write the generic singular γυναικος without a tremor, whereas 227 is corrected, 228 is straightforward for γυναικος, but 229 equally straightforward for γυναικων.

At xvii. 16, while 227 writes ερημωμενην and 228 ηρημωμενην, we find 229/230 with ἐ͂ρημωμένην sic.

A leaf is misplaced xiv. 11–xvi. 9 at precisely the same place where 228 exhibits a similar state of things.

Opposite xix. 15 we find marg. ὁ γὰρ πατήρ κρίνει οὐδένα (so also 229), and opposite xxii. 2 (where 228 is not extant) πολλαὶ γὰρ μοναί · ϗ ἄλλη δόξα ἡλίου (as also 229).

A characteristic of three codices is the writing of υιος and cases in full everywhere, and sometimes χριστου.

All four codices accent πόρνων (and not πορνῶν) at xvii. 5.

Apoc. 230A. Apoc. 230A. Athos, Laura Ω 177, seems to have disappeared. I leave its traces at this place. Is this Gregory's 1771 (Laura ε 177, non-existent to-day)?

COMPLUTENSIAN TYPE??

Apoc. 231. Apoc. 231. Athos, Laura Θ 152. [Greg. new 1652. Sod. δ 604]. [XIV/XV].

This can really be neglected, as it seems to consist merely of the opening verses.

Inscription: αποκαλυψις του αγιου ιωαννου του αποστολου και ευαγγελιστου θεολογου, followed by i. 1-3 init. ending μακαριος ὁ...

i. 2. As usual οσα ειδε (—τε).

2/3 +και ατινα εισι · και α χρη γενεσθαι μετα ταυτα, and, judging from Laura traditions, would doubtless have been based upon the usual Complutensian type.

COMPLUTENSIAN TYPE.

Apoc. 232. Apoc. 232. Athos, Laura Θ 187. [Greg. new 1774. Sod. —]. [XV].

Photos by Swain, 1926.

A common little paper MS. of the XV[th] cent. Apoc. amid some other miscellaneous items. Mut. i. 1–ii. 20 med. says Gregory quite correctly, but also iv. 10–v. 12, and all the latter half xi. 18–xxii. 7, but running from xxii. 7 fin. to xxii. 21 fin. without subscription. Another of the Compl. type of the Laura MSS. Possibly the rest is misbound and exists, but it is without importance for us.

The scribe gives us nothing new except ἐκεκραξε at vii. 2 (cf. arm 3. Prim.), which he favours at vi. 10 (there with 19 188 and 218), although he avoids it at x. 3, where 35 has it with Prim. (exclamavit).

At xi. 6 he writes οσακις θελησωσι without εαν. Only 189 does this, but 189 has θελησουσι.

The MS. is correctly written for so late a one, and there are no iotas post. or subscript. Occasionally we get lapses, which run into novelties, as ὡσάκκος for ὡς σάκκος vi. 12, ὡἡμιώριον for ὡς ἡμιώριον viii. 1, once οἴκουσα for ἤκουσα and ἠνόίνοξε for ἤνοιξε both at vi. 5, με for μοι x. 11, and the variant τας προσευχας viii. 3 (with 17* 36 53* etc.). I merely record these for purposes of identification in case the library-mark of the MS. be changed again.

Complutensian Grouping?

Apoc. 233. Athos, Laura 1260 or I 48. [Greg. new 2196. Sod. α 1687]. [xiv/xv]. Apoc. 233.
Photographed 1925, Lake and Swain.

This is a rough and rather illiterate production in a vol. of Miscellanies, but the scribe appears to be honest, fairly careful, and not addicted to missing his place and leaving out clauses, although there are occasional lapses. But he never makes a mistake from bottom of a page to top of the next one.

For the first eight chapters there is nothing to tie it to any one family. It appears to be independent. But at ix. 5 we get πληξη of the Complutensian group, and at xviii. 21 we omit ουτως before ορμηματι with that group alone. Can it be that this represents a copy from the old stratum underlying all the Athos types of Compl. group copying?

At xix. 4 we at last get a hint of sisterhood with 153 and 211, where they write οἱ πρεσβυτεροι επεσαν +σύντεροι οἱ κδ, while 233 has οἱ πρεσβυτεροι επεσαν +συντρομοι (or συντερομοι) οἱ κδ.

The breathings are very incorrect, but sometimes left out altogether, which means that our late scribe was copying an uncial or a tenth-century cursive. He is also very partial to the comma of our MS. 200 everywhere. There is no iota sub. or postscript. Besides scribal idiosyncracies and plain mistakes, the MS. has a number of quite ancient elements. It is unfortunate that we cannot properly assess these, for they are mixed up with blunders. They will all be found in the collation. It is both remarkable and puzzling that in the matter of spelling we do not find the peculiarities we expect, and then suddenly, after a perfect verse, occur certain exceptions, which all tends to show that they were most of them contained in the old exemplar before him.

In the matter of breathings (some omitted altogether) he is fairly constant with ἑπτα, αἱμα, ἀγιων throughout. So also as to ὀφθαλμους, ὀνομα, ἠνοιξε, ἠκουσα.

This scribe makes an interesting psi, thus: αποκαλυψεως. We can thus differentiate him from other scribes in the Laura who sympathize with some of his vagaries, such as the scribe of 226 (who leaves out with us alone χιλιαδες for brevity's sake in vii. 6/8) and from the writer of 218 at Iveron.

Here are the major outstanding substitutions:

- i. 6. του θεου pro τω θεω So only Oxyr[1079].
- ii. 27. ποιμανεῖς pro ποιμανεῖ Alone. But many hesitate here and we find: ποιμαινειν 130 *syr*S, ποιμανῶ 200, ποιμανουσι arm, reget as well as pascet latt.
- v. 11. των θρονων pro του θρονου Alone.
- vi. 8. ονομα αυτου pro ονομα αυτω 2 12 50 111 112 syr.

Note also xx. 12 οὓς εν τοις βιβλιοις εκ των γεγραμμενων, and same verse: και pro κατα (with 114-241), και κατα 53.

There are very few transpositions, so the transcription must be fairly straight and according to 'copy.'

On the whole a most unsatisfactory or unsatisfying MS. Its witness, again and again promises to be of paramount interest, only to be invalidated by things impossible to assess at their true value.

Observe, however, the major omissions at viii. 9, xiii. 5, 18, xvi. 5, xvii. 4, xviii. 19, xix. 19, xx. 12, xxi. 2. Surely these are not all by chance.

Apoc. 234. Athens, Greece. Nat. 141. [Greg. new 2114. Sod. M[71]]. XVII. (Apoc. 234).
Can be neglected.

COPY OF A PRINTED TEXT.

(Apoc. 235). Apoc. 235. Athos, Panteleēmon 15. [Greg. new 1668. Sod. δ 306]. XVI, post 1522.

This MS. should not be on the list. At first sight it appears to belong to the XV[th] century, but it must be posterior to the year 1522, as it is a servile copy of Erasmus' third edition of 1522.

It is a clever bit of copying and a veritable 'fake,' for the scribe does not reproduce any of the iotas subscript, and never once makes the printed final sigma ς, invariably writing c.

Yet he always writes out in full ιησους, χριστος, κυριος, ανθρωπος, υιος, πνευμα, πατηρ and cases, ισραηλ, ιερουσαλημ, πνευματικως and even δαβιδ thus (although δᾶδ at xxii. 16), and θεος (except once on the last page), and this of course indicates that he is copying a printed text. For some chapters it was impossible to say what edition lay before him, for Erasmus 1, 2, 3 and Aldus all concur in many mistakes. But it became apparent that it was Er. 3. which he had undertaken to copy, for what reason it is difficult to imagine.

It only shows how futile Soden's classification is when he calls this MS. δ 306, because it happens to form part of the whole N.T. He admits that the latter part is on paper.

By a process of segregation, unnecessary to tabulate in full, we have eliminated Colinaeus, Aldus, Er. 4 and 5, and then Er. 1 and 2.

It accords throughout with Er. 1. 2. 3. Ald. Col. and the MS. 57 (and often 141). At xiv. 1 the remarkable καιομενον for γεγραμμενον is indeterminate, because Apoc. 1 and Er. 1. 2. 3. and Ald. have it. From ii. 10 πειραθητε of Er. 2. 3. Col. and 1 57 111 114 141 we can rule out Er. 1. From ix. 6 ουκ ευρισουσιν we rule out Er. 2. From xviii. 7 κερασατε pro τοσουτον δοτε we rule out Er. 1. 2. jointly, who alone do this. From τρειων viii. 13 we rule out all MSS., only Er. 1. 2. 3. Ald. having this spelling. In the same verse Er. 1. 2. have εν μεσουρανισματι, while we have εν μεσουρανησματι with Er. 3. 4. 5. As Er. 4. 5. are not with us at all as a whole, this leaves Er. 3 (anno 1522) as the most probable source of our MS., and this is confirmed in other particulars, and notably very quickly thereafter at ix. 3, where we write alone with Er. 3: εχωσιν for εχουσιν.

This finds further and absolute confirmation at ii. 25 by our unique ἔχειτε (pro ἔχετε) where the scribe has miscopied from Er. 3. the ἔχε- at the end of a line (with the τε at the beginning of the next line) having mistaken the hyphen for an iota!

Note also these complete agreements, alone between the two:

- iv. 3. ἦν pro ἦν
- vi. 8. οἶδον pro εἶδον
- x. 11. λαῶν pro λαοῖς, quite unique and inexcusable, because followed by ἔθνεσι, γλώσσαις, and βασιλεῦσι. On reference to Er. 3. we find a broken ligature in the type above the line, doubtless meant to convey οις but which might represent ων.
- xv. 2. ἑστῶτα pro ἑστῶτας
- xvii. 4. χεχρυσομένη pro κεχρυσώμενη
- xx. 6. ἀναστάση pro ἀναστάσει
- xxii. 11. ἀδικισάτω pro ἀδικησάτω.

Add to this all the generic Erasmian readings, and the picture is complete.

There are a few, very few errors, as is natural in copying twenty-two chapters, but this does not invalidate the position at all.

The utter ignorance of a scribe who could copy certain things accurately without a suspicion of anything wrong, and without reference to other MSS. in his library is almost incredible in the year 1522.

We have not burdened our apparatus with the readings of this document.

FRAGMENT. Family of Irenaeus ?

Apoc. 236. Athos, Panteleēmon 110. [Greg. new 1775. Sod. —]. XVIII. Apoc. 236.

Inscription (below an elaborate three-quarter page painting of John and the vision, with "ο ων" above the Heavenly figures):

Ἡ ἀποκάλυψις τοῦ πανενδόξου εὐαγγελιστοῦ· ἐπιστηθίου· φίλου· παρθένου· ἠγαπημένου τῷ χριστῷ· Ἰωάννου τοῦ θεολόγου· υἱοῦ Σαλώμης ϗ Ζεβεδαίου· θετοῦ δὲ υἱοῦ τῆς θεοτόκου Μαρ̅ίας (rescript.)· ϗ υἱοῦ βροντῆς.

On the next page:

Ἀνδρέου Σοφοῦ ἀρχιεπισκόπου Καισαρείας Καππαδοκιας· ϗ ἑτέρων· ἑρμηνεία εἰς τὴν ἀποκάλυψιν Ἰωάννου τοῦ θεολογου.

Κείμενον Δήλωσις αὕτη τῶν θεοῦ Μυστηρίων·

The text, embracing only i. 1/13, iv. 4/7, xix. 19/21, is broken up into short sentences with long comments in between, the verses frequently abbreviated with purpose.

In the first chapter we have two unique readings alone with the Fleury palimpsest h:

i. 1. —αποστειλας

7. ναι αμην of the text is embedded in the commentary, and apparently omitted by h.

In i. 2/3 the Compl. fam. clause και ατινα εισι και α χρη γενεσθαι μετα ταυτα is not an addition but a substitution for verse 2, which is completely omitted.

In i. 4 the omission of και ειρηνη is probably an error, for, although supported by the Oecumenian secondary MS. 155, is not omitted in the primary MS. 146. Yet at:

i. 10. —οπισω μου agrees with both 146-155.

ibid. —ως σαλπιγγος finds no support.

i. 6. —αυτω η δοξα usque ad fin. vers. } also has no support.

9. —και συγκοινωνος usque ad fin. vers. } also has no support.

12. —ητις ελαλησε μετ εμου και επιστρεψας pergens +και ante ειδον is also new (+ιδου aeth), but 143 h Prim. Cypr. omit και επιστρεψας.

In the next section:

iv. 4. επι τοις θρονοις agrees with fam 119 only (in quibus Prim.).

ibid. +και ante περιβεβλημενους agrees with 119*mg.* and 144 (another member of the family) together with 146 and aeth only.

iv. 7 is curiously constructed and would be unique but for agreement with Irenaeus' Greek, extant here, so that evidently we have to do with a fragment of something ancient.

Our MS. writes (instead of the usual και το ζωον το πρωτον etc.) τὸ μὲν ά· ὅμοιον λέοντι, τὸ β̅, ὅμοιον μόσχῳ, τὸ γ̅, ἔχον πρόσωπον ἀνθρώπου, καὶ τὸ δ' ὅμοιον ἀετῷ πετωμένῳ (—ζωον).

Irenaeus' quotation begins το μεν γαρ, and proceeds το δε δευτερον.. το δε τριτον.. το δε τεταρτον.

In the third section:

xix. 21. ἐφ' ἵππου pro επι του ιππου appears to be new (159 omits του; —επι 146-155, sah (ιππευοντος), εν τω ιππω 200 gig; omit arm aliq.).

xix. 19. —ποιησαι πολεμον usque ad fin. vers. is notified by a mark of ( ).

After xix. 21 follow 4½ pages of commentary, beginning: ἑρμηνεία· ὕστερος Ταράσιος (?) λύς (sic) ταύτην τὴν ἀπορίαν λέγων « τούτων οὕτω γενομένων· ἐγερθήσεται πόλεμος ἐμφύλιος· καὶ ἀπωλεσθήσεται πᾶς ὁ ἄπιστος λαὸς...., and, running from new pagination 176 verso to 178 verso (old pagination 242 to 245) to foot of page and ending there, the last two lines, marked as a quotation, being:

Μακάριος ὁ ὑπομείνας· καὶ φθάσας εἰς ἡμέρας χιλίας τριακοσίας τριάκοντα πέντε·

The next page begins on a totally different (Old Testament) subject, with a new heading.

This eclectic mixture was perhaps never finished. It is so garbled as hardly to be worthy of a place in our lists and is suppressed by von Soden. Yet at the very opening it has agreement with h and must go into the record, especially as it shows knowledge of the Oecumenian text, and possibly of that of Irenaeus.

I have added frag. to the quotations of 236, so as to indicate to the reader not to expect its testimony throughout.

Apoc. 237. Apoc. 237. Athos, Panteleēmon 271. [Greg. new 1776. Sod. —]. XVII.

This is another late and incomplete text, with only i. 1-3 init. extant, split into short sentences or στιχοι, and a commentary, headed:

Τοῦ ταπεινοῦ ἀρχιεπισκόπου Μύρων τῆς λυκίας› καὶ ἀποστολικοῦ ἱεροκήρυκος Ἰωάννου λινδίου ἑρμηνεία εἰς πᾶσαν τὴν ἱερὰν ἀποκάλυψιν·

This is preceded by a full-page outline cross, with a negligeable inscription within its borders.

The Commentary begins (after Ἀποκάλυψις Ἰησοῦ χ̅υ̅):

"Σὺ εἶπας› κύριε› ἐν τοῖς ἱεροῖς καὶ θείοις εὐαγγελίοις σου ὅτι πάντα δυνατά τῷ πιστεύοντι· καὶ ἐὰν μὴ πιστεύσητε οὐδ' οὐ μὴ συνῆτε· τὰ γὰρ βάθη τῶν μυστηρίων τοῦ Πνεύματος πίστεως μόνης δεῖται› καὶ τῆς ἄνωθεν χάριτος πρὸς ἀληθῆ κατάληψιν τε καὶ κατανόησιν· οὐκοῦν δέομαι θερμῶς τοῦ ἀπείρου ἐλέους τῆς σῆς φιλανθρωπίας· καὶ ἀγαθότητος....

and runs on for eight more lines before taking up the sentence of the text, the com. on which (ten lines) is of no particular importance.

The com. on "δεῖξαι τοῖς δουλοῖς αὐτοῦ (sic)" is not without some interest. It runs: Παρὰ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ λαμβάνουσι τὴν γνῶσιν τῶν μυστηρίων· ἐν μέτρῳ ἕκαστος τῶν γνησίων δούλων αὐτοῦ κατὰ τὴν› ἣν ἔχει, δεκτικὴν δύναμιν·

After "τῷ δουλῷ αὐτοῦ (sic) Ἰωάννῃ" occurs a non-dictionary word, thus:

καὶ τοι φίλος ἠγαπημένος ὢν καὶ ἐπιστηθίος› δι' εὐγνωρκοσμύνην δοῦλον ἑαυτὸν ἀποκαλεῖ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ› πληρῶν τὸ ὑπ' αὐτοῦ εἰρημένον" ὅταν φησί ταῦτα πάντα ποιήσητε› λέγετε› ὅτι δοῦλοι ἀχρεῖοι ἐσμεν·

The long scholion after "μακάριος ὁ ἀναγινώσκων" begins thus:

but the next page, numbered 728 (the first is not numbered on the photo) continues with:

θύμως ἐπανηγύριζον· πᾶσα ἡ πονηρὰ πληθὺς τῶν δαιμόνων ὡς κακίστην...

After seven more pages, the close is as follows:

..θερμῶς δεόμεθα καὶ παρακαλοῦμέν σε, ἵνα διὰ σου τῶν αἰωνίων ἀγαθῶν τύχωμεν· χάριτι καὶ φιλανθρωπίᾳ τοῦ Κυρίου, καὶ θ̅υ̅› καὶ σωτῆρος ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ χ̅υ̅› ᾧ ἡ δόξα καὶ τὸ κράτος σὺν τῷ ἀνάρχῳ Πάτρι› καὶ τῷ παναγίῳ› καὶ ἀγαθῷ› καὶ ζωοποιῷ› καὶ παντουργῷ Π̅ν̅ι̅ νῦν› καὶ ᾀεὶ› καὶ εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας τῶν αἰώνων› ἀμήν·

and ends with another full-page outline cross, filled in with some kind of "mantra," beginning

γένοιτο
γένοιτο
γένοιτο

on the upper limb, before the cross-piece.

Apoc. 238. Athos, Panteleēmon 523. [Greg. new 1777. Sod. —]. XVIII. Apoc. 238.

Another late and incomplete commentary document, consisting of but four leaves of barely six pages of text by two hands, breaking off after x. 11 in the middle of commentary matter, but possibly between p. 3 and 4 there is other matter not photographed. The next page is numbered 68, while the previous one is numbered 2.

The inscription, thus, above the first line,

κεφ$^{λ΄ον}$ ‡α^{ον} 'Ιωάν : ‡α^{ος}

The reading of τον λογον (for τους λογους) in i. 3 might indicate an interesting text.

At i. 2/3 we have an innovation, thus:

+ συνηγμε͂ν ἑρμηνευ^{τ} τοῦ ἀνδρεα καισαρέως φέρονται καὶ ταῦτα | καὶ ἅτινα εἰσί› καὶ ἃ χρή γένεσθαι μετα ταυτα | ἓς (vid.) τοῦ ἀρέθα.....(?) τῆς αὐτῆς πολ:^{ψως} ἑτέρως | ὅσα τὲ εἶδε› καὶ ὅσα ἤκουσε› καὶ ἅτινα δεῖ γένεσθαι μετὰ ταῦτα |.

After i. 3 fin. commentary follows for two and a half pages, and text does not continue.

Another hand writes on p. 4, continuing some later commentary matter, and only on the next page does any text appear. It begins at x. 7 init. and runs to x. 11 fin. Then follows com. for a quarter page and two-thirds of the next page, where it breaks off for good with one third left blank, and the whole of the next page blank. This the photo shows clearly.

I have entered the few readings available in the collations.

Apoc. 239. Athos, Panteleēmon 556. [Greg. —. Sod. M^{80}]. (Apoc. 239).

Can be neglected.

Group F(-38)-178-203-240.

Apoc. 240. Apoc. 240. Athos, Panteleēmon 770. [Greg. new 1678. Sod. Aν[402]]. [xv/xvi].

Inscr. αποκαλυψις του αγιου ἰῶ του θεολογου with 17 23 etc. MS. written in very small characters, abounding in shorthand, and surrounded by a huge commentary. Kappa and Chi are rather similarly formed, Kappa coming beneath the line. Style of 104.

The photographs are villainously made (and no doubt reduced), and the task of assimilating the readings is very trying to the eyesight, a glass being needed continuously. In fact at first the work of collation seemed gratuitous. But suddenly we became aware of a problem of the deepest interest, and as the scribe is quite accurate and faithful—for all his villainous writing—we are able to present to scholars a text of no mean worth.

It soon developed that this was a sister MS. to 38-178-203, and to have come across another of this 'Patmos' family was something of a 'find.' But it is more than this, because it must be the complete copy of our MS. F (Greg. 052) of which but four leaves survive in the same monastery.

And still more than this; for the commentary is a double one, and besides that of Andreas the scribe gives us Oecumenius' full com., of which so far 146-155 with 122 and 203 are the only exponents. So that, in the xvth century, Athos still boasted a copy of Oecumenius' commentary, and may have the original MS. yet for all I know to the contrary.

What a contrast to Apoc. 235 in the same library, which is copied from the printed text of Erasmus' third edition! It shows the absurdity of Soden's grouping, for 235 is listed under δ, and 240 under Aν.! Soden says nothing of Oecumenius' com., and we are left to suppose that 240 is an ordinary Andreas MS. Not so indeed, although Lambros in his catalogue also ignores the interesting feature of Oecumenius, and no one would dream, from looking at his list of the contents of this important volume of Miscellanies, that it had the full Oec. commentary.

Amphilochius. Given the supremely interesting character of this recension of the Apocalypse, it is probable that some of the other miscellaneous writings in this document have an ancient text and may prove full of interest. See the full list in Lambros' catalogue. This remark should apply particularly to Amphilochius' writings in this MS.

Our 240 is nearer to 178 than to 38, but really goes behind them both to a date somewhere in the third century, for besides reproducing practically all the rare readings of 178, it goes to the ancestor of א for many more. If א's date be 350, our freshly resurrected readings, in agreement alone with א's first hand, take us directly to the parent of א, say to 300 or earlier.

I am not saying that the agreement of $38 \frac{\&}{\text{or}} 178 \frac{\&}{\text{or}} 203 \frac{\&}{\text{or}} 240$ with א indicates that these readings are to be preferred; I am merely offering an argument as to the date of the text of our MS.

It is to be remembered that Apoc. 178 at Patmos is wanting between xvii. 1–14 and lacks the end after xxii. 16. Naturally I turned up the closing verses as soon as I had established full sisterhood of 240 with 178.

xxii. 20. As to ειναι ναι. To my amazement, I found in xxii. 20 the:

Λεγει ο μαρτυρων ταυτα ειναι ναι ερχομαι ταχυ found in א*.

Turning to xvii. 1–14, I found immediate confirmation of the same basic parentage, for at xvii. 2, just after 178 breaks off, I found the εποιησαν πορνειαν of א alone for επορνευσαν.

Both these readings are also to be found in 203, collated subsequently.

Even in xvii. 5 fin., where Apoc. 240 substitutes αυτης for της γης alone with 28, [not even 38], we find a conflation already in ℵ of: αυτης και της γης, which seems to make the text of ℵ junior to 240!

But this is not nearly all.

Here are other readings found only in ℵ and 203-240. Not even 38 or 178 have them in these places, where both are extant:

xiii. 16. αὐτῷ pro αὐτοῖς ℵ* 203-240 and gigas.
†xvii. 2. εποιησαν πορνειαν pro επορνευσαν ℵ 203-240. (hiat 178 [non 38]).
xviii. 12. βυσσινων pro βυσσινου vel βυσσου ℵ 203-240 et boh^{ADHZ}.
xxi. 12. +αυτων post ονοματα ℵ 203-240 *syr*S.
†ibid. γεγραμμενα pro επιγεγρ. ℵ 203-240 (*syr*S sah boh gig Prim.).
†xxii. 12. αποδοθηναι pro αποδουναι ℵ 203-240 (but here 178 has inked over the original by writing αποδουναι, and αποδοθηναι* may have stood there. The last page of 178 is practically rewritten).
19. +τουτων post λογων ℵ 203-240 (hiat 178 [non 38]).
20. +ειναι ante ναι prim. ℵ 203-240 arm 4 (hiat 178 [non 38]). Cf. boh.

To which, in order to bring out the full force of the matter, add the places where ℵ and 203-240 with 178 are alone together:

iv. 8. εν εκαστον αυτων ℵ 38-178-203-240 and 200 *syr*S. ix. 21. πονηριας pro πορνειας ℵ*A 178-203-240 [non 38].
xiii. 17. το χαραγμα του θηριου · ἢ το ονομα αυτου ℵ 38-178-203-240 boh.
xiv. 15. +αυτου post ναου ℵ 178-203-240 aeth (but aeth does this all the time: his temple, his lamb etc.).
order: xvi. 2. πονηρον και κακον ℵ 178-203-240 sah 2/3 (πονηρον κακον 1/3).
xvii. 6. τω αιματι pro εκ του αιματος prim. ℵ* 38-203-240 (hiat 178).

†xx. 11. επανω pro επ ℵ 38-178-203-240. (This evidently was not thought worth while for the redactor of 38 to eliminate and standardize).
xxi. 4. —ετι sec. ℵ 1 178-203-240 ps-Ambr. (This is not part of the 1 family recension because 152-179-208 have ετι and the adherence of 1 is quite fortuitous).
†6. λεγει pro ειπε ℵ 47 178-203-240.

† This involves retranslation at some time.

And note this:

iv. 4. —ιματιοις ℵ 130 143 178-203-240 [non 38] 200 arm 4.
x. 9. το βιβλιον ℵ 127-215 130 146 178-203-240 [non 38].

The scribe of 240 is exceptionally careful. His principal lapses are the following, for which I find no other support:

xi. 18. σεβομενοις pro φοβουμενοις
xii. 2. κεκραξεται pro κραζει but 203 has κεκραξαται.
xiii. 6. βλασφημηθηναι pro βλασφημησαι
xxi. 9. την νυμφαν* pro την νυμφην (Cf. nuptam et sponsam latt).
xxii. 19. —ταυτης (but so 203 200).

Illegible places. There are only half a dozen illegible places. At iii. 19 I cannot possibly read φιλω. It seems to be οσους αγαπω, without εαν. Here he was influenced by the com., as both Andreas and Oec. speak of αγαπω rather than φιλω. (Andr.: βαβαι της φιλανθρωπιας · ποση αγαθοτητι ὁ ελεγχος κεκραται, and Oec.: του υπερβαλλοντος μεγεθους της αγαπης του χριστου, τουτους γαρ, τοιουτους οντας οιους ο λογος εγραψεν, αγαπᾶν επαγγελεται διο ελεγχει τε και παιδευει ζηλουν, τα των εργων κρειττονα).

At xx. 12 we read και βιβλια ανεωξαν · (new) και αλλο. . The rest is missing to the end of verse 12, unless the photo on the next page top line supplies it, but it is absolutely illegible and appears blank.

Add to these, the following unusual readings:

i. 16. φαινεται with 47 [non 38-178, hiat 203].
xi. 13. —ανθρωπων with 113 and 203.
xiv. 3. επι pro απο with 40-210.
xx. 10. —των αιωνων with 47 fam 119 only and 178-203-240, but 203 εις τον αιωνα.
xxi. 6. γεγοναν (pro γεγονε) with A and 203 (γεγονασιν 38-178, 56 127-215 146-155 159 176-206 251 Iren.).
7. —αυτος with A 127-215 159 and 178-203 *syr*S.
16. —αυτης post υψος with fam 46 80-138 143 and 203 vg. Prim.
xxii. 16. και πρωινος with fam 46, 56-108 127-215 167 and 203 gig vg Prim. (Rell. et 38 ὁ πρωινος, hiat 178).
18. επιθησοι with 47 and 203 (επιθησεται 38).

There are several unusual affiliations throughout with 47—that beautiful XI[th] cent. church-standard MS.—which shows that when 47 was standardized it was from a very ancient exemplar, and these survivals tell an interesting tale.

One of our principal differences from 178 occurs at:

xi. 14. Here 178 leaves out the verse and substitutes παρηλθε δε ἡ δευτερα οργη και παρεγενετο συντομως ἡ τριτη, whereas we give the verse, and, with 203, add this afterwards.

Another is at:

xix. 13, where we show strong independence by reading ερραντισμενον (as 203 *mg) with Hippolytus, against both 38-178 which have βεβαμμενον.

But the agreement of the entire group 38-178-203-240 is very thorough otherwise, and the noteworthy family readings are all there, such as:

i. 11. φωνουσης pro λεγουσης
ii. 10. μεχρι pro αχρι as also 22 113 159 226.
20. ποθεις pro εας (Cf. Tert.).

14. αυτων η εξουσια and copt only (in the Coptic manner).
ibid. επι του ξυλου and 113 al. pauc.

On the other hand agreement of 203-240 and 38 (without 178) is seen at these few places :

vi. 11. ετι + τινα [χρονον μικρον] (178 and 200 having τινα instead of ετι).
ix. 8. −τριχας sec. and ix. 9 −θωρακας prim. [non 178].
13. −μιαν
x. 5. −εστωτα
xvii. 6. τω αιματι pro εκ του αιματος prim. and ℵ* (but 178 is missing here).
xix. 15. +παντα ante τα εθνη and 97-214 aeth gig.
xxii. 16. εν pro επι and A 18 56-108 200 al. (hiat 178).

At vi. 13 απο pro υπο may not be true to type. It is not found in 38-178-203 and α has been rewritten by 240. However, ℵ* 14-92 and 31 support 240.

επι pro απο xiv. 3 with 40-210 is not found in 38-178-203, but cognate matters bound up with such recensions as 18, 40 or 119 are as clear evidences of translation as anything can be.

At xviii. 20 we have [κρίμα] where 178 writes αἷμα and 203 first hand notes it in his margin.

At xix. 2 we write πολιν for πορνην with 14 47 111 aliq. but against 38-178-203.

At xxi. 6 we write γεγοναν with A, while the form γεγονασιν is found in 38-178 as well as 56 127 146-155 159 Iren.

At xxi. 16 we omit αυτης sec. post υψος with 143 against 38-178, but here 203 supports.

Since this was compiled, Professor Lake has been kind enough to supply me with photographs of the MS. I call No. 203 in my list (at Salonika in the Mon. των βλαταιων, No. 53) which turns out to be quite of the family, with a clearly written double Com. of Andr. and Oec. (quite unlike the rough, compressed and almost unreadable one in 240). Unfortunately it is wanting i. 1–i. 8, and here we depend on 240. Otherwise 203 is a splendid check on the text of 240 and on the commentary of 146.

I have added the readings of 203 in the above lists.

Anyone wishing to check a commentary reading in 240 will find the photographs at the University of Michigan. I wish them joy in finding the places sought.

Group 114-193-241.

Apoc. 241. Athos, Stauroniketa 48. [Greg. new 2286. Sod. Aν²²]. [xiv/xv]. Apoc. 241.

Neat commentary MS., evidently copied from an exemplar of some age. No iota sub. or post. except at xxi. 11 τιμιωτάτωι. ἶΔοΝ thus for ειδον consistently for the first dozen chapters, and then a lapse to εἶΔον generally, but this is line with the archetype, for the same thing occurs in Apoc. 114, which is a full sister. The family now becomes 114-193-241, widely scattered, one being at Rome, the next at Jerusalem, and the third at Athos! Nothing could be more dissimilar than the outward appearance of these three MSS., yet they are one in every respect.

It cannot be sufficiently insisted upon that the Andreas commentary was adjusted to every kind of type of text, and to group in one category the Andreas com. MSS. is misleading in the extreme as to the very different texts of these MSS., simply because a commentary is attached. Andreas.

In the present instance we have to do with a most interesting family, and this third member is an invaluable check on the other two. In the first place 193 is wanting after xviii. 13, and 241 now joins 114 in the very uncommon subscription, admitting textual criticism. In the second place, where 114 lapses into an omission, as at xxii. 2/3, 241 supplies it and with it a new reading.

All three MSS. are faithfully copied from the aforesaid critical exemplar, for it is the exemplar itself which indulged in a critical text and not any of these three reproductions. Down to the veriest minutiae they agree. Thus all three write πρωην for πρωτην in ii. 4, and οὗ εδιδασκεν εν τω βαλααμ τον βαλακ at ii. 14, and τη γη pro πληγη at xi. 6; 114 and 241, although utterly unlike in writing and outward appearance, are nearest. ν εφελκ. is very frequent in both, but is not used in 193. ἀνοίξαι is thus accented throughout. 114 indulges in many rough breathings and favours the circumflex on some antepenultimates, but not so 241.

Very few new readings of any importance are yielded by the scribe of 241, but we find:

x. 3. κοιμᾶται pro μυκᾶται. This is the more remarkable as 113 is the only other MS. to write κυμᾶται here, and 113 has some curious points in common elsewhere with the family, while 114-193 know nothing of this here.

xvii. 12. +ταυτα post κερατα txt. & com. (In 114-193 only in com.).

xix. 20. μετὰ τοῦτο pro μετὰ τούτου [non 114. Hiat 193].

xxi. 7. αὐτοῖς pro αυτω So Tert. alone illis (2 Cor. vi. 16). [114 has αὐτὸς], besides vi. 11 παυσονται for αναπαυσωνται, the ανα being absorbed in ινα. Here 114 has ἱν᾽ αναπαυσονται, and 193 ινα αναπαυσωνται.

(At xxii. 14 both 114 and 241 write ἱν᾽ alone among MSS., 193 wanting).

viii. 4. +επι post ο καπνος (Cf. copt. επϣωπ ἐπιχρευτc).

xii. 14. +αὐτῆ ante εκει

xiii. 8. του εσφραγισμενου (του εσφαγμενου 114-193. Most εσφαγμενου).

(17. —ει μη So 114).

18. αὐτῶ pro ανθρωπου (αὐτοῦ 114-193).

xiv. 14. υιος ανου (υιω ανου 114-193).

15. ηλθεν pro εξηλθεν = Prim. venit (rell. exivit).

18. κραυγην μεγαλην (κραυγη μεγαλη 114, φωνη μεγαλη 193).

xx. 4. ἐπ' αὐτῶν pro επ αυτους So fam 119 (ἐπ' αὐτοῦσ sic 114).

xxii. 2. κατα μηναν with A only (where 114 lacks the phrase).

ξυλον ζωης εντευθεν, και εντευθεν ξυλον ζωης reduplicating ξυλον ζωης, which ℵ omits! Here 114 is missing owing to the omission 2/3 of και του ποταμου usque ad ουκ εσται ετι inclusive.

Fuller notice than can be given here of the readings peculiar to this family is to be found under 114. We will, however, mention again some of the most striking. Above, under viii. 4, where 241 alone adds επι to the text, I have noted that επι would appear plainly in a Coptic column if the original had been Græco-Copt. Now notice that at:

xxi. 8 we repeat and confirm the order of 114 (193 wanting) of αυτων το μερος, alone among all Greek MSS. (for το μερος αυτων), and this is only exhibited by the Coptics, ⲡⲟⲩⲙⲉⲣⲟⲥ boh, ⲧⲉⲩⲧⲟⲉ sah, in the Coptic method which always involves the possessive before the noun.

For the rest observe the family steadily together for these unusual things: xix. 17 πετεινοις pro ορνεοις, xx. 3 χρὴ pro δει αυτον (both re-renderings), and:

iii. 3. οἷαν pro ποιαν So also only ℵ in addition.
20. κρουσω pro κρουω
iv. 11. τα συμπαντα pro τα παντα
vii. 11. —οι ante αγγελοι So also only ℵ.
14. —αυτω post [ειρηκα] So also only 113.
16. ουδε πνευσει pro ουδε μη πεση
xiv. 4. απαρχης pro απαρχη So also ℵ.
10. +εκεινου post πυρι
xvi. 6. αἷμα ἅγιον pro αἷμα ἁγίων So also C.
xviii. 2. —λεγων So also P *syr*S and copt.
12. λιθους τιμιους So also CP *syr*SΣ copt (Prim.).
xix. 10. και προσεκυνησα pro προσκυνησαι So also P *syr*S.
xx. 8. +και ante συναγαγειν So also ℵ.
xxii. 3. εκει pro εν αυτη
15. αι πορναι pro οι πορνοι So also E 12 137.
20. ανερχομαι pro ναι ερχομαι

besides:

ii. 20. πολυ pro ολιγα ℵ *aliq. gig syr*S.
24. την διδαχην ταυτης family only.
iii. 12 fin. +επι την καρδιαν του τοιουτου στυλου χαραξω, την γνωσιν του θειου ονοματος family only.
vii. 9. —και λαων family and 50.
viii. 13. φωνης pro ενος family only. (Om. ℵ).
ix. 4. ετεθη pro ερρεθη 193-241 (ετιθη 114).
5. —ως βασανισμος family only.
xii. 16. επιεν pro κατεπιε 114-241 (επιε 193).
xiii. 4. —τις ομοιος τω θηριω family and 146.
13. εκ των ουρανων pro εκ του ουρανου family only.
16. —και tert. family only and *syr*S.

xix. 14. των ουνων pro εν τω ουνω family and 8-24, 140 (του ουνου 36, 61-126 *gig syr*S Iren.).
ibid. ἐφ ιπποιπολλοὶ sic (—λευκοις) family and a few.
xx. 12. καὶ pro κατα 114-241 (Hiat 193).
xxi. 3. μετ' αυτων και αυτῆ· λαοι αυτου εσονται 241 } pro μετ' αυτων· και αὐτοὶ λαοι αυτου μετ' αυτων· και αυτῆ λαοι αυτου εσονται 114 } εσονται (or λαος as so many).
18. χρυσιω καθαρω pro χρυσιον καθαρον So copt Prim. etc.
xxii. 19. —τις 114-241 and 113. So also aeth Ambr[de paradox].

Observe also the ουρανου pro ανθρωπου of 114 and 143 in that important place at xxi. 17 is now confirmed by 241.

A few peculiarities of spelling inhere in the scribe of 241, particularly εἰ της pro εἰ τις. Note εισα pro ισα at xxi. 16, the spelling of א there.

As regards 143 observe yet another place of sympathy. Nearly all MSS. read και περιπατησουσι τα εθνη δια του φωτος αυτης, but 114-241 read τω φωτι and 143: εν τω φωτι. This is the 'in lumine' of most latt and Prim. and *syr*S (yet Amiatinus has 'per lumen' with *syr*Σ aeth and arm). The Coptic expresses ⲉⲃⲟⲗ ϧⲉⲛ boh, ⲉⲃⲟⲗ ϩⲓⲧⲛ sah. (Cf. 1 Jo. i. 7: "ἐὰν δὲ ἐν τῷ φῶτι περιπατῶμεν ὡς αὐτὸς ἐστὶν ἐν τῷ φῶτι...").

There is no inscription. The Heading to the whole is:

Ανδρεου αρχιεπισκοπου καισαρειας της καππαδοκιας· κυριω μου αδελφω και συλλειτουργω ††† περι της αποκαλυψεως του θεολογου followed by the Preface πολλακις κ.τ.λ.

No inscription before the text on the next page. A heavy line merely marks the end of the Preface before the text begins.

But we have the same exceptional subscription as in 114 (and 159). The differences are merely—παρουσεις 114	παρουσης 241

παρασχῶμενοc 114	παρασχόμενοc 241
αναδούναι 114	αναδοῦναι 241
αἰτιθεῖσ 114	αἰτηθεὶc 241
συνεχρῆσατο 114	συνεχρήσατο 241
διάννοι ἐν λόγοισ χωρίοισ 114	διάνοιαν λόγοιc χωρίοιc 241 λεξεσιν 114	λεξεσι 241
ἐν ποιήσει 114	ἐμποιήσει 241
παραλλαγὴ 114	παραλλαγῆ 241

The post-subscription 'Ανδρέου κ.τ.λ. agrees.

The important thing to note is that we hold λόγοις χωρίοις with 114 as against ὀλιγοῖς χωρίοις of 139 159 203.

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUP 10 etc.

Apoc. 242. Apoc. 242. Athos, Stauroniketa 52. [Greg. new 1865. Sod. —]. [xv].
Inscr. (almost illeg. in the photograph) is:

Αποκαλυψις του αγιου ιῶ του αποστολου ϗ ευαγγελιστου θεολογου with 10, 96 etc.

There are some marginal scholia.

MS. written in a very neat hand, probably XV, may be XIV.

No ν εφελκ. No iota post. or subscript except a large iota post. in a very unusual place, viz. at xviii. 6 to διπλᾶι sic, the iota being larger and quite unlike the occasional commas.

This is another Complutensian MS., quite true to type throughout. It is strange that it is found in the same monastery alongside of the last, which is quite an exceptional text.

It has the usual Compl. family alternatives in the text by the first hand, as:

iv. 8.	λέγοντα̈	xiv. 14.	καθήμεν^{ος}ὸν ὅμοι^{ος}ὸν
vii. 17.	ποιμ^{αί}ᾶνεῖ / ὁδη^{εῖ}γήσει	xvi. 19 and xvii. 10.	ἔπεσ^{αν}ᾶν
		xvii. 16.	ἐρ^{η}ημωμένην
ix. 5.	παίσ$^{πλή ξη}$η	xix. 10.	ἔπεσ^{ον}α.

It is most correctly copied. There are no new readings, and practically no errors until we reach that pons asinorum at xviii. 22/23, where the errors of order are corrected at once by the scribe by α. β. γ. δ. ε. superimposed.

At xxi. 21 ἀνὰ εἰς · occurs thus.

No subscription by the original hand. A later (XVI[th] cent.) hand adds:

ἔγω γε μακαρίζω σε γραφοῦ τῆς ὁλότητος (compendiis) ταύτης :~

LATE MIXED COMPLUTENSIAN TYPE.

Apoc. 243. Athos, Xĕropotamon 243. [Greg. old 513, new 1903. Sod. —]. [XVII]. Apoc. 243.

This is a bi-columnar codex in short lines, but it is a fake as regards such style, having iota subscript freely throughout, even below the older H form of eta, even to a nominative in i. 4 ειρΗνΗ, iii. 8 ἡ αἰσχύνΗ the latter with the Aldine edition of 1518. Occasionally, too, we find the semicolon of interrogation.

The MS. is dated ,ζρπδ =1636 A.D., but the subscription is not by the scribe himself, who writes an older style of hand, but by the contemporary overseer or antiballon, who writes a XVII[th] century hand, and has made a few marginal corrections and additions.

This does not mean that I challenge the date of 1636 for the main body of the MS. Doubtless it is correct. At any rate the MS. is a most impure mixture, the first four chapters and a half being in all probability copied from the printed Aldine edition (see i. 13 fin. ζώνην χρῦσοῦν alone with Ald. and μετανοησεν ii. 21 alone with Er. 1. 2. and Ald.) and turned back into this old-style bi-columnar, and thenceforward an exemplar of the Complutensian type is followed to the end; not the printed Compl. edition, however, but a MS. similar to our 49 or 77 or 150. Observe at x. 6 omission of την θαλασσαν και τα εν αυτη with 49-77, xiii. 12 το πρωτον θηριον alone with 150*, ix. 11 spelling of αββαδδων with 77-96-110-150-157-160 all Compl. MSS., but not the edition which has αββαδων with Er. omn. Ald. Col.

Inscr. is: Αποκαλυψις του αγιου ιωαννου του θεολογου ὁ εὐ (sic) which is new thus, if the last abbreviation be meant for ευαγγελιστου.

There are only a few unique readings, the MS. being exceptionally well copied for the late date. They are as follows:

ii. 8. —και ante ο εσχατος 13. ταις εμαις pro εν αις (εμαις 57 Er. 1. 2. 3. Ald. Col. and Er. 4. 5. marg.).
iii. 4. μετ' αυτου pro μετ εμου
v. 3. επι γης (—της)
8. γεμοῦσας
vii. 3. αδικησετε (αδικησατε Compl.).
viii. 13. των τριων αγγελων της σαλπιγγος New order. (—της σαλπιγγος gig, —των τριων αγγελων 113).
ix. 4 fin. επι το μετωπον [αυτων]
xvi. 9. +αυτου · post θεου [του εχοντος seq.]
19. Post μεγαλη +εις τρια μερη · ϛ αι πολεις των εθνων επεσον (but this error is completely cancelled).
xviii. 24. εν σοι pro εν αυτη
xix. 6. λέγοντες *sic
xx. 8. την γωγ · και την μαγωγ This error or independence as to gender is probably deliberate, see xiv. 19 τον ληνον, repeated at xix. 6 τον ληνον.
xix. 14. επ αυτους pro εν αυτοις (Compl. and others have επ αυτων).

Otherwise from i. 1–v. 11 type is strictly Er. 2. Ald., and from v. 11–xxii. fin. strictly Complutensian.

For the rest, observe in the first section, aberration from Er. 2. Ald. type:

ii. 2. δυνει with a few MSS.
22. —τους with 57 Col.
iii. 14. λαοδικαίων *sic (λαοδικαιων 57 sol. λαοδικεων Er. Ald.).
iv. 1. ἀνεωγμένη *sic (ηνεωγμενη Er. Ald. Col.).
9. δωσωσι B aliq., non Editt.

At v. 11 μυριαδες μυριαδων is added *marg, that is by the subscription hand, but not the usual full addition of και ην ο αριθμος αυτων μυριαδες μυριαδων. It is at this point that a new exemplar was taken, which turns out to have been a MS. of the Complutensian type. From now on aberrations from Compl. type are as follows:

vi. 3. [οτε] et Er. Ald. Compl. οτι.
4. ιππος πυρος ABP etc. Compl. πυρρος, Er. Ald. πυῤῥος.
6. λεγουσα 110 113 126 140 156. Non Compl. nec Er. Ald. Col.

ibid. [σφραγιζωμεν] et Er. etc. Contra Compl. et MSS.

N.B.—It would almost seem as if the printed edition remained open beside the scribe. However, see next entry but one and following, the Compl. MS. is the one really being copied.

The subscription (almost illegible in the photo) is, as it is decipherable (compendia expanded):

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUPING 10, etc.

Apoc. 244. Athos, Philotheou 38. [Greg. old 380, new 1865. Sod. α 380]. [XIII]. Apoc. 244.
Beautiful photos owing to the courtesy of Prof. K. Lake (in 1926).

This is a neat and most attractive MS., carefully and beautifully written with a quite superlative pen or pens, for the scribe exchanges nibs when the writing thickens unduly, and it is doubtless on excellent vellum. A most educated and accurate penman.

Ιωαννης always in full. But few numerals. No ν εφελκ. μὴ̈ sometimes, ἂν̈ once. ὅταν always, never ὅτ̈ὰν· Diaeresis over ϊ very scarce and only once over ϋ (ἀμεθϋσος xxi. 20). No iota post. nor subscript except δύνῃ ii. 2, and apparently once again λίθῳ sec. loco xxi. 10, but the iota seems to have been white-painted out (as far as I can judge from the photo). ἀνὰ εἷς at xxi. 21 is written ἀναειό· At xvi. 18 ἀφοῦ sic with other Compl. MSS.

It appears to range with the Complutensian family of MSS., and the inscription is:

αποκαλυψις του αγιου αποστολου και ευαγγελιστου ιωαννου του θεολογου with 37 etc., but it is not until we reach ix. 4 and 5, where we retain μονους and read πληξη (without alternative) that we are sure it is a true Compl. MS. No errors up to that point gave any indication of direct relationship with any other of our MSS. The matter is made secure when we find at xiv. 12 +του ante ιησου, and finally at xviii. 21, where the omission of ουτως duly occurs (with almost all Compl. MSS. and with them alone) although the scribe has neatly inserted a small ουτως above the line.

And a very fine specimen of the Compl. type is this small MS. from Philotheou.

There are but two new readings in the whole document,

iv. 3. κυκλοθεν του ουρανου instead of του θρονου, and +τε at xx. 4. και οιτινες τ' οὐ, thus οἵτινεστ planè fin. lin., 'ὁ init. lin. infra.

Besides this, in the margin at ii. 22 by the first hand or by a contemporary, referring to καὶ τοὺς μοιχεύοντας we read: "τοὺς ἐραστὰς αὐτῆς." No reason for writing this in, but we find the conflation of this in the text of 59! Nothing else of the kind occurs in our present MS. except at the number of the beast, where in the margin of xiii. 18 opposite χξϛ: we find (by first hand) λαμπέτης:
τειτάν:
λατεῖνος:
βενέδικτος:

There are some alternative readings (as in most of these Compl. MSS.), all by the original scribe, and we record the following:

iii. 2. στήρισον (ξ above σ) nitide pr. man. So only 53.
4. ἃ (οἳ above) nitidissime pr. man. Unknown variant.
7. εἰ μὴ ὁ ἀνοίγων (καὶ κλείων above)· καὶ οὐδεὶς ἀνοίξει pr. man.
vi. 8. καὶ ἐδόθη αὐτῷ (οις above) nitide pr. man.
vii. 9. φοίνικας pr. man.
ix. 16. τοῦ ἵππου txt, sed ἱππικοῦ mg. pr. man.
xi. 13. ημερα pro ωρα *txt, sed mg γρ τῇ ὥρα.

Original reading at xviii. 3 is uncertain. Hodie πεποτικε. May have been πεποπκε with 37, or πεπωκε with 157*. Never πεποκε.

The remaining feature seems to tie our MS. rather more to 37 than to any other of the Compl. family MSS.

xiii. 18. +του ονοματος post αριθμον. Only 37 104 167 200 220 and sah arm, and more forcible still:

xxi. 20. ὑάκινθινος sic omnia pr. man.* (pro υακινθος) Only 37 and Compl. edn.

(At xvi. 18 we omit ουτω with only 113 156 214* aeth arm, but first hand has added it himself).

(At x. 7 τελεσθη seems to be lightly corrected to τελεσθησεται by perhaps a later hand, agreeing with our 59 and 81 mg. only).

At xvii. 5 τῶν πόρνων is corrected to τῶν πορνῶν (So 30 and 142).

NEW TYPE (of B family).

Apoc. 245. Elasson, Olympiotiss 2. [Greg. 2200. Sod. δ 414]. Apoc. 245.

Owing to the situation in this neighbourhood I was unable to get this MS. photographed until 1927, and then only thanks to the energy of Dr. Themistocles Bolides. [XII]. Mutilated after xxi. 3. Otherwise complete. 35 long lines.

Inscr: αποκαλυψις του αγιου ἰῶ' του θεολογου: πε͞ρ' ε͞δ :

There are many omissions from homoioteleuton, but this is more due to the original used than to carelessness of the scribe. I do not seem to have any very close relatives of this MS., and the scribe is new to me, but it is of the B family, with some AB grouping.

No iota sub. or postscript, but no ν εφελκ. (except once xiv. 19) on the other hand, and ειδον always, not ιδον.

Breathing and accent on such words as επτα are conjoined; δικαῖαι always, not δίκαιαι. χρυσὰς not χρυσᾶς.

Abbreviation for ων is nearly always ~, but τ above the line stands for τες, ται, του, almost anything, even τας, των, τα, τη, and τι as well as τε.

It has a curved eta ϟ only met with in 204, a much later MS.

Numerals are never abbreviated except at vii. 5/8 ιβ̄ passim, and xiii. 18 χ̄ξ̄ς̄.

At viii. 1 our MS. lifts its little voice in favour of Hort's preference for ημιωρον with C and very few others.

New readings as follows:

i. 7. αμην pro και pr. (αμην και by 17 140).

ibid. εκ ξυλον τιμιωτατον
16. —και ult. ante μαργ.
21. οὕτω
xix. 1. —μετα? (i.e. ταυτα ηκουσα ως φωνην).

Apoc. 246 = Univ. 1, Moscow. [Greg. 2138. Sod. α 116]. [XI]. Apoc. 246.

After much trouble I have succeeded (April 1925) in extracting photographs of this valuable MS. from the Soviet management of the 'Russian Historical Museum.'

This is a dated MS. (ςφπ = A.D. 1072) of Acts, Paul and Apoc., a small MS. of 398 leaves of one col. and 18 lines. The subscription is given in Gregory (Textkritik, p. 1195). It was written by a professional scribe Michael, by order of King Michael.

It is a very neat MS. and psi is very square and most elegant. It represents quite a conventional B type in the main for this early date, approximating very closely to and running concurrently with 51-90-172-217, but seeming as a recension to antedate B, with the 'cursive' group to which it adheres when not with B, although there is occasional divergence from type. Thus at iv. 8 αγιος ter is found against the novies of B.

The golden rubrication indicates quite a strange and unusual division of smaller κεφαλαια Sections. than the usual 72, and amounts to 126 paragraphs, some set close together, some wide apart. The same method is faithfully adhered to in the junior MSS. of the group.

Iota postscript occurs occasionally (some thirty times in all) but with no regularity or system whatsoever. Not with ᾅδης nor with ζῷος nor with any verbs. It is favoured thus: εν τωι βιβλιω or εν τω βιβλιωι, but almost never to both article and substantive in the same place.

One unusual ligature occurs for αι, thus τ̃ͻσ for ταῖς fin. lin. at viii. 4. The scribe favours ~ for ν at the end of lines, thus: απεστειλε~ even when not cramped for room.

Numerals are never given except for κδ̄ in connection with the elders, ρμ̄δ at xiv. 1, and χξ̄ς at xiii. 18, and α̧χ̄ at xiv. 20.

There is only one alternative reading, viz. ποιήσῃ (ει superscript) at xiii. 15.

Inscription is:

αποκαλυψις του αγιου ιωαννου του θεολογου.

Of new readings we have the following:

ii. 18. —ομοιοι [but χαλκολιβανω].

iii. 1. —ὁ ante εχων

vi. 14. εκινιθησαν

ix. 3. εξουσιαι pro εξουσια

xi. 11., xii. 14. μισυ hodie pro ημισυ, η vel ει in ras. Vide xi. 9 εἵμισυ cum 124.

xiv. 7. πηχας pro πηγας xvii. 9/10., xx. 2/3. Uno tenore.

xvii. 10. ἔπεσ· sic textu. Supra in marg. compendium pro αν?

xviii. 3. Interpunctum post και οι εμποροι της γης·

19. Om. (inter paginas) ο θεμελιος ο πρωτος ιασπις · ο δευτερος σαπφειρος · ο τριτος (pergens χαλκιδων) [Suppl. **].

Unique agreement with 51-90 or 90 alone:

iii. 17 init. τι pro οτι prim. 51-90-172-217.
iv. 10. προσκυνησωσιν (προσκυνησωσι 51-90).
v. 5. ο ανοιξας pro ανοιξαι 51-90-172-217. (B etc. ο ανοιγων).
xii. 16. του στοματος pro το στομα 51-90.
xvii. 8. —και tert. 51-90.
xviii. 8. —και tert. (ante εν πυρι) 51-90.

Note also xvi. 21 fin. αὐτῆσφοδρα sic with 39 and 90.

But at v. 8 we write the unusual προσευχῶν with some cursives against our group.

There must be a MS. in between our 246 and the others 90, 51, 172, 217 in their order of date, which has not turned up so far.

Note also the following with 51-90 and some few others:

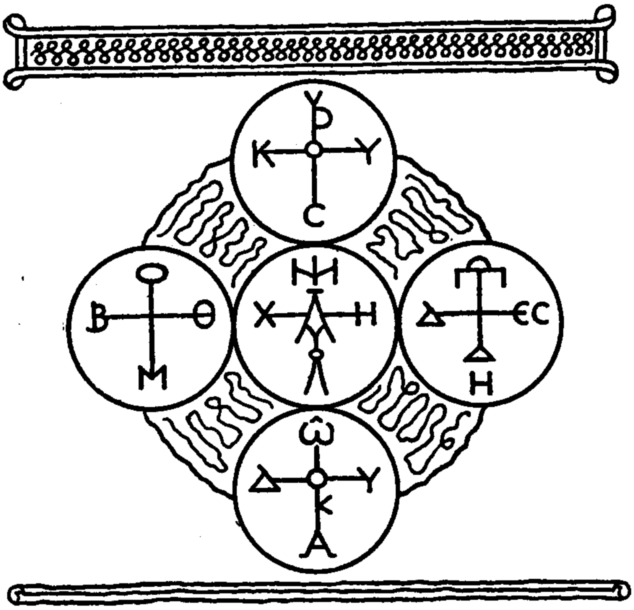
The subscription with the date occurs at the end of the book which precedes the Apoc. At the end of Apoc. proper is merely this :



Apoc. 247. Moscow, Synod 26 (acc. to Soden No. 472). [Greg. 2136. Sod. ε 700]. (Apoc. 247).
A MS. of the whole N.T. in Greek and Slavonic in parallel columns of XVI or XVII century.
The Apoc., of which I have photographs, is divided into modern chapters and verses, with an 'argument' in Slavonic at the head of the chapters.

The Greek text would seem to have been derived from a printed text.

At i. 2 it has οσα τε ειδε with the 1 family, but not Compl., but thereafter we find the Compl. addition of ατινα εισι και α χρη γενεσθαι μετα ταυτα, but without the initial και present in Compl. ed. and in all the MSS. which have this addition. Thus 247 presents us with a unique form of the addition.

At i. 4 we have the 'απο του ο ων' with Steph. and a very few MSS., but not Compl.

At i. 8 we have ο κυριος ο θεος with 84 only, while most have κυριος ο θεος, and the printed text of St. etc. ο κυριος.

At i. 11 we hold ταις εν ασια with Er. Ald. Col. Steph., but no MS. except 141, so that it does not seem worth while to burden the apparatus with 247. It could serve no useful purpose.

The inscription is with 37 62-3 119 144 148 158 190 and Compl. There is no subscription.

Apoc. 248. Apoc. 248. Formerly Geo. Bournias, Athens, then Kolyvas. [Greg. 2116. Sod. $A\rho^{70}$]. Date?

In private hands. (Present owner Loverdos?).

Owner refuses access up to the last moment of going to press.

Apoc. 249. Staurou 57, Jerusalem. Vacat. The Apoc. is non-existent in this MS.

COMPLUTENSIAN GROUPING 10 etc.

Apoc. 250. Apoc. 250 = Sinai 267. Not in our text books. Apparently also contains Acts and Cath. Epistles and Gospels?? (I have no information).

Discovered by Hatch and Rendel Harris in 1924, and photographs taken by Hatch. He skipped five pages, which Prof. Lake has kindly caused to be supplied by hand. The MS. is only of the xv[th] cent. and in a European hand in unusually long pages of thirty-five lines. It has a chain commentary and the inscription is:

αποκαλυψις του αγιου αποστολου · και ευαγγελιστου ιωαννου του θεολογου · ή των κρυπτων μυστηριων δηλωσισ · καταυγαζομενου (looks like καταγγαζομενου) του ηγεμονικου · ἐ͡ό · πε̄ρ́ ·

but the subscription (immediately following Apoc. xxii. 21 fin.) is unique and stands thus by the original hand:

τελος · ʹιω̃ʹ · ἐπιστο^λ ʹʹ :—

The MS. starts off in i. 1 with the rare variant of ευαγγελιου for αγγελου with 67 only, but this must be a coincidence, as it does not run with 67-120 thereafter. Yet there is another place at xiv. 2 where we are alone with 67. In fact we can quickly dismiss it as another and the last member of the Complutensian family on our list, for it is in accord with the Compl. MSS. practically throughout, including the standard test of —ουτως in xviii. 21.

The unique variants are probably errors, as at:

ii. 23/24. και δωσω υμιν τοις λοιποις τοις εν θυατειροις (—κατα τα εργα υμων, υμιν δε λεγω και)
iv. 11. —σου
xii. 10. αντιχριστου pro χριστου (test. Lake et Johnson)
xix. 14. βύσσινλευκὸν in one word. Cf. λευκοβυσσινον in 127 al. pc.
16. βασιλεὺσ, βασιλεύων sic pro βασ. βασιλεων
xx. 11. —τον ante καθημενον
xxi. 15. τας πυλωνας pro τους πυλ.
21. χρυσιαν
xxii. 19. —το ante μερος. A very important doctrinal change, but without support.

At iii. 8 μακραν is read with 14-92 108 111 and only 37 of Compl. family.
xii. 14. πεσηται (for πετηται) is found with only fam 25 (but all of it) and 69.
xvi. 13. Order: εκ του στοματος του θηριου before εκ του στομ. του δρακοντος with 80-138 arm 4.

There is a tendency to write some words twice, and it does not seem to imply the superlative as in some MSS., but it occurs too often with this otherwise careful scribe for us to attribute it to carelessness or to simple error.

At xv. 6 it looks as if the scribe had first written λεῖνον before changing it to λῖνον. Otherwise the scribe is accurate and conscientious.

ECLECTIC TYPE OF SOME IMPORTANCE.

Apoc. 251. Athens, Nat. 490 (olim 217). [Scr. —. Greg. 122, new 254. Sod. OΘ[42]]. [xv]. Apoc. 251.

Codex of Acts, Pauline Ep. and Apoc. cum com. on paper, and extracts, following Apoc., from Basil, Chrysostom, Neilos and Ephraim, which may be interesting in view of the extraordinary codex before us, which is a fitting but unexpected climax to our labours and investigations.

The codex is dated at the end (by another hand) 1422, and may well be of this date. The extracts following are in another somewhat older hand.

Collated from photos in 1926 acquired by courtesy of University of Michigan.

This is the last of the Athens codices, since the present owner of our No. 248 refuses to let us have access to it.

It starts off with ἐκ τῶν οἰκουμενίῳ τῷ μακαρίῳ ἐπϊσκ. τρΐκκης θεσσαλίας θεοφΐλῶς πεπονημένων· ἐκ τὴν ἀποκάλυψιν ἰωάννου τοῦ θεολόγου σύνοψϊς σχολϊκὴ μετὰ τῆς δεούσης ὅσον κατὰ σύνοψϊν ἀνελλειποῦς αὐταρκείας (like Cramer's, which has +χριστὲ ὁ θεὸς σύμπραξον ἡμῖν) and follows this with Ὅτϊ καὶ τοῦτο τὸ σύγγραμμα μύησις etc., but that is all there is as to Oecumenius about it, as in many other cases. The commentary is pure Andreas.

The scribe is a very careful and accurate copyist, as can be seen from such passages as xviii. 22/24, practically without variant, which is always a place of pitfalls for the unwary.

No numerals are employed, not even for the number of the Beast. Iota subscript is accorded to nouns, articles and adjectives, and sometimes to ᾧδε. Always to ᾅδης. Never to verbs. Beta is never β. Always ϐ. For David we have δαυίδ consistently, which is rare.

But the text. What an extraordinary type!

Based on the 62 branch of the Erasmian or 1 family, sometimes including the 119 family, Mixture. it favours the 38 recension in the early chapters, and then runs whole-heartedly with the entire Patmos group 38-178-203-240. Other strange elements creep in, noted as to 18 fam 21 22 67-120 130 200 206 and other eclectics. It wavers between ℵ and A in its allegiance, has several quite new and rather startling variants, besides ringing small changes on other curious variations already recorded for others.

There is no inscription. The text begins right after ἀντιδόσεων, the last word of Andreas' Preface.

NEW READINGS.

I will begin with these, and exhibit the most startling of all, which occurs suddenly, after a conventional text, towards the close, at:

xxii. 15. The usual clause is: "και πας ὁ φιλων και ποιων ψευδος," which is changed about in others in a moderate way to φιλων και ποιων, ποιων και φιλων, or ὁ ποιων και φιλων, or ὁ ποιων και ὁ φιλων, but all end with simple ψευδος.

Our MS., however, writes this:

καὶ πᾶς ὑπερηφανίαν φιλῶν, καὶ ποιῶν ψεῦδος, making a double clause of it, thus:

"And everyone who loveth arrogance, and doeth deceitfulness."

Not a word as to this of course in the commentary. The parallel is from the Psalms. See Ps. c. 7 οὐ κατῴκει ἐν μέσῳ τῆς οἰκίας μου ποιῶν ὑπερηφανίαν. Also Ps. lviii. 13 for conjunction of ὑπερηφανια and ψευδους. See also Ps. xxx. 24 and Deut. xvii. 12 as to ποιεω and ὑπερηφανια. We find the expression also in Plato.

In the Symposium 219 C. ψεύδομαι and ὑπερηφανίας occur in the same sentence; in the Republic 391 C. occurs this phrase: καὶ αὖ ὑπερηφανίαν θεῶν τε καὶ ἀνθρώπων.

Conflation of text and commentary.

As regards xxi. 24 it is well-known that Erasmus took the commentary reading for his text, and left the real text in the commentary. It is not surprising, as the two sentences are conjoined. Our present MS., however, adopts both clauses as text, thus:

καὶ τὰ ἔθνη τῶν σωζομένων (—ἐν with 1 62/3 72 136 147 152 162/3 184 etc.) τῷ φωτὶ αὐτῆς πέριπατήσουσι · καὶ περῖπατήσουσι τὰ ἔθνη δῖὰ τοῦ φωτὸς αὐτῆς.

There can be no doubt as to this, for his text proper is all in red ink.

The other readings which seem to be unaccounted for elsewhere are as follows:

Evidently a very critical codex, but it is quite impossible to date the changes. The additions are often suspicious. On the other hand, innate agreement with A, as at xvi. 18 the generic ανθρωπος εγενετο for οι ανθρωποι εγενοντο; with ℵ at i. 17 εἰς pro προς, and such other places as iii. 8, xiv. 15, xvii. 6, xviii. 4; occasional unique agreement with such MSS. as 18, 130, 200; with small combinations comprising 18, 40, 56, 111, 113, 130, 146; and with *syr*S sah boh and aeth Prim. on many occasions does not contribute to emphasize any late revision.

In fact, taking into consideration that 67-120 equates E, and fam 38 equates F, we have elements common to all the elder documents ℵACPEF, and that in very small combinations and in I may say all the more important places. Where the Versions support it is conclusive of very early traditions. In fact, we can really use them as arbiters here when present and when absent from the Greek groupings.

This completes the MSS. at the National Library at Athens, and all prove to be of exceptional interest.

Apoc. 252 is a number which should be reserved for a second MS. of the Apocalypse at Elasson, as reported to me by Dr. Bolides. I do not know the Library mark, and up to going to press have been unable to obtain photographs of it. I think the photographer was afraid to visit the neighbourhood a second time, owing to excessive banditry in that part of the world. Apoc. 252.

INTRODUCTORY

In the following pages I have endeavoured to paint a picture after the great Dutch master Gerhard Dou.

Now that my work is finished, what appeared laborious and difficult over a period of thirty years seems to be reduced to a very small and, perhaps, insignificant canvas. But his pictures also are quite small, and he seems to have left but few of them to succeeding generations. They are, however, masterpieces of detail, and I have tried to copy them. Not that I crave detail, but it is necessary to work it in so as to furnish the clues and keys as to the raison d'être of the picture. If the lights and deft touches of colour in Dou's pictures reveal the secrets of the interior down to its most minute details, and that without disturbing the harmony of the whole, we recognise the hand of an artist who had a serious object in view.

The notes to most guide-books on textual subjects seem to me absolutely sterile. The detail is presented in so cold and formal a manner, is so broken and disturbed by bracketed readings, that the student is left at a loss as to the drift of the whole matter. Tischendorf, almost alone, has carried along a continuous argument, and has pieced together his material in such a way as to infuse life and health into his picture. I have desired to emulate his example.

The interweaving of the testimony of the Versions is most difficult without disturbing the Greek harmony. I have tried to do this part of the work by carrying over to the next clause involved the Version testimony of the previous and succeeding clauses (where there is a variation), before embarking on the new Greek testimony.

SOURCES OF THE APPARATUS

There are two streams of the text of the Apocalypse, one Ecclesiastical and one extra-Ecclesiastical, which only join far back and high amongst the hills near the primal fount. As regards this important feature see volume I and remarks under the individual MSS., which occur in collections of Miscellanies on mystical subjects, and which have come down the centuries probably untainted by ecclesiastical bias or revision. This control is not available in the other books of the New Testament.

Besides more than two hundred Greek MSS., we have to deal with Gwynn's Crawford Syriac (syr S), the five MSS. of the junior Syr Σ, Horner's two to six MSS. of Sah, a dozen MSS. of the Bohairic, five Armenian recensions, the two Aethiopics, and the Arabic as represented in Walton's polyglot, without counting the Latins and the Greek and Latin Fathers and their commentaries.

I regret to burden the apparatus with the minute differences of the Greek MSS., but these rarely take up more than a line, and they must be introduced 'of record' and for the purpose of identifying any page of any MS. which may subsequently be stolen, misplaced, or change its domicile.

There was an alternative of adopting Soden's plan of having separate classes of various readings, but for many reasons this is not desirable. The continuity of the argument—for there is an argument on every page—would be disturbed, and references to different parts of a page or pages on the same verse are disturbing to eyes and mind alike. The other minor differences recorded are quite necessary if we are to judge of the texts which underlie the Versions, of their reflex action on the Greek, and of the exact limits where variations occur owing to the genius of the languages, and where this is not the case.

Of the Greeks, Dionysius, Hippolytus and Methodius will be found in their proper places, to which we now add Oecumenius. Of the Latins we have a fresh check on parts of Victorinus' text from the commentary of Apringius (see below under Apr.). Cassiodorus supplies a good many hints so far unrecorded in the published critical notes of my predecessors. Tertullian, of course, is important, but yields only fluctuating information from time to time.

Gigas is absolutely independent, and a closer follower of Greek constructions than any other Latin. The Vulgate is hopelessly commonplace. At this writing Dr. H. J. White has not reached the Apocalypse in his major Vulgate publication, and I have not had the benefit of his studies for this book. Primasius and Cyprian and Auct. prom. agree as a rule, but not always. This divergence is to be noticed. However independent Primasius may be—and he certainly allows himself full rein at times—he is never wild, and what is most interesting in these studies, his surviving MSS. vary but little inter se. This is exceptional and very gratifying. Tyconius I am now dealing with fully for the first time. Known originally as Anon. in Sabatier's great publication, we now have three separate Tyconian sources plus Beatus' Tyc., all of which I use from Vogel's useful reprint, calling them Tyc. 1.

Tyc. 2, Tyc. 3, and Beat. respectively. Charles quotes 'Tyc,' but as they are frequently opposed amongst themselves this is not sufficient.

Tyc. 1	= Tyconius Spicilegium Casinense III		(Vogels,	p. 179/182).
Tyc. 2	= ,,	Pseudo-Aug. Hom.	(,,	p. 182/190).
Tyc. 3	= ,,	Summa dicend. Beati	(,,	p. 190/193).
Tyc. Reg.	= ,,	Regulae	(,,	p. 182).
Beat.	= Tyconius' Beatus		(K. ,,	p. 194/208).

Beat. (Florez) = Beatus text of part of ch. XIII. as printed by Vogels, p. 234 (Pseud-Aug. spec. is printed without abbreviation).

We now add the commentary of Apringius, Bishop of Beja in Portugal about 540 A.D., from the useful print of Dom Férotin (Paris 1900) taken from the only extant MS. at Copenhagen. As in the case of Victorinus and others, Apringius probably never published a Com. on the whole Apocalypse, but only on selected passages. In Apringius' case we have Comments on ch. I to V and then on XVIII to XXII, which reminds us of our important cursive 143 lying in Spain to this day. In between, the Apringius' MS. contains other matter attributed to Jerome in the MS., but which belongs undoubtedly to Victorinus. The differences between the ordinary text of Vict., as given by Gallandius, Sabatier and Hausleiter, are not vital, except at VIII. 13 about an angel or an eagle flying in mid-Heaven. Here the com. in Gall. and Apring. differ toto caelo, one dealing with the eagle and the other with the angel.

Apr. is my symbol for this commentary of Apringius, long lost sight of, and published only recently in 1900 from a MS. in the Copenhagen library of the XI cent. (?). Isidore (ch. XXX) tells us that Apringius was Bishop of Beja—(Pacensis Hispaniarum)—which seems to be in Portugal, and not to be confounded with Badajoz in Spain; that he flourished in the times of Theudis, princeps of the Goths, and therefore between 531–548 A.D. The Com. was rare and difficult to obtain from the earliest times, but was used by Beatus in the VIII century. It seems only to survive nowadays in this one Copenhagen MS., which comes from the library of Arias Montanus and bears his signature. It was "copied in Barcelona in 902 from an ancient MS." according to the document itself, although it may be somewhat later.

Pseudo-Ambrose is a fresh authority which I introduce for the first time. It is far more important than Haymo (whom I discard except in a few places), and although the ps-Ambr. text is somewhat vulgatised this is not the case throughout.

It is to be found printed in 1554 at Paris by Michael Vascosani in a small quarto volume entitled Expositio Beati Ambrosii Episcopi super Apocalypsin (nunc primum in lucem edita) with a "privilegii sententia" of Henry II of France, and a preface by Tunstall, then Bishop of Durham. It is really by one Berengaudos, and in the MSS.—(not the printed text)—is found "Quisquis nomen auctoris scire desideras, litteras expositionum in capitibus septem visionum primas attende. Numerus quatuor vocalium quae desunt, si Graecas posueris est lxxxi." The seven Visions begin with the letters

e e a o

Adding the vowels as above $\epsilon = 5 + \epsilon = 5 + \alpha = 1 + o = 70$ gives us 81. It was probably written about 800, at any rate after 774 A.D.

Vogels did not use this, but its side-testimony is sometimes useful and will be found throughout in its regular place.

I have collated throughout the Complutensian, the five editions of Erasmus, and those of Aldus and Colinaeus. These readings will be found in their proper place and constitute a necessary adjunct to a complete presentment of the history of the text. The Compl. is based on our family 10, the Erasmian recension on the 1 family (see card) of which 208 is a full sister to Apoc. 1 and gives us the famous ending, missing in Erasmus MS.

I have no photographs of Apoc. 1. The local photographer wished to charge too exorbitant a price for them. Delitzsch collation now confronted with our 208 settles nearly all the minor points.

As to syr S.

Gwynn's edition of the elder Syriac or syr S. For some reason later writers persist in calling this philoxenian, and Horner designates it as syr ph. But the appellations of syr S and Σ for earlier and later Syriac were so simple in a critical apparatus. Why change? For my part I refuse to do so, and that simply for the sake of perpetuating sound traditions, as against unnecessary change, and in the interests of simplification for future students.

The trouble with Gwynn's otherwise most excellent study is that whenever he found a various reading in his Syriac, which by a slight adjustment of a letter or a point could be brought into harmony with the then known Greek, he did so. It is unfortunate, because my labours have since produced Greek witness for most of his doubtful Syriac readings. Notably at VI. 12 ἄσκος for σακκος is now attested by all my five MSS. of fam 119, a true Græco-Syriac family. Again, in a very small place at XII. 3 I found fam 119, varied the order of καὶ ὤφθη ἄλλο σημεῖον to κ. ωφθη σημειον αλλο for which none of the other Greeks or Versions seemed to vouch; nor did Gwynn or Horner report this for syr S, yet there it stands, σημειον preceding αλλο. In Syriac the word for signum is ala, hence easy confusion of order.

Syr S is entitled to respect, but when absolutely alone it can be neglected, as it seems to be a very independent recension.

Horner's Sahidic and Bohairic volumes have filled a gap. In the notes to the Sahidic volume he is full and interesting, but for some inexplicable reason he omits Hippolytus and nearly all the early Greek and Latin patristic testimony, which at times completely spoils the picture.

An important feature of the Bohairic is that in most of its radical variants all its MSS. concur, whereas they disagree throughout on minor matters.

I have still to speak of the Arabic, strangely neglected in our critical apparatus for hundreds of years. No one knows its sources, and some suppose it was based on Bohairic MSS. I have not found this to be the case. It is interesting and is at times independent of all, but never really wild. It bears distinct traces of the Commentaries which it consulted, especially at the beginning of verses, introducing a fresh subject by τοτε instead of και or δε, as does the Aethiopic at times.

As regards the Armenian, it is—with the exception of arm 4—far inferior to the Arabic for critical purposes; yet both Horner and Charles give to Coneybeare's Armenian MSS. undue prominence, and I have reluctantly followed suit in recording such readings which are at times wilder than anything else within our purview.

Charles' edition also neglects certain prime witnesses like Hippolytus and Irenæus' Greek (ex Anastasio), quite fully reported by Tischendorf. The men who prepared his critical notes seem to have lacked experience, although they were quite diligent, for they have a very bad habit of separating clauses. For instance, if Gigas omits half a clause, and Tyconius the whole, they will put Gig and Tyc together as if they agreed for the first half omission, and then Tyc alone for the second half. This is permissible sometimes, but they make it a rule, and it is a misleading practise.

The seven Greek uncials I have examined afresh, as to CPB from the printed editions of Tischendorf, and ℵA from the photographic reproductions, and EF from my private photographs. The Oxyrynchus fragments of course are quoted direct from Grenfell and Hunt's volumes.

All Matthaei's, Alter's, Birch's and others cursive MSS. have been recollated. Scrivener's collations I reproduce without having gone over his ground again.

I have spared neither pains, time nor money in the endeavour to cover the ground. In recent years the late lamented Professor Kelsey and his photographer at the University of Michigan, and especially Professor K. Lake, have helped me to cover the last lap of my journey and secure the readings of certain stray sheep which had evaded me at Patmos, Athos, Sinai, Andros and Salonica.

There is a gap between 195 and 200, the missing MSS. having been stolen or forcibly removed during the late war.

Where non such and such a number appears in the lists it is to emphasise that the MS. does not agree where it might be expected to do so. It does not mean that other MSS. not so cited are not also against the reading or rendering.

Future editors of critical editions of the text of the Apocalypse can take or leave as much as they see proper for their apparatus. My business has been to record the variants, but I hope they will not neglect certain prime witnesses, as has been the case in the latest critical editions published by my contemporaries.

PRESS ARRANGEMENT

At the head of the variations in each verse is printed the text of Stephen's third edition of 1550—(as reprinted by Scrivener)—, with which all the collations are made.

Above this is a list of the MSS. which happen to be deficient.

On a separate card will be found the family groups, preceding which is a list of the numbers which do not appear in the collations by reason of loss, theft, etc.

The verse divisions are as in Stephen's fourth edition of 1551.

It seems unnecessary to give a list of our abbreviations. They speak for themselves. Of course com. means commentary and comp. compendio or compendiis.

LIST OF THE MANUSCRIPTS BY FAMILY GROUPS

ℵ, A, C, P, and B + a group of some 80 cursives.
Oxyrynchus 4 fragments 848(xvi. 17/20), 1079(i. 4/7), 1080(iii. 19/iv. 2), 1230(v. 5/vi. 7).
E-(17)-67-116*frag.*-120-(169-216).
F-(38)-178-203-240.

Erasmian family: 1-46(=88-101-137)-59(=121)-62=63-67(−120)-72-(81)-88-101-120-121-136 (=62)-137-141-147(=136)-152-159-162/3-179(=152)-184(=136-147)-187 (i.1-iii.12)-189 (partim =59-121)-(204)-208(=1)-235(=Er. 3)-243(i-v=Ald.)-(251).
+sub-group: 29-30-98-129.
+sub-group: 119-123-144-148-158 the most ancient stem of fam 1. (graeco-syriac).
Connect also: 149-186 to some extent, but 149-186 have a distinct connection with the arabic version or with its underlying text.

Complutensian fam.: 10-17-(21)-37-49-77-91-96-110-150(to xxi. 9)-(154)-157-160/1-187(iii. 12-fin.)-190-192-202-212-221-223/4-227/8/9-230-(231)-232-(233)-242-243(v-xxii)-244-250. Of these 221 is a very careful standard.
+sub-group: 13-23-55-150sup.(xxi. 9-xxii. fin.)-(226) with Coptic background.
+sub-group: 14-92-(201).
Also fam 21, to follow; probably the oldest stratum of the Compl. family, 37 and 221 being stepping-stones.

B family is very numerous. Of these eighty MSS. connect 33-194, 50-177, 153-211-222.

Arethas: 4-20-48-64-74 and: 6-31-106-(164, 166 as to i-xi)-171-174-(182).

Graeco-Latin: 7-16-39-45-69-102-104-151-180 [stepping stones to 97-122-214].
+sub-group: 8-24-140.
+sub-group: 9-27-75.

Egyptian fam.: 21-28-(65)-73-79-79a-80-99-100(xi-xxii)-103-112-(130)-135-138-139-170-191-(220)-221. Of this large group consult chiefly 79 for accuracy, but 99-170 probably represent the oldest stratum. [Add the Compl. MSS., especially 37-221-244 as having access to the 21 recension.]
+sub-group: 25-19-58-70-78-84-94-207. Of these 70 is the most reliable.
+sub-group: 26-41-42-53-107-(153-211-222). N.B. 222 (at the Laura, Athos) is our oldest dated MS. Dated 1015.
+sub-group: 30-(29)-98-(128)-129.

Coptic family: 34-35-68-87-(124)-132-156-(165)-181-188 [132 the most reliable, 124 the most independent].

also: 44-52-82. (Of these three 82 is the best.) Also 13-23-55-150^{sup}-226.

also: 51-90-(cf. 125)-172-217-246.

also: 61(=126)-(74)-95-126-(159)-(164-166)-218-219.

also: 81-204.

also: 97-122-214 (cf. the 7 family and Cassiodorus).

Sahidic also: 176-206 exhibiting a lost sahidic foundation text. Note also 226.

Syriac fam.: 108-109 (109 is gr-arm, but arm differs), and 149-186.

also: 114-193-241.

also: fam 119-123-144-148-158 listed under fam 1. Add undoubtedly 38-178-203-240.

also: 40-210. (Supertype of CAB recension, with the rarest readings tracing to retranslation.)

also: 111 connect with underlying text of syr Σ.

Œcumenius: 146-155-155^{A}, and F-38-178-203-240, quoted as fam 38 when the four cursives agree, and as fam 178 when 38 deflects (F is only a fragment).

Composite MSS. are:

18, 40, f. 119 are graeco-syriac, and 149-186 with an independent strain.

191-220 is a composite of fam 1, fam 10, fam 21 and fam 146. See also 169.

95-127-215 is a composite of ℵ and A.

226 is a good composite with strong sahidic base.

233 is a composite of fam 1, fam 10, etc., with a touch of 153-211.

251 is a composite of fam 62-63, fam 1 and fam 119 with large elements of 67-120, and of 38 and fam 38, and touches of 18, 22, 206 and of ℵA.

† At this the first mention of the 'Living Creatures,'—so rudely translated 'Beasts' in King James' version—, it may be useful to insist on differentiation between these glorious creatures and the real 'beasts' of the Revelation. The 'Beast' of the Apocalypse then is a creature or servant of the Dragon, Serpent or Devil, who gives (or lends) him his power, and he comes up from the abyss (xi. 7), from the sea (xiii. 1) and from the earth (xiii. 11). Only once does he seem to invade the etheric world of the real 'Living-creatures,' and that in his last fight (ch. xix.), and he is finally overthrown (xix. 20).

† The accenting of σφραγιδα varies between σφραγῖδα and σφραγίδα (favoring the acute) even in the same MSS.; I have not recorded any difference throughout these notes. Notice above, however, the σφραγειδα of C. The matter of the writing of εβδομην or ευδομην is different. Upon this first occurrence of the word, I wish to state, once for all, that when I record a MS. for υ instead of β it is because in the later MSS. υ is sometimes quite deliberate, whereas in the older MSS. it is quite impossible to differentiate.

‡ With reference to this discord between sah and boh here as to Silence in Heaven, permit me to quote from Bond's 'Return of Johannes' (sequel to 'The Gate of Remembrance,' Glastonbury 1921), as follows:

"Mingled tones ranged in harmony through the dominant key of human and divine sympathy. Sometimes, through the mutual blending of our spiritual sympathies, our voices—the undertones of infinite complexity—will cease, stilled by a greater concord, which, in the communion of saints, the infinite power of that mutual sympathy will compel with one accord that unanimous yielding, which has been expressed as Silence in Heaven."

And from another source, the following:

"As to silence in Heaven, the inhabitants do not speak, but 'think at' each other there—different languages being thus blotted out.—Therefore, when John refers to an half-hour's silence in Heaven it simply means a period of 'receuillement,' of deep inward silence, when every personal thought is subdued and silenced, every occupation ceases, and a deep inward glow of piety ensues, self being blotted out in silent adoration of Deity and His works, which is a grandiose attitude and amply justifies the expression of 'Silence,' but which we can with difficulty grasp, although it heightens the grandeur of the Seer's statement, and once more reassures us of his veracity."

∴ This is a difficult verse, what with its admixture of ark, altar, throne, living creatures, angles and angels, but the kernel of the matter about the voice and whence it issued is beautifully brought before our notice by the omission of ℵ, and by the form in which the sahidic and arabic versions present the matter for the exercise of our critical judgement. This is completely obscured in Charles' otherwise careful work, and in the editions of Swete and Soden, which are quite colorless studies. The matter appealed to Tischendorf, for, in his usual perspicacious manner, he offers some remarks on the subject. May I call attention to the way in which 200 unconsciously notifies us of the difficulty. In my notes above will be found recorded that intensely interesting x^th century document 200 for φωνης ενος instead of φωνης μιας, φωνην μιαν, μιαν φωνην, or φωνης or φωνην without μιαν. This does not mean that 200 ignored the gender of φωνή. We must introduce a comma, and read φωνης, ενος. Thus: "And the sixth angel sounded and I heard a voice of one from the (four) corners of the altar." Now we catch the drift of the sahidic's: "And I heard a voice out of the horn (singular) of the altar," and of arab and arm 4 which read "And I heard a voice (om. arm 4) from one of the four horns of the altar." Observe that our other major document 130 omits both φωνην and μιαν with arm 4. Fortunately for us, in all this maze, Victorin is extant here for a brief moment, and reads with the received text according to Gallandius: et audivi vocem unam ex quatuor cornibus altaris aurei quod est in conspectu Dei, which none of the above editors, including Tischendorf, seem to have noticed. This third-century witness should set the matter at rest, unless indeed our textual difficulties set forth above antedate his day.

In Hausleiter's edition of Vict. he reads 'unum' for 'vocem unam,' and 'Post haec' at the beginning of the sentence, as is found confirmed in Apringius. The MSS. must vary, and I don't think we need accuse Gallandius' editor of copying or accommodating to the vulgate text, since in the next verse he gives us ad fluvium for the super or in of all others (Hausleiter and Apr. say apud).

† At this point the vision resplendent opens up, and, continuing at xx. 11 (after a parenthesis), we are conducted into the higher heavens, nowhere else referred to in our Bible. Without adopting the exact Hindu terminology of the graduated number of superimposed planes or heavens, our own Bible teaches us that there are several 'stages' (compare the μοναί, or mansions, or rest-houses of John xiv. 2, 23, which are nowhere else mentioned in the N.T.), and we learn of a 'seventh' and of a 'third' heaven. Even in the third heaven St. Paul heard things unlawful to be repeated among mortals (2 Cor. xii. 4). This he calls 'paradise.' The word occurs as to the morrow of the repentant thief on the cross (Luke xxiii. 43), but is nowhere else used in the N.T. except at Apoc. ii. 7, where in its midst is situate the tree of life.

But in John's magnificent later vision he takes us to the real or uppermost Heaven above 'Paradise,' where dwelleth the Lamb. Even here there are 'Zōa'—'Living-creatures,' but not 'beasts.' ('Beasts' is a mistranslation). And, after viewing the dissolution of the old heaven and earth, we are introduced to a new 'state' in chapter xxi, and in the tenth verse he viewed the new and holy Jerusalem in all its refulgent glory (ver. 11), which (ver. 23) has no need of sun or moon, and where (xxii. 1) is the living-stream of the water of life, which flows downward to irrigate the tree of life.

It is all very mystical and only open to those 'out of the body.'
